ALL EYES DOWN UNDER

The new World Cup/Olympic cycle has kicked off and U.S. Women's National Team head coach Vlatko Andonovski is charged with the difficult but exciting task of integrating a wave of dynamic newer talent into a team that still has multiple veterans capable of contributing in big ways. While the majority of the USA's game schedule over the past two years has been impacted by the global pandemic, U.S. Soccer and the USWNT have managed to play an extensive slate of matches in 2021, which featured the SheBelieves Cup in addition to nine pre-Olympic friendlies, six matches at the Olympics -- where the USA won the bronze medal -- and six post-Olympic friendlies, which concluded with a successful trip to 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup co-host Australia to cap the year.

The focus is now squarely on the newly dubbed Concacaf W Championship, an eight-team tournament that will take place in Mexico from July 9-24, 2022 and qualify four countries – the top two finishers in each of the two first round groups – directly to the 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup. The two third-place group finishers will qualify for the 10-team intercontinental playoff tournament that will produce the final three qualifiers for the World Cup. For the first time, the Concacaf World Cup qualifying tournament will also serve as Olympic qualifying and the tournament winner will earn a direct berth to the 2024 Olympics in France. The second and third place finishers in the Concacaf W Championship – the loser in the title game and the winner of the third-place match – will playoff for the second Olympic spot.

While the USA's Olympic performance was disappointing by the high standards of the program, the run to the World Cup resets the goals and presents unique challenges on the horizon. Quite a few players that formed the core of team that won the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup are still in the mix – only Carli Lloyd has officially retired -- and the USWNT has a deep group that is highly motivated to accomplish a feat never before seen in women's soccer: to qualify for and then win a third consecutive World Cup.

That said, to be clear, the USA's philosophy as it looks forward is that they are defending nothing. This journey is about attacking yet another challenge. The World Cup trophies are resting comfortably for eternity at the National Soccer Hall of Fame and this is a new team, with new players and new goals.

Andonovski – a veteran of seven seasons as a head coach in the National Women's Soccer League – had the best-ever start of any USWNT coach in terms of wins and winning percentage and understands the history and the expectations. He has also brought a new energy to the ongoing evolution of a Women's National Team that for years has been fighting off competitors from around the globe as the women's game continues to grow by leaps and bounds.

In his 26 months on the job heading into 2022, and despite the majority of 2020 being unavailable to hold any camps or games, Andonovski has called up 59 total players – 17 of whom made their first appearances in a USWNT training camp. He has given 10 players their first caps so far. For the final two games of 2021, he started to bring in a younger group of players, many of them who excelled in the NWSL, and he will continue to endeavor to give opportunities to younger and newer players who will challenge the veterans for roster spots, while at the same time valuing the talent and experience that already resides in the player pool.

In 2022, the core group of players will refocus on continuing to improve as a team, to develop relationships on the field and to incorporate younger players to gain experience and improve the overall depth, all with the goal of qualifying for the World Cup and the Olympics during the summer. Many of the veterans who helped the USA to so much success over the past few years will still be competing for spots, providing even more motivation towards evolution and success this year. This much is clear: despite once again holding the top spot in the FIFA Women's World Rankings for the entire year (for the sixth year in a row), the U.S. team is working hard to progress and improve in the increasingly competitive arena of women's international soccer.

2022 KICKS OFF IN AUSTIN, TEXAS

The goal of the USWNT program is to always play as many of the world's top teams as possible, a task becoming more difficult every year not only due to the global pandemic, but the increased programming for club and national teams around the world. If all goes well, the USA could play as many as 18 full international matches in 2022.

The annual January training camp will be staged this year in Austin, Texas and will serve as a "pre-season" for the players coming off a well-deserved six-week break and before the start of pre-season for the 10th year of the NWSL. The USA will then come together to train for the seventh annual SheBelieves Cup that will be staged in three doubleheaders over Feb. 17-23, two at the Dignity Health Sports Park in Carson, Calif. and one at Toyota Stadium in Frisco, Texas. The SheBelieves Cup games will be USA's first matches of the year. The U.S. players will then return to their pro clubs in the spring, but there will be two friendlies in April and two in June, the latter pair heading into the Concacaf W Championship. The USA is also scheduled to play two home friendlies in September, two away friendlies in October and two more at home in November to end the year, should all go as planned.

TALENT, DEPTH, MOTIVATION HIGHLIGHT 2022 FOR USWNT

A solid core of veterans who played in the most recent Women's World Cup and Olympics are part of the player pool for 2022, but Andonovski will leave no stone unturned in his quest to strengthen the U.S. team in the starting XI and on the bench. Over the past few years, some new faces have worked their way into important roles for the USWNT, invigorating the roster and adding valuable depth. That process will continue, but the World Cup qualifying roster will feature just 20 players – two goalkeepers and 18 field players – meaning Andonovski and his staff will face some "good problems" in choosing the best team to push the USA to new successes.

As usual for the U.S. WNT, the selection of rosters for camps and games is a difficult but desirable proposition for Andonvoski and his coaching staff. It means the competition within the squad is always there, and players will earn playing time and roster spots based on their performance.

At the end of 2014, the U.S. Women dropped to second in the FIFA Women's World Rankings after holding the top spot for seven years. The U.S. WNT regained the #1 spot in July of 2015 after winning the World Cup and has maintained it ever since, meaning the American women once again head into the new year as the world's top ranked team. Over the past 18 years, since the end of the 2003 FIFA Women's World Cup through the end of 2021, the U.S. team has lost just 20 matches in regulation time. This year's team will seek to build on the tradition that has made the USA the most successful women's soccer nation in history, winning four Olympic gold medals and four Women's World Cup tournaments, as they once again focus on qualifying for the largest women's sporting event on the planet.

DEPTH FUELS COMPETITION

The U.S. player pool is as deep as ever, but the challenge of blending together the best mix of young talent and experienced veterans is one that many coaches face. The USA will of course rely extensively on some of the players who featured in the most recent World Cup and Olympics tournaments, but there has been an exciting infusion of new players into the squad.

In goal, ALYSSA NAEHER, who has played in 68 matches over the past five years, has proven herself as the starter. Her excellent performance in France in the summer of 2019 and in Japan in the summer of 2021 (despite suffering a serious knee injury in the Olympic semifinal that kept her out for the rest of the year) showed the world once again that she is a world class 'keeper. ADRIANNA FRANCH, who played in the Olympic bronze medal game win in place of Naeher, earned her first caps in 2019, and hit double figures in 2021. Franch, the two-time

NWSL Goalkeeper of the Year, has played very well in the NWSL and was traded to her home state Kansas City Current in 2021 after helping the Portland Thorns remain among the league's elite while solidifying a consistent spot on WNT rosters when healthy. JANE CAMPBELL, who has established herself as the long-time starter with the Houston Dash, made strides forward in 2021 while playing in four matches and the 6-foot-1 CASEY MURPHY turned some heads at the end of 2021. Murphy, who had an excellent NWSL debut season in 2019 after playing her first two professional seasons in France, elevated her game in 2021 with the North Carolina Courage and then had one of the most impressive goalkeeper debuts in U.S. history when she made eight saves, some of them spectacular, in a 3-0 win over Australia on Nov. 27, 2021, in Sydney. Uncapped goalkeepers AUBREY KINGSBURY of the NWSL Champion Washington Spirit and BELLA BIXBY (who earned her first WNT call-up up at the end of 2021) of NWSL Shield winner Portland Thorns add dept to the USA's goalkeeping pool.

The U.S. team defense, led by a stingy back line, has proven tough to break down over the past few years, and while the Olympics proved to be an unfortunate aberration, the USA allowed just two goals in the 18 matches outside of the Olympics in 2021. The group that started the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup Final – KELLEY O'HARA, ABBY DAHLKEMPER, BECKY SAUERBRUNN and CRYSTAL DUNN – are still solidly in the running for roster and starting spots, although Dunn will be off the field for the first half of the year as she is pregnant with her first child. The USA's central defense has long featured Sauerbrunn, now one of the most experienced and respected defenders in the world, and the rise of Dahlkemper – who has two world championship tournaments on her resume -- gives the USA two of the world's most experienced center backs.

Despite some injury struggles, TIERNA DAVIDSON – the top pick in the 2019 NWSL Draft by the Chicago Red Stars – has shown her talent on the international stage and still has many quality years ahead. She saw her minutes increase over 2021 and gives the USA an exceptional option in the middle of defense (or in a pinch, at outside back). EMILY SONNETT, the first pick in the 2016 NWSL Draft by the Portland Thorns and a vital part of their run to the title in 2017, moved clubs three times in 2020, but has consistently shown her quality, mostly at outside back for the USA or centrally in the NWSL for the 2021 Champion Washington Spirit. She has proven herself to be a solid option in the middle or on the flank, whether starting or coming off the bench.

Former Stanford star ALANA COOK, who was a teammate with Davidson in college and has shown some excellent chemistry with her when playing together in the middle, was plying her trade for Paris-Saint Germain in France before moving to OL Reign for the 2021 NWSL season. She got her first cap in 2019, started to work her way more into the mix during the end of 2020 and early in 2021, and played two excellent matches for the USA in Australia at the end of the 2021 campaign. The USA is hoping she will add even more minutes and depth to the pool of center backs in 2022.

O'Hara, the 2015 Women's World Cup semifinal hero who was a starting outside back in the 2012, 2016 and 2020 Olympics and in the 2019 World Cup, has continued to display her fitness, grit, versatility (she can play on either flank) and experience. She played a crucial role in the USA's success in France, and the former MAC Hermann Trophy winner as a forward at Stanford has also proven valuable to the USA in the attacking third. The speedy and savvy Dunn returned to the defense in the spring of 2018 and has shown herself to be the top choice at left back while also displaying quality attacking talents that come from many games played for college, club and country in the midfield or at forward. While she continues to play attacking roles in the NWSL, Dunn's performance at the 2019 World Cup solidified her standing as one of the world's top outside backs and she will be welcomed back when she recovers from her pregnancy.

EMILY FOX, the top pick in the 2021 NWSL Draft for Racing Louisville FC, is a veteran of the two U-20 Women's World Cup Teams. She earned her first senior team caps at the end of 2018 and 2019 but had two breakout games at the end of 2021 in Australia and has shown qualities – both defensive and offensive -- that bode well for the future. A major knee injury suffered in the 2019 NCAA Tournament kept her out for a long stretch in 2020, but she is healthy and ready to try to make her mark internationally after a strong rookie season in NWSL.

The dynamic MARGARET "MIDGE" PURCE, who has shown tremendous versatility in the NWSL at forward or in the back, was capped for the first time at the end of 2019, earned another in 2020, and saw action in seven games for the USA in 2021 while scoring her first two international goals. She will be looking to work her way into the mix in 2022, most likely up top after her initial forays into international soccer came as a defender. CASEY KRUEGER saw little playing time for the USA over the past three years while hampered with injury but did make the 2020 Olympic Team and saw action in one match. She has shown tremendous speed and one-on-one defensive abilities when healthy, but Krueger is pregnant with her first child and will be off the field for a large portion of the year.

IMANI DORSEY, who has performed well at outside back for NJ/NY Gotham FC, and SOFIA HUERTA, who excelled in her role at outside back in the latter part of the 2021 season for OL Reign and tied for the league lead in assists, showed that they could provide increased depth on the back line during the USA's trip to Australia at the end of 2021.

One of the main positives of the past five years was the evolution and increased depth in the center midfield positions. Of course, that was helped by the transition of JULIE ERTZ, who moved from the back to defensive midfielder and has developed into one of the world's top players. While Ertz – the 2017 and 2019 U.S. Soccer Female Player of the Year --- has always had world class ball-winning abilities, she has become one of the USA's most important players, having grown as a goal scorer and as a player who can help set the USA's attacking tempo in the center of the park. The fact that she can drop at a moment's notice into center back – a position where she won a World Cup in 2015 – makes her even more valuable.

LINDSEY HORAN, the first American woman to skip college and turn pro, has had an excellent run for club and country over the past five years while settling into an impactful midfield role. She was named the 2021 U.S. Soccer Female Player of the Year for her consistent excellence for club and country. With nine professional seasons already on her resume at the age of 27, Horan continued to increase her value as a key player in the U.S. midfield. ROSE LAVELLE, who had been limited by injuries since her stellar WNT debut at the 2017 SheBelieves Cup, has rebounded to display her unique talents over the past four years and was consistently fit, impactful and entertaining in 2021 when she played in a career-high 22 matches for the USWNT. She was a breakout star at the 2019 Women's World Cup, where she showcased her skill and craft in the U.S. midfield and established herself as a truly unique and valuable player for the National Team.

The play of six-foot SAMANTHA MEWIS has only gotten better each year over the past five years. She was named the 2020 U.S. Soccer Female Player of the Year for her performance for country and club, winning an FA Women's Cup with Manchester City early in her tenure in England, and scoring in the UEFA Women's Champions League. Now after a big move to the Kansas City Current, Mewis gives the USA yet another versatile option in the middle with her tremendous passing, ball-winning and ability to score goals from distance and in the air.

ANDI SULLIVAN, who worked hard to return from a knee injury and make her way onto several rosters in 2018 and at the end of 2019 only to suffer another less serious knee injury during NWSL play in 2020, took a big step to establishing herself in the WNT in '21 with her performances for the USA and for the Washington Spirit, which she captained to the NWSL title.

One of the best women's soccer stories of 2020 was the return to the National Team of midfielder KRISTIE MEWIS, the older sister of Samantha Mewis and former U.S. YNT star whose performances for the Houston Dash vaulted her back into the USWNT picture. On Nov. 27, 2020, she scored the clinching goal in the 2-0 victory against the Netherlands – her first goal for the USA in 2,722 days (a U.S. record) in what was her first USWNT match in more than six years. The tremendously skillful and left-footed Mewis continued to contribute in 2021, scoring two more goals, and will be looking to establish herself even more now that she is with NJ/NY Gotham FC while competing for a spot on the World Cup qualifying roster.

An X-factor for the USWNT may be CATARINA MACARIO. Entering 2021, the Brazilian-born attacking midfielder and two-time MAC Hermann Trophy winner for Stanford had attended just one full USWNT event and was in the process of securing her eligibility to play for the United States, which she did prior to the USA's first matches of the year. She made her debut in the USA's first match of the year against Colombia, scoring minutes into her first start in the second match against Colombia, and would go on to play in 12 matches and make the 2020 Olympics Team. Bolstered by an excellent run of form for European power Olympique Lyon, she will be looking to make an even greater impact on the USWNT in 2022. JAELIN HOWELL, the second pick in the 2022 NWSL Draft by Racing Louisville, is coming off a second NCAA title with Florida State. She was a consistent performer for the USA at the Youth National Team levels, continued to blossom at Florida State and earned her first senior team cap at the end of 2020. Her athleticism and ball-winning give the USA even more depth at defensive midfield.

ASHLEY SANCHEZ, who helped the Washington Spirit win the 2021 NWSL title, earned her first senior team cap at the end of 2021 and will be looking to break into a crowded midfield.

While Carli Lloyd, one of the world's greatest all-time goal scorers, has retired, the USA is fortunate to be deep up top with both flank players and center forwards. MEGAN RAPINOE, who had one the most remarkable years any soccer player has ever enjoyed in 2019, showed her value with another quality year in 2021 that included a career high 10 goals in the calendar year while scoring two spectacular strikes in the Olympic bronze medal game. Despite some injuries, when healthy, TOBIN HEATH has played some of the best soccer of her career over the past three years. Already a magical player and a fan favorite, an in-form and healthy Heath and her unique skill set go a long way towards creating success for the U.S. team.

Veteran CHRISTEN PRESS has enjoyed a very nice run of impacting games with fantastic finishes and crafty assists over the past few years, consistently using her skills, speed and shooting ability to create danger. Press reached 50 career goals in 2019 and her score in the 2019 World Cup Semifinal will go down as one of the most important goals in U.S. history.

ALEX MORGAN missed almost all of 2020 while pregnant and following the birth of her daughter, but before that she had been in some of the best goal-scoring form of her career. She returned to the U.S. to score eight goals in 2021, making her the second-highest goal scorer in USWNT history as a mom, and showed flashes of the form that has long made her one most dangerous players in the world running at goal and inside the penalty area. She is now fifth on the USA's all-time goal scoring list.

The end of 2019 and what action the USA and the NWSL had in 2020 were a proving ground for LYNN WILLIAMS. Perhaps the fastest player in the pool, Williams is also one of the all-time leading scorers in NWSL history and had a match for the ages at the Olympics, getting a goal and an assist in the USA's quarterfinal win over the Netherlands in the quarterfinal. She will be looking to use her speed and scoring ability to make an even bigger mark on the USWNT in 2022.

MALLORY PUGH, who turned 23 in the spring of 2021, has struggled with injuries and form, but rebounded during the 2021 NWSL season where she was one of the league's most consistently dangerous players with the Chicago Red Stars. She still brings some special talents to the player pool along with experience and goals in an Olympics and a World Cup, and more than 60 caps. She will continue to push to show her pedigree as a speedy and creative attacking player.

SOPHIA SMITH, one of the USA's youngest players, is a veteran of the 2016 U-17 Women's World Cup and the 2018 U-20 Women's World Cup. She was also the 2017 U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year. Smith helped lead Stanford to an NCAA title in 2019 before turning pro as the top pick in the 2020 NWSL Draft and while she had a slow start to her pro career due to injuries and the pandemic, was one of the most dangerous forwards in the league with the Portland Thorns in 2021. With her tremendous speed and ability to run at goal and beat players in the attacking third, she is on the verge earning consistent minutes in crowded group of forwards. At the end of 2020, she debuted for the senior side against the Netherlands and became the first player born in the 2000s to earn a cap for the USWNT. She scored her first senior team goal in 2021.

Young forwards MORGAN WEAVER and BETHANY BALCER, who earned their first senior team caps in November of 2021 in Australia, 2021 NWSL Rookie of the Year TRINITY RODMAN, and ASHLEY HATCH, who scored in both games in Australia at the end of 2021 for her first two international goals, have all shown their talents in the league and will be looking to break into the USWNT more consistently in this important year for the program.

It is clear the USA has the foundation and talent to make a run at another World Cup title, but as is the case every year, the competition is constantly improving, and every opponent strives to give the Americans their best game. Fortunately, those are the kind of challenges the U.S. players relish as they aim to expand their national and international popularity while enhancing the profile of the women's game at home and abroad.

KATE MARKGRAF

General Manager: U.S. Women's National Team
Birthdate: August 23, 1976, in Pontiac, Michigan
Hometown: Bloomfield Hills, Michigan

Kate Markgraf was named as the first Head of Women's Soccer and General Manger in U.S. Women's National Team history on Aug. 12, 2019. In what was a newly created position, she took on the responsibilities of working with the head coach in creating, executing and monitoring technical plans for the U.S. WNT and all U.S. Youth National Teams, both short term and long-term. These plans are aligned with U.S. Soccer's Sport Development Programs while maintaining, creating and building partnerships and networks among the American and global soccer community.

Markgraf is charged with overseeing the technical and administrative staffs for all teams, managing the day-to-day activities around the teams, leading the planning of National Team activities, helping implement High Performance programs and representing U.S. Soccer and the Women's National Team at various events around the country and the world. Beyond the senior team, she is responsible for influencing the development of women's soccer within the Federation and the managing of the overall technical plan for the Women's National Team program which include the hiring of Youth National Team coaches and staff.

Markgraf came to U.S. Soccer after spending the previous eight years as a soccer commentator for ESPN and NBC as well as working in the academic arena. She represented the U.S. Women's National Team 201 times from 1998 through 2010, playing in three World Cup tournaments and three Olympics Games. She was a member of one World Cup winner (1999) and two Olympic champions (2004 and 2008). She is one of just 12 American female players to appear 200 or more times for her country and started at center back in six consecutive world championship events for the USA. She played in 16 World Cup matches and 16 Olympic matches in her career.

Known as a gritty defender with excellent speed and fitness, and an ability to dominate in the air, she started in 187 of her 201 caps. She was co-captain of the National Team during the latter part of her career. She famously scored her first and only international goal on Sept. 20, 2008, against Ireland, nailing a penalty kick to break her U.S. record scoreless streak of 192 games. She had eight career assists.

In 1999, she solidified her starting spot in the central defense, playing in 21 matches, including five of the 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup games when she was most inexperienced U.S. starter in the lineup. She experienced her WNT breakthrough in 1998, playing in her first 13 games for the full national team and starting both matches as the USA won the 1998 Goodwill Games gold medal. She earned her first cap on April 26, 1998 vs. Argentina and played in her last game on July 17, 2010 vs. Sweden.

As a youth player, she represented the USA at the Under-20 level. A four-year starter at Notre Dame, she started all 96 games in her career and was a three-time NSCAA All-American, twice earning First-Team honors. She scored seven goals with 24 assists in her four years at Notre Dame and captained the Fighting Irish as a senior. Her play at marking back during her sophomore year was instrumental in the Fighting Irish winning the 1995 NCAA championship and she was the Defensive MVP of the 1995 NCAA Final Four. She was a three-time All-Big East selection and the Big East Defensive Player of the Year as a senior.

At the professional club level, Markgraf played for the Boston Breakers in the WUSA, the first professional league in the USA, for all three years of its existence and then played a few matches for the Chicago Red Stars at the tail end of her career during the startup of the second pro league, the WPS. She also did a brief stint in Sweden with KIF Orebro DFF in 2005. At the youth level, Markgraf was a product of the Michigan Hawks club.

The former Kate Sobrero, she married former Providence College soccer player Chris Markgraf on Oct. 31, 2003 and started using her married name on the back of her jersey in 2004. They have three children, 15-year-old son Keegan, and twins Xavier, a son, and daughter Carson, both age 12. Markgraf came back to the National Team twice after the birth of her children, first after Keegan was born in 2006 and then briefly after twins Xavier and Carson were born in 2009.

In 2005, she was accepted into Northwestern Law School in Chicago and Northeastern Law School in Boston but deferred to continue her soccer career. She earned her degree in Science Business at Notre Dame.

After retiring from professional soccer, Markgraf went into the academic world. She holds two graduate degrees: a Master's in Kinesiology and a Master's in Educational Psychology from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Her research on elite athletes and the influence of Grit, a psychological metric predictive of success in elite domains, was the first of its kind and was published, with her as the co-author with her advisor, in the top Sport Psychology Academic Journal, the Journal of American Sport Psychology. Hometown: Kansas City, Missouri

Vlatko Andonovski (Ann-DON-ahv-skee) was named the ninth head coach in U.S. Women's National Team history on October 28, 2019.

Although his first full year as head coach was tremendously impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, Andonovski did win his first 11 games in charge, going 11-0-0 while setting a record for best start for any coach in USWNT history.

He coached his first two games at the end of 2019, defeating Sweden and Costa Rica, and before the sports world shut down, he won two tournaments at the beginning of 2020, leading the USA to titles at the 2020 Concacaf Women's Olympic Qualifying Championship and the 2020 SheBelieves Cup. The USA got in one more match in 2020, an impressive 2-0 victory against the Netherlands in Breda at the end of November.

In 2021, Andonovski led the USA to a 17-2-5 record and a bronze medal at the delayed 2020 Tokyo Olympics. The USA also won the 2021 SheBelieves Cup, sweeping Canada, Brazil and Argentina.

Through his first 26 months on the job, Andonovski called up 59 different players to take part in at least one training camp. Of those 59 players, 42 earned at least one cap. Through the end of 2021, Andonovski had had given 17 players their first senior team call-ups 10 players their first caps.

Andonovski, 45, came to U.S. Soccer after spending seven years as a head coach in the National Women's Soccer League (NWSL), five with FC Kansas City (2013-2017) and two with Reign FC (2017-2018).

He led FC Kansas City to back-to-back NWSL Championships in 2014 and 2015 and was twice named NWSL Coach of the Year, in 2013 and again after the 2019 season. He led his teams to the NWSL Playoffs in five out of the seven seasons he coached in the league.

During his time in the NWSL Andonovski coached numerous U.S. and foreign international players who have represented their countries on the highest stage. He had an overall record of 21-13-16 record with the Reign and 51-37-27 record at FC Kansas City, giving him an overall record of 72-50-43 in NWSL play. As of the end of the 2019 NWSL season, his total of 165 games coached in the NWSL ranked him first all-time and his 72 wins tied for 2nd all-time. He guided his teams to the playoffs five times and had a playoff record of 4-3.

Andonovski was born in Skopje, North Macedonia in the former Yugoslavia. As a player, he spent six years playing professionally in Europe as a center back with Macedonian clubs FK Rabotnički, Makedonija GP and FK Vardar, before coming to the United States to play professional indoor soccer. He played in European competition for Makedonija GP in the UEFA Intertoto Cup, which served as qualifying what is now known as the UEFA Europa League. He also played with the Macedonia Under-18 National Team.

Andonovski signed with the Wichita Wings of the National Professional Soccer League in 2000 and later played for the Kansas City Comets, California Cougars and Philadelphia Kixx of the Major Indoor Soccer League. With the Comets, he was named Defender of the Year in 2002 and the team's MVP in 2005. He was a two-time MISL All-Star.

In addition to his work with FC Kansas City, Andonovski also served as the head coach for the professional indoor Kansas City Comets from 2013-2016, winning the MISL title in 2014-2015 season, and compiled a 58-15 record in the MISL and later the Major Arena Soccer League. He was also an assistant coach with the Comets for the three seasons prior to becoming head coach.

WORLD CUP HISTORY

USA IN THE FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

At the beginning of another FIFA Women's World Cup cycle, the U.S. Women's National Team is once again widely regarded to be the most successful women's soccer team in history, with four FIFA Women's World Cup titles, one second-place finish and three third-place finishes.

In its eight Women's World Cup competitions, the U.S. is 40-4-6 in 50 total games and is the only nation to finish in the top three in each Women's World Cup (as well as the first four Olympics to feature women's soccer).

The USA's 2-0 victory against the Netherlands on Sunday, July 7, 2019, at Stade de Lyon marked the USA's record fifth appearance in a FIFA Women's World Cup Final and added a fourth star to the USA's jersey. The USA earned its way into the 2019 Final by blazing through its group in record fashion beating Thailand (13-0), Chile (3-0) and semifinalists Sweden (2-0) before combining tremendous skill, savvy and will to meet increasingly tough challenges from rising power Spain (2-1) in the Round of 16, World Cup host France (2-1) in the Quarterfinal and No. 3 ranked England (2-1) in an epic Semifinal showdown. Goals from Megan Rapinoe – the tournament's Golden Ball winner and Golden Boot winner as top scorer – and Rose Lavelle, the Bronze Ball winner, propelled the USA to victory in the championship game.

The USWNT booked its spot at the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup by rolling past Jamaica 6-0 in the semifinal of the 2018 Concacaf Women's Championship before winning its sixth Concacaf Women's Championship title when it blanked Canada 2-0 in the tournament final. The USA cruised through group play outscoring Mexico (6-0), Panama (5-0) and Trinidad & Tobago (7-0) by a combined 18-0.

In 2015, a tough group stage saw the U.S. tie former coach Pia Sundhage and Sweden before prevailing in a nail-biter against Nigeria, the WNT turned on the jets, storming to the 2015 FIFA World Cup title. Powered by captain Carli Lloyd's six knockout round goals, including three in the thrilling title rematch with Japan, the USA dashed past up-and-coming Colombia 2-0 before beating old foe China in the quarterfinal. A showdown with Germany loomed in the semifinal, but a penalty kick miss by Germany and subsequent make by Lloyd set the U.S. on the path to the final, and substitute Kelley O'Hara's late goal, courtesy of a Lloyd assist, cemented the WNT's passage.

The epic final of the 2015 World Cup featured a record-making performance from Lloyd that catapulted her to her first FIFA Women's World Player of the Year award. With a hat trick that featured a goal from inside her own half, Lloyd put the game away by the half hour mark as Lauren Holiday and Tobin Heath also notched goals in the 5-2 win vs. Japan that saw the USA become the first nation to win three World Cups.

The USA hit some bumps in the road on the way to the 2011 FIFA Women's World Cup, falling in the semifinal of the Concacaf Women's World Cup Qualifying Tournament at the end of 2010 before defeating Italy in a two-game playoff to earn the final berth to Germany. The Americans also lost two games during its World Cup preparation, but still headed into the tournament as one of the favorites. What transpired in Germany will forever be remembered as a breakthrough event for women's soccer as the U.S. team's dramatic run to the World Cup Final inspired a nation.

The USA opened the 2011 tournament with a hard-fought 2-0 win against Korea DPR in Dresden on second-half goals from Lauren Cheney and improbably, defender Rachel Buehler. That set the stage for a 3-0 demolition of Colombia that featured the entire team saluting the crowd after the opening goal by Heather O'Reilly in recognition of the large group of U.S. military and their families that helped sell-out the stadium in Sinsheim. The USA fell 2-1 to Sweden in its final group match in Wolfsburg, which sent them into a quarterfinal against Brazil back in Dresden. The drama and controversy-filled game featured the latest goal in Women's World Cup history: Abby Wambach's legendary header that sent the U.S. to a penalty kick shootout where it prevailed to reach the semifinal.

2022_WNTmg001-324(2-20).indd 140 2/20/22 3:24 PM

In the semifinal in Mönchengladbach, the USA ran into an extremely talented France team that dominated the match for stretches, but as the Americans often do at the highest levels, they found a way to win on a first half goal from Cheney, another Wambach header and a late clincher from Alex Morgan. The USA was by far the stronger team in the World Cup Final in Frankfurt, but let two leads slip away and fell in a penalty kick shootout to Japan.

Abby Wambach scored in the final four games – the first U.S. player to achieve such a feat in a World Cup tournament – and took over the U.S. career lead in Women's World Cup goals from Michelle Akers with her 13th in the championship game. Wambach and Morgan became the first U.S. players to score in the semifinal and final of a World Cup.

In 2007, the USA was riding a long unbeaten streak and held the world's top ranking heading into the FIFA Women's World Cup in China where they won perhaps the most difficult first-round group in the history of the tournament. In Group B, the USA drew with Korea DPR 2-2 in the opening match, and then got two goals from Abby Wambach in a must-win 2-0 victory over Sweden. With advancement to the quarterfinals still up in the air, the USA won the group with a hard-fought 1-0 victory over a vastly improved Nigeria. The American women then met up-and-coming England in the quarterfinal, and after an evenly played first 20 minutes, put together its best performance of the tournament, winning 3-0 and earning a place in the semifinals against Brazil. The semifinal marked a low point in U.S. history as the team suffered some heart-wrenching misfortune while scoring an own goal and seeing Shannon Boxx harshly sent off at the end of the first half. That combination of factors led to a 4-0 loss, the worst in U.S. history, and a spot in the third-place match. The USA rebounded wonderfully to win the bronze medal, rolling over Norway with a 4-1 score to end the tournament on a high note.

Considered the top team in the world heading into the FIFA Women's World Cup USA 2003, the defending champion U.S. was assured the title of tournament favorite after the competition was moved from China to the U.S. due to the outbreak of SARS. After rolling through group play with a 3-0 record and an 11-1 advantage in goal differential, the U.S. squeezed past rival Norway by a 1-0 margin in the quarterfinals. Then in Portland, Ore. – the only city in history to host a World Cup match in consecutive competitions – the U.S. was shocked by Germany, who scored two injury time goals in a 3-0 victory en route to winning it all and being crowned world champion. The U.S. was relegated to the third-place game. There, the Red, White and Blue made quick work of northern neighbor Canada 3-1, the same team that forced the U.S. to sudden death overtime in the Concacaf Women's Gold Cup final less than a year earlier.

The United States Women's National Team added to its prestige by becoming the first squad to host and win a Women's World Cup, when it downed China PR 5-4 in penalty kicks after battling to a 0-0 draw through regulation and overtime in the 1999 final. The match was played in front of a women's athletics record crowd of 90,185 on June 10, 1999 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. The winning penalty kick goal for the U.S. has become a pop culture moment in American history, with Brandi Chastain connecting on the shot and then celebrating the goal with a nation. The championship marked the USA's third major championship of the decade, including the 1991 Women's World Cup crown and the 1996 Olympic title.

The biggest disappointment for the U.S. Women in the 1990s came at the 1995 Women's World Cup in Sweden, when the team fell to arch-rival Norway in the tournament semifinals, 1-0. The defeat was the first ever for the USA in WWC play and helped Norway into the final where they downed Germany to take the crown.

In 1991, the U.S. won the inaugural FIFA Women's World Cup in China. The championship was the first for the USA in a FIFA competition and established the dominance that the U.S. women have continued to display at the international level. The United States was led by Michelle Akers, Carin Jennings and April Heinrichs, dubbed "the triple-edged sword." The trio combined to score 20 of the team's 25 goals in China, including all five (Jennings 3, Heinrichs 2) in a 5-2 semifinal victory over Germany and both goals (Akers) in a 2-0 win over Norway to win the title.

WOMEN'S WORLD CUP NOTES: The USA becomes the first country to win four FIFA Women's World Cup titles.

This is the third World Cup in which the USWNT has never trailed throughout the tournament, a feat also achieved in 1991 and 2015.

The U.S. is unbeaten in its last 17 Women's World Cup matches (14W-3D), winning the last 12 in a row. They are the only team to win 12 consecutive WWC matches, besting Norway's run from 95 to 99. Seven of the USA's 12 wins have been by multiple-goal margins.

After the win vs. the Netherlands, the USWNT is now 40-4-6 all-time in World Cup play, outscoring opponents 138-38 in 50 games. The 40 wins, 50 games-played and 138 goals scored are all FIFA Women's World Cup records.

The USA is 7-1-0 all-time against the Netherlands.

Megan Rapinoe is only the second player to start three Women's World Cup finals (2011, 2015, 2019), after Germany's Birgit Prinz (1995, 2003, 2007).

Megan Rapinoe won the Golden Ball as the best player in the tournament and the Golden Ball as the top scorer. Alex Morgan won the Silver Ball as the second-leading scorer and Rose Lavelle won the Bronze Ball as the third-best player.

The USWNT had nine different goal scorers at this tournament. Only the 2003 German team (10) and the 1999 American team (10) have had more at a single WWC.

The USA was only the third defending champion to reach the World Cup Final in the following tournament after winning the title – Germany did so in 2003 and 2007, while Japan accomplished the feat in 2011 and 2015.

The USA was the first team to reach three consecutive World Cup Finals and was only the second nation to repeat as champions after Germany did so in 2003 and 2007. The USA has reached a record five World Cup finals, winning four. The second most accomplished team, Germany, has been to three finals, winning two.

The USA scored in the first 12 minutes of each of its first six World Cup matches. Only in the World Cup Final did it fail to find the net early.

At the World Cup, the USA set a record for most goals in tournament history with 26, breaking its own record of 25, set in 1991 in six games.

The USA also set records for most goals in a single Women's World Cup match and largest margin of victory when it beat Thailand 13-0 in its Group F opener, a game that featured 10 second-half goals, also a record.

Alex Morgan tied the record for most goals in a single match when she scored five against Thailand, matching the feat of Michelle Akers against Chinese Taipei at the 1991 Women's World Cup in China.

Jill Ellis became the first coach to win two Women's World Cup titles. Italy's Vittorio Pozzo, who won the Men's World Cup in 1934 and 1938, is the only other coach to win two World Cup titles.

Rose Lavelle (24 years, 54 days) became the second-youngest American to score in a World Cup Final, trailing only Alex Morgan (22 years, 15 days) in 2011.

The USA was ahead in its World Cup games for 70.2 percent of the time. The Americans never trailed in their seven games and led for 442 of 630 total minutes.

Rapinoe's goal against the Netherlands made her the oldest player, at 34 years and two days, to score in a Women's World Cup Final. She broke teammate Carli Lloyd's record set in 2015. Lloyd was 32 years, 354 days old when she scored three times against Japan.

By scoring in the final four World Cup matches in 2015, and the first two World Cup matches in 2019, Carli Lloyd set a record for scoring in the most consecutive World Cup games.

WOMEN'S WORLD CUP NOTES: The USA became the first country to win three FIFA Women's World Cup titles.

Hope Solo, Julie Johnston, Meghan Klingenberg, Carli Lloyd and Megan Rapinoe were named to the FIFA Women's World Cup All-Star Team.

Carli Lloyd is the first woman in FIFA WWC to score a hat trick in a Final match and scored the fastest hat trick in Women's World Cup history.

Lloyd also became the third U.S. Woman to score a hat trick in WWC play: Carin Jennings Gabarra netted three goals against Germany in 1991 and Michelle Akers scored five against Chinese Taipei that same year.

Lloyd also became the first USWNT player to score in four straight games in a World Cup. She netted a goal against China, Colombia and Germany and three against Japan.

Lloyd's goal in the third minute was the fastest goal in a WWC Final game.

With her three goals against Japan, Lloyd became the first American to score in three major-tournament finals: 2012 Olympic gold medal game (2-1 win over Japan) and 2008 gold-medal match (1-0 over Brazil).

Midfielders Lauren Holiday and Tobin Heath each scored their first goals of the tournament in the final. It was Heath's first goal in a Women's World Cup.

The USA's five goals were the most any team has scored in a WWC Final. No other team has scored more than two.

The USA's two goals in the first five minutes of the match against Japan was first time any team scored twice in that span in a WWC game.

The USWNT finished this year's tournament with a 33-4-6 all-time record in Women's World Cup play, outscoring its opponents 112-35 in 43 games. The 33 wins, 112 goals scored and the 43 games played are FIFA Women's World Cup records.

WOMEN'S WORLD CUP NOTES: Abby Wambach, Hope Solo, Lauren Cheney and Shannon Boxx were named to the FIFA Women's World Cup All-Star Team.

Abby Wambach won the Silver Ball as the second best player in the tournament and the Bronze Boot as the third leading scorer. Hope Solo won the Golden Glove as the best goalkeeper and the Bronze Ball as the third best player.

By advancing to the championship game the USA kept intact its record of finishing in the top-three of all six Women's World Cup tournaments that have been contested.

Of the 21 players on the roster, 18 saw action. For 11 of those players, it was their first minutes in Women's World Cup play.

The USA's loss to Sweden was its first-ever in Women's World Cup group play.

The USA was the highest scoring team in the tournament with 13 total goals.

Abby Wambach scored four goals, all with her head, one each in the last four games, becoming the first U.S. player to accomplish that feat.

Her four goals upped her World Cup total to 13, moving her past the great Michelle Akers on the all-time U.S. World Cup scoring list.

Wambach and Alex Morgan became the first U.S. players to score in both a Women's World Cup semifinal and final.

Shannon Boxx sent off in 45th minute vs. Brazil on Sept. 27.

WOMEN'S WORLD CUP NOTES: Team captain and forward Kristine Lilly was the lone U.S. player named to the FIFA Women's World Cup All-Star Team.

With a draw and two wins in first-round play, the USA won what was widely considered one of the most difficult opening round groups in Women's World Cup history.

By defeating Norway 4-1 in the third-place match, the USA finished in the top three in all five Women's World Cup tournaments that have been contested, the only country to do so.

Abby Wambach scored six goals in the tournament, winning the Silver Shoe as the second-best scorer in the tournament. Her six goals gave her nine WWC goals for her career, second on the all-time U.S. list behind only Michelle Akers (12).

Of the 21 players on the U.S. roster, 10 saw action in their first Women's World Cup.

Heather O'Reilly became the 11th U.S. player to score multiple goals in her first Women's World Cup. Four of those players did so in 1991, when it was every player's first WWC.

FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP USA 2003 REVIEW

Originally scheduled for China from Sept. 23 to Oct. 11, the FIFA Women's World Cup 2003 was moved out of the country by FIFA on May 3 because of the threat of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome. In awarding the games to the United States on May 26, FIFA chose the United States over Sweden, the only other country besides the USA to make a formal bid to host the tournament.

While women's soccer has no doubt become more and more competitive, the group stage of USA 2003 went almost exactly according to script. Seven of the eight quarter-finalists from four years ago again advanced. Only Nigeria, who were the only side not to score a goal in the finals, did not make it through, stepping aside for Canada's advancement. Of the seeded teams, only Norway failed to win their group, bowing to the strong early play of Brazil. The U.S. Women's National Team lived up to its high expectations in opening the tournament with three authoritative wins in the tournament's most difficult group (downing Sweden, Nigeria and upstart Korea DPR). Sweden lost their first match but recovered to eventually fight their way into the finals.

In the knockout stage, Canada provided the tournament's biggest surprise with a well-earned 1-0 victory against China PR, sending the '99 finalist home early. The U.S., Germany and Sweden, who knocked off first-round darlings Brazil 2-1, also advanced to the final four. In the semifinals, the Swedes finally ended Canada's dreams with a dramatic come-from-behind 2-1 victory. In the other semifinal, Germany stunned the hosts, knocking the U.S. into the third-place match with two injury time goals en route to a 3-0 victory at PGE Park in Portland.

The U.S.-German match was widely hailed as one of the greatest in women's soccer history, surpassed in 2003 only by Germany's thrilling 2-1 sudden death victory over Sweden. That triumph saw Nia Kuenzer head home in the eighth minute of extra time to send The Home Depot Center into a frenzy of German joy and Swedish tears.

The U.S. closed out an ultimately disappointing tournament with an emphatic 3-1 victory over border-rival Canada in the third-place game. The match was never in doubt, with the U.S. seeing goals from Kristine Lilly, Shannon Boxx and Tiffeny Milbrett keep their perfect top three record in Women's World Cup play intact.

FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP USA 1999 REVIEW

The final Women's World Cup of the century launched the beginning a new era of success for women's soccer. For the first time, the tournament was expanded to 16 teams and was staged in huge stadiums across the host country, raising expectations for attendance, media coverage and television audiences; expectations which were reached, surpassed and then crushed.

The U.S. captured its second Women's World Cup Championship while thrilling a nation and becoming the story of the year. The team played in front of packed houses across the country, beginning with a crowd of 78,000-plus at Giants Stadium cheering the team to a 3-0 tournament opening victory over Denmark. The victory set a tone for the entire tournament. After fighting their way into the final with five victories, which included a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over Germany in the quarterfinals and a nail-biting 2-0 victory over Brazil in the semifinals, the U.S. battled China PR for a grueling 120 minutes before pulling out a breathtaking 5-4 penalty kick victory in the finals in front of a sell-out crowd of 90,125 fans at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena on July 10.

After a scoreless 90 minutes of regulation, China PR appeared to get the winner in the first 15-minutes of sudden-death overtime, but midfielder Kristine Lilly jumped high to head a shot clear of the goal. That save would lead to goalkeeper Briana Scurry and defender Brandi Chastain becoming heroes during the penalty kick tiebreaker. Scurry leaped off her line to save China PR's third shot, allowing Chastain to slam home the game-winning penalty kick goal. With the championship, the U.S. became the first nation to win the Women's World Cup on its home soil.

U.S. SOCCER INVESTMENT IN WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAMS PROGRAMS

U.S. Soccer has for many years been a world leader in its support of women's soccer, especially in the massive amount of resources and programming dedicated to its Women's Youth National Teams. U.S. Soccer has made an unprecedented commitment to developing world-class players and coaches with long-term success the main goal.

In 2015, U.S. Soccer adjusted its Youth National Team structure with a focus on three core areas: assessment, monitoring and identification, training and development, and competition. These areas serve as the foundation on which programming is built for all of U.S. Soccer's Youth National Teams.

When new WYNT programming was added in 2015 at the Under-19 and Under-16 levels, it gave U.S. Soccer Women's Youth National Teams at the U-14, U-15, U-16, U-17, U-18, U-19, U-20 and U-23 age groups, which mirrors the structure on the men's side.

The structure means that U.S. Soccer now has two tracks for players: one for players born in even years and the other for odd years. If a player was born in an odd year, which are the age-cut-off years for the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, her track through the U.S. Women's Youth National Team programs will be U-15 (two years), U-17 (two years) and U-19 (two years). Players born in even years, which are the age-cut-off years for the FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup, will follow the path of U-14 (one year), U-16 (two years), U-18 (two years) and U-20 (two years).

This two-track structure provides a more consistent development approach and increased opportunities for more players to participate. U.S. Soccer will continue to positively impact the development of players and coaches by implementing specific requirements based on best practices and environments for them to excel. U.S. Soccer will also provide increased education for coaching and guidance for its elite-level players.

U.S. WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM PLAYER IDENTIFICATION FRAMEWORK GROWS

Beginning in 2011, U.S. Soccer appointed a Technical Director and Development Director for the U.S. Women's National Teams, marking the first time U.S. Soccer had appointed full-time positions to oversee the Women's Youth National Team Program to oversee the Women's Youth National Team Program and overall development. Since that time, the USA's youth development set-up for women and girls has continued to grow and evolve.

In 2013, U.S. Soccer began adding full-time head coaches for its two Women's Youth National Teams that compete in Concacaf and FIFA tournaments. This marked the first time the head coaches of the U-17 and U-20 age groups were full-time positions. The addition of full-time Women's YNT head coaches continued in 2015 when U.S. Soccer brought in coaches to oversee the remaining levels of the Women's YNT program (U-18 and U-19).

In 2017, U.S. Soccer made full-time head coach hires for the U-15 and U-16 Women's Youth National Teams. Additionally, a head coach was added for the U-14 Women's Youth National Team program.

These coaches, along with the hire of full-time Talent Identification Managers, combined with other recent scouting initiatives, including U.S. Soccer YNT Identification Centers, have improved the process of identifying the top young female players in the United States to attend Youth National Team camps.

In November of 2017, U.S. Soccer also hired Mirelle van Rijbroek as the Director of Talent Identification to oversee the Talent ID Managers. Previously, U.S. Soccer hired Ellie Maybury in 2016 as the sports scientist for all its Girls' and Women's Youth National Teams, marking another positive step in player development from a physical standpoint. Maybury moved on to be Head of Performance for the USWNT and more sports science hires for the USA's Youth Girls' and Women's National Teams are pending.

These full-time coaches and Talent ID staff will work together to integrate all of the Women's Youth National Teams, helping players and systems connect from one team to the next. They will play major roles in connecting the philosophies of the WNT head coach through all the Women's Youth National Teams as well as relating those philosophies to the massive amount of girls' youth clubs in the United States. All U.S. Soccer coaches will focus on grassroots soccer within the youth club environment to convey the goals and philosophies of player development in order to help produce quality players for the National Team level.

U.S. SOCCER YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM ID CENTERS

YNT Identification Centers are no-cost identification opportunities for U.S. Soccer Talent Identification Managers to evaluate and monitor top youth soccer talents. U.S. Soccer, in conjunction with local clubs, endeavors to host approximately 100 training sessions each year in 25 key markets throughout the country. Talent Identification Managers assess the top players from different clubs and markets in different combinations, cross-referencing talent across the nation. Each YNT ID Center is conducted with a particular focus to ensure Talent ID staff sees the widest variety of players in different contexts. Over 5,000 boys and girls aged 13-16 attended U.S. Soccer YNT Identification Centers in 2018-19 before the pandemic hit and U.S. Soccer is hoping to reach those levels once again.

U.S. UNDER-23 WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM

Major Competition: U-23 Nordic Tournament, U-23 La Manga Tournament
Eligibility: Players born on or after Jan. 1, 1999
2021 International Record: 0-0-0 (Overall Record: 0-0-0)

STEPPING STONE TO THE FULL TEAM

The USA's oldest Women's Youth National Team moved from Under-21 to Under-23 in 2008. The change was in response to FIFA moving its oldest youth world championship for women from Under-19s to Under-20s, as well as a change in the Nordic Cup competition which became a U-23 event. The eight-team Nordic Cup, which was a staple of summer programming for this age group for years, ended its 19-year run in 2009. Without the competition, which had been organized annually by different Scandinavian countries, the U.S. U-23s have pursued other international competition, mostly in Spain and Scandinavia, and in recent years have attended a four-team Nordic Tournament.

The role of the U-23s in the overall development of USWNT players underwent some changes in 2009 with the start of Women's Professional Soccer (WPS) and again is being positively impacted by the National Women's Soccer League (NWSL). Many players years ago who would have been kept active and in the mix for the full National Team by competing with the U-23s are now playing in the domestic league or abroad. Therefore, the U.S. coaches will call up some professionals prior to the NWSL season and when they are released by their clubs, and will have more of a focus on the pros in the early part of the year before the beginning of NWSL preseason camps. During the NWSL season, more college players will likely get call-ups for the remainder of the spring and into the summer, as that time period falls during the heart of the club season.

The U.S. team has been active at this age group since 1989 (in its previous incarnation it was run as a U-20 program until 1998 and then morphed into a U-21 program until 2007) and has been consistently effective in helping prepare players for the step up to the Women's National Team. The vast majority of current Women's National Team pool players have competed for the U-21s or U-23s. The U-21s used to feature "overage" players in training camps and for the Nordic Cup tournament, but now all players who are age-eligible for the U-23s in 2022 must have been born on or after Jan. 1, 1999. This team serves a valuable role in helping bridge the large gap between college soccer and the National Team, and functions as an important development partner with the NWSL.

2022 U.S. U-23 WYNT PLAYER POOL – 99s, 00s, 01s

Following is the current player pool for the U.S. Under-23 Women's Youth National Team. The U-23 WYNT staff will use this pool of players for matches in 2022, but players from any age group in the U.S. Youth National Team programs may be called up for a U-23 event. The pool is constantly evolving, with new players being added and called-up. Numerous players eligible for the U-23 team are listed in the full National Team pool. Players born on or after January 1, 1999, are age-eligible for this year's U-23 WNT.

U.S. U-20s LOOK TOWARDS 2022 FIFA U-20 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

Now in its 11th cycle, the FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup has proven to be an invaluable development opportunity and legitimate proving ground for future stars. The USA's participation in the first nine events – of which the Americans have won three and finished in the top four three other times – gave an early glimpse of the program's up-and-coming young players, many of whom have gone on to make major impacts at the full international level. The first two tournaments were held as Under-19 events before FIFA moved it to a U-20 competition in 2006.

The 2020 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup was first delayed and then finally cancelled in November of 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, but FIFA awarded the 2022 tournament to Costa Rica, which would have hosted the 2020 event. The USA had already qualified for the 2020 World Cup by winning the Concacaf U-20 Women's Championship earlier in the year, sweeping all seven games while out-scoring the opposition, 44-1.

The USA beat host Dominican Republic in the semifinal, 6-0, to earn a World Cup berth and then down Mexico, 4-1, in the title game. Forward Mia Fishel set a U.S. record for most goals in a Concacaf qualifying tournament by smashing home 13 in just six games.

Due to the global pandemic, programming for this age group did not begin again until the end of 2021, when training camps in San Diego were conducted in October and November.

In 2018, the USA played in its ninth consecutive FIFA tournament at this level, going out before the knockout rounds when it tied eventual runner-up Spain, 2-2, in the final group game.

In the history of this tournament, the USA has lost just two knockout games in regulation time, bowing out in penalty kicks in three World Cups and falling in overtime to eventual champion Korea DPR in the semifinal in 2016. The USA won the tournament in 2002, 2008 and 2012, and lost in penalty kicks in the semifinal in 2006, the quarterfinal in 2010 and the quarterfinal in 2014. The USA also lost in regulation to Germany in the semifinal in 2006. The 2018 tournament marked the first time the USA had failed to get out of the group, albeit a difficult one with eventual championship game participants Japan and Spain.

Players eligible for the 2022 U-20 Women's World Cup which will be staged in the Concacaf region in Costa Rica, must be born on or after Jan. 1, 2002.

It is planned that the U.S. U-20 WNT will have the benefit of a preparation schedule that features numerous domestic training camps and some highly competitive matches abroad. The player pool features several players who are still age-eligible from the last cycle of U-20s plus some exceptional talent coming up through the ranks from the U.S. U-17, U-18 and U-19 Women's Youth National Teams.

THE HISTORY OF THE U-20 WYNT

Originally created in 1998 as an Under-18 program, the team moved up an age level to the U-19 level in 2001 in preparation for the first FIFA-sanctioned world championship for youth women, before becoming a U-20 program in 2005 for the first FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup that was held in 2006.

In 2020, Laura Harvey, one of the most successful coaches in the history of the NWSL, became head coach of the U-20 WYNT and guided the team through World Cup qualifying, winning the tournament in dominant fashion while out-scoring its opponents, 44-1 over seven games in a new tournament format. Unfortunately, the World Cup was cancelled due to the global pandemic.

In 2019, Mark Carr moved up in age groups from his job as head coach of the U-17 WNT and coached the U-20s for a year before moving on to a college coaching position. The USA played an excellent, albeit difficult schedule during the first year of the cycle and went 5-7-1, but the preparation set an important foundation for 2020 as the players faced several of the top youth programs in the world while picking up wins over China PR, Sweden, Germany, Japan and France. Sixty-seven players saw action in matches and 16 different players scored goals, as the coaches looked to narrow down the pool for the run to the 2020 World Cup.

In 2018, Jitka Klimkova took the USA through a difficult but successful preparation schedule for the World Cup that included a penalty kick loss in the title game of the Concacaf Women's U-20 Championship (after the USA had qualified by winning a semifinal shootout), as well as victories over the U-20 sides from France, England, Germany and Brazil. At the FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup in France, the USA fell to eventual champions Japan, 1-0, to start group play on the back foot, but then rallied for a 6-0 victory against Paraguay. The USA needed a victory against Spain in its final group game to advance, but ended up drawing, 2-2. The USA played 18 quality international matches during the year and posted an overall record of 12-2-4. The 2017 U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year, forward Sophia Smith, put in a stellar performance. She scored 15 international goals to up her career total to 23, the fourth-best in U-20 WYNT history. Twenty-seven players saw action in international matches during the year.

In 2017, Klimkova's first year at the helm, the U-20s played 12 matches against top teams and hosted the Women's Nike International Friendlies for the first time in conjunction with the Girls' Development Academy Winter Showcase. The preparation year for qualifying for the 2018 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup was highly productive as the USA compiled a 6-4-2 record which included wins against Norway, France, England, Germany and Finland. Thirty-eight players saw action in international matches and Civana Kuhlmann and Smith led the team with eight goals each while Smith was named U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year.

In 2016, the U-20s had a slew of competitive games in the run-up to the World Cup, defeating the U-23 teams from Sweden and Norway along the way. At the World Cup in Papua New Guinea, the U.S. topped its group by the slimmest of margins and reached the tournament semifinals with a win over regional rival Mexico. There, the USA fell in a hard-fought loss to eventual champion Korea DPR before finishing fourth overall. The team finished the year 8-5-4 overall record and a 7-5-4 mark in international matches. Mallory Pugh led the USA in scoring with six international goals.

In 2015, the U-20s had an excellent year of preparation and growth, going 14-2-2 overall and 10-1-1 in international matches. The USA defeated age group teams from Norway, Netherlands, Sweden, Mexico and Brazil, as well as two Spanish women's clubs before winning the 2015 Concacaf U-20 Women's Championship in San Pedro Sula, Honduras. The USA topped its group despite a 1-1 tie with Mexico in the opening game and then defeated the hosts in the semifinal to earn its berth to the Women's World Cup in Papua New Guinea. The USA defeated Canada, 1-0, in the title game to take the Concacaf championship.

In 2014, the U-20s had an exciting year while compiling an 11-1-1 international record (12-4-1 overall) that included a title at the Concacaf Women's U-20 Championship in the Cayman Islands. The USA met eventual champion Germany in its opening game of the 2014 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup and fell 2-0, but followed that with wins against Brazil and China to advance out of the group. The USA would fall in the quarterfinal in penalty kicks after a hard-fought match with Korea DPR.

In 2013, Michelle French took over the U-20s in a historic appointment as U.S. Soccer's first full-time head coach for this age level. A team in transition went 4-5-2 overall and 2-3-2 in international matches as the year was spent identifying talent and forming a player pool that would take the USA into the World Cup year.

Looking back at 2012, it was one of the best years ever for the U.S. program, as the team went 16-2-1 in international matches (17-2-2 overall) and won perhaps the most competitive U-20 Women's World Cup in history. The USA rolled through Concacaf World Cup qualifying to earn a berth to Japan by winning all five games by a combined score of 18-1 and pulled off a dramatic late-game comeback to defeat Canada by a 2-1 score in the championship match on a game-winner from Chioma Ubogagu.

U.S. head coach Steve Swanson fashioned a team that had speed and skill all over the field, which when combined with tremendous heart, gave the Americans a unique squad that overcame adversity to reach the top of the podium in Tokyo, Japan. The U.S. team featured several players with bright full National Team futures, and the victory further cemented the USA's youth programs among the best in the world. U.S. captain Julie Johnston, who would be named the U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year for 2012, won the Bronze Ball as the third-best player in the tournament, a rare honor for a defender.

Swanson took over the program in 2011. It served as a transition year for the U-20s as the team played only a handful of international matches, going 6-2-1 overall and 2-1-1 against other countries. Still, the year was highly productive as Swanson refined his player pool and started to develop a team that would go on to win the World Cup. He saw several veterans of the U-20 level continue to mature while numerous young players showed their ability to play and prosper at the international level. The schedule included two matches with the Japan U-20 squad, which the USA split with the visitors during a camp in Chula Vista, Calif.

In 2010, Jill Ellis led the team to a 16-3-5 overall record and 13-2-3 in international play, winning the title at the Concacaf Women's World Cup Qualifying Tournament in Guatemala. The U.S. team went undefeated against international competition until its final two friendlies before the U-20 Women's World Cup, then fell to Germany and Japan on a pre-World Cup trip to Germany. At the Women's World Cup, the USA was surprised by Ghana in the opener, a 1-1 tie, before rebounding to defeat Switzerland 5-0 and South Korea 1-0 to win the group and earn a berth in the quarterfinals. There, the USA played a hard-fought match against Nigeria with regulation time ending at 1-1. A scoreless overtime led to a shootout, where U.S. goalkeeper Bianca Henninger twice saved penalties that were ordered retaken and the USA fell in the shootout for what was then the earliest elimination in history for a U.S. team at a Women's World Cup. With five goals in the 2010 tournament and 10 in her U-20 career, Sydney Leroux became the USA's all-time leading scorer in U-20 Women's World Cup tournaments.

In 2009, Ellis led the team to a 9-2-3 overall record and 4-1-2 in international play as she narrowed down the player pool in preparation for Concacaf qualifying in early 2010. The schedule included wins against the Norway, England and Canada U-20 teams as well as draws with the always-talented France and Germany. Kelly Cobb, Maya Hayes and 2008 U-20 Women's World Cup star Leroux led the USA in scoring with six goals apiece in all matches.

In 2008, despite taking over as head coach from Ellis fairly late in the cycle, Tony DiCicco molded a team that would win the USA's seventh women's world title. DiCicco's side experienced some growing pains during the year, but it all came together in brilliant fashion during the Women's World Cup as the USA scored 12 goals and allowed just three, controlling every match (aside from a meaningless 2-0 loss to China in group play) on the way to a convincing 2-1 defeat of Korea DPR in the title game. The USA won three matches by 3-0 scores, including the quarterfinal against England, and then outplayed a talented German side to win the semifinal by a 1-0 score. Leroux became just the second U.S. player to win the Golden Ball at a FIFA event and also won the Golden Shoe as the tournament's top scorer with five goals. Alex Morgan also had a great tournament, scoring four times and winning the Silver Ball and the Bronze Shoe. Goalkeeper Alyssa Naeher was world class, allowing just one goal, that in the waning moments of the final match, a performance that earned her the Golden Glove as the tournament's top 'keeper. The U-20s finished 2008 with an overall record of 20-7-0 while going 14-4-0 in international games.

In 2007, Ellis took the team through some excellent preparation during the identification stage for this pool of players, eventually winning the silver medal at the Pan American Games in Rio de Janeiro, an achievement that included defeating the full Women's National Team of Canada in the semifinal, 2-1. In the gold medal game, the USA ran into a Brazilian buzzsaw in front of a packed house at the famed Maracana Stadium, but that experience served as a benefit to the players as they moved forward in their National Team careers the players as they moved forward in their national team careers. The U-20s finished 10-5-1 on the year, but four of those losses were to full Women's National Teams.

In 2006, the U.S. U-20s played a remarkable 50 matches before the 2006 FIFA U-20 Women's World Championship in Russia, eventually compiling an overall record of 39-10-7 for the year. The USA's 16-2-3 international record was stellar, although the year ended on a down note with a fourth-place finish at the world championship. The USA got some big-time goal production from several forwards during the year, including Jessica Rostedt (24 goals, 7 in international play), Lauren Cheney (21/9), Kelley O'Hara (20/10) and U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year Danesha Adams (18/7). The USA qualified for the world championship with an undefeated run at the Concacaf U-20 Women's Final Qualifying Tournament held in Mexico in January of 2006, downing the hosts 3-0 for a berth to Russia and beating Canada 3-2 in the championship game.

In 2005, the team had a quiet year of activity due to the transition of head coaches.

In 2004, under head coach Mark Krikorian, the USA went 17-7-2 and 11-5-2 in international matches, but lost its first ever match to a team in its age group, falling to Japan, 1-0. The USA finished second in Concacaf qualifying, falling 2-1 to Canada in the championship match, but had already secured a berth to Thailand by virtue of a clinical 6-0 win against Mexico in the semifinal. The USA put together four excellent matches to open the U-19 Women's World Cup, starting with a rousing 3-0 win against Korea Republic followed by a 4-1 domination of Russia. The USA finished group play with a hard fought 1-0 win against Spain. In the quarterfinal match against a plucky Australia, Angie Woznuk came off the bench to help set up the USA's two goals, both of which were assisted by Stephanie Lopez, sending the USA to the semifinal. There, the young Americans ran into a German wall. Tied 1-1 at halftime, the USA took control of the match's pace only to see the Germans score on a lightning counterattack. With the USA pressing forward, Germany scored another to secure the final 3-1 margin. The USA earned third-place honors with a 3-0 win against Brazil.

In 2003, the U-19s went 7-4-1 overall and 6-2-0 in international competition, getting wins against Mexico, Japan, Germany and Netherlands during the year.

In 2002, the U-19s went 22-2-2 overall and 17-1-0 in international matches, including six wins at the FIFA U-19 Women's World Cup in Canada. The victory in the title game of the first-ever U-19 WWC was another in a long line of "firsts" for the U.S. Women's National Team program, which includes the first Women's World Cup championship and the first Olympic gold medal. Team captain Lindsay Tarpley scored a 109th-minute "golden goal" against host Canada to win 1-0 on Sept. 1, 2002, in front of 47,784 fans at Edmonton's Commonwealth Stadium.

In 2001, the USA went 10-4-4 overall and 4-0-1 in international matches as the nucleus of the 2002 World Championship team started to form.

Under Steve Swanson in 2000, the U-18s went 10-2-3, including 3-0-2 in international competition, all against senior Women's National Teams.

The first season of U-18 competition in 1999 was a banner year, as the team went 14-0-3 overall and 8-0-2 internationally, winning a gold medal in the Pan American games to clinch an unprecedented "treble" for the U.S. Women's National Team, which also won gold at the 1999 Women's World Cup and U-21 Nordic Cup.

Shannon Cirovski, a veteran of the USA's 1991 Women's World Cup championship team, was the first coach of the U-18s but stepped down to take the head coach position at the University of Maryland. She coached the U-18s halfway through 1999 before U.S. Women's National Team assistant coach Jay Hoffman took the reins and guided the team to gold at the Pan Am Games in Winnipeg, Canada.

In its 24 years of competition as a U-18, U-19 and now a U-20 team, the program has compiled an all-time international record of 187-47-33 and has lost just 35 games to teams in its age group.

TRACEY KEVINS

U.S. Under-20 Women's Youth National Team Head Coach
Born: September 23, 1974, in London, England
Hometown: London, England

Tracey Kevins was named head coach of the U.S. Under-20 Women's Youth National Team on Oct. 18, 2021, after serving as the U.S. Under-17 Women's Youth National Team head coach for one cycle, a cycle in which both the Concacaf qualifying tournament and the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup were cancelled due to the global pandemic.

Kevins joined U.S. Soccer full-time in June of 2017 as the head coach for the U.S. Under-15 Girls' National Team and transitioned to the head coach of the U-17 WYNT in 2019 with the task of qualifying the team for the 2020 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup.

The U-17s played just two matches in 2020 before the COVID-19 pandemic hit, forcing the cancelation of the World Cup qualifying tournament, all of team's programming, and eventually the World Cup tournament itself. Kevins will now focus on coaching many of the players who were a part of her U-17 group in a quest to qualify for the 2022 FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup in Costa Rica.

Kevins came to U.S. Soccer from the Seattle Reign in the NWSL where she served as an assistant coach for a season-and-a-half before joining U.S. Soccer. With the Reign, in addition to her coaching and scouting duties for the NWSL squad, she was also the Technical Director for the Seattle Reign Academy where she was responsible for overseeing five head coaches and their teams.

Kevins will work closely with U.S. Under-19 and Under-18 Women's Youth National Team head coaches to maximize the development, evaluation and movement of players between the age groups for training camps and matches during the World Cup cycle.

Since 2013, Kevins has been coaching at U.S. Soccer Training Centers, first in the Los Angeles area and then in the Northwest, helping to identify and assess players for potential call-ups to the USA's Youth National Teams.

From October of 2013 through December of 2014, Kevins was coach for the L.A. Blues in the USL W-League, guiding the club to a 15-0-0 record and a national championship. Eight players on the team were taken in the 2015 NWSL Draft. Before that, she coached the LA Strikers in the W-League. She was also a coach and mentor for LA Premier Soccer Club from 2013-2016.

From 2004-2013, Kevins worked for the England Football Association as an assistant coach for various age group National Teams, working with the U-15, U-17, U-19 and U-20 squads. On occasion, she served as head coach for the U-17 and U-19 England Women's National Teams during tournaments and training camps.

She was an assistant coach for the England team that finished second at the 2007 U-19 Women's Euros and with the team that finished in the top four in 2008. She was also an assistant coach at the 2008 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup in Chile.

During her coaching career in England, she also served as the head coach for the first team at Barnet FC Ladies from 2004-2013 and helped the club win the FA Women's Premier League Cup in 2011. She was also the Barnet FC Academy Head Coach for 16 to 19-year-olds from 2008-2013.

From 2008-2013, she was also the technical director for the Middlesex FA Girls' Centre of Excellence, where she worked with talented young players from ages 7-17 at one of the 30 licensed Centres of Excellence in England. FIFA UNDER-20 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP REVIEW

The U.S. Under-19/U-20 Women's National Team has participated in all nine FIFA World Cups for this age group. The USA won the inaugural title in 2002 in Canada, finished third in 2004 in Thailand, took fourth in 2006 in Russia, reclaimed the crown in 2008 in Chile, got knocked out in the quarterfinal round in penalty kicks in Germany in 2010 and then rebounded to win its third title in 2012 in Japan. In 2014, the USA fell in penalty kicks in the quarterfinal and in 2016 returned to the semifinal round but would finish in fourth place. In 2018, the USA just missed out on the quarterfinals, finishing group play behind the eventual tournament champion and runner-up. The 2020 tournament was first moved and then later cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic, with 2020 host Costa Rica being granted rights to host in 2022. In 2006, the competition moved to the Under-20 level, bringing it in line with the men's FIFA U-20 World Cup.

USA FALLS A GOAL SHORT OF ADVANCEMENT IN FRANCE (2018)

In 2018, the USA became one of four teams to qualify for all nine FIFA Women's World Cups at this level. Drawn into a group with the eventual tournament champion Japan and runner-up Spain, the USA fought until the end, but finished third in Group C and failed to reach the knockout round for the first time. After falling to Japan 1-0 on a long-range goal in its opening match, the USA rolled past Paraguay 6-0 to put itself in position to qualify with a victory in its final group stage match. While the U.S. fell behind early to Spain, the Americans roared back late to draw even at 2-2 but were unable to create a game-winner that would have clinched a spot in the quarterfinals.

In the tightly-contested opening match against Japan, both teams struggled to find their rhythms offensively. While the U.S. out-possessed and out-passed Japan, the Asian champion broke through in the 76th minute, as Honoka Hayashi unleashed a well-hit shot from distance that struck the underside of the crossbar and bounced into the net. Sparked by the deficit, the USA searched for an equalizer and produced a number of quality chances in the last 15 minutes. While Jaelin Howell put two dangerous headers on frame during the game's final stretch, the Japanese defense kept the U.S. off the board.

Needing a convincing result to keep its quarterfinal hopes alive, the U.S. delivered an emphatic victory against Paraguay in its second group stage match. With its attack in full force, the USA created chances early and often, outshooting Paraguay 27-7. Sophia Smith started things off for the U.S. in the 15th minute with a remarkable run through the Paraguayan defense and a nifty finish, while Savannah DeMelo opened the floodgates late in the first half, netting twice in five minutes. Ashley Sanchez added a goal on the other side of halftime, while Smith, who spent the afternoon running roughshod through the South American defense, bagged a brace in the 63rd. DeMelo capped off the scoring in the 78th to complete a hat trick, the USA's fourth in U-20 World Cup history, and a number of near-misses down the stretch could have made the score-line even more lopsided in a dominant showing.

The USA went into its final match against Spain needing a win to secure a spot in the knockout round. A misplayed clearance set Spain up for an early goal and La Roja doubled its lead off of a set piece just before halftime. Down 2-0, the U.S. rallied late in the second half, working to get back in the game during the final 20 minutes. After a number of dangerous forays into the Spanish final third, the USA finally broke through in the 82nd minute off of a free kick from Smith. Pressing for an equalizer, DeMelo added her fourth goal of the tournament in the 87th to draw the USA even, but the USA could not get another goal.

CHARACTER, COMEBACKS AND SLIM MARGINS IN PAPUA NEW GUINEA (2016)

In 2016, the USA played in its eighth consecutive FIFA tournament at this level, winning the most difficult group in the competition by the slimmest of margins. Led by 2016 Olympian Mallory Pugh, who captained the U.S. team in the exotic locale of Papua New Guinea, the USA opened the tournament with a hard-fought 0-0 tie against a very talented France side that would go on to advance to the championship game. The USA then defeated New Zealand 3-1 on goals from Pugh, 17-year-old Ashley Sanchez (who became the first player to score in a U-17 and U-20 Women's World Cup in the same cycle) and substitute Ally Watt, who bagged an insurance score later in the match.

A wild dipping shot from distance (which was officially called an own goal as it hit off the post and then the hands of U.S. goalkeeper Casey Murphy) opened the scoring for Ghana in the final group match, but the USA promptly answered back as Pugh scored two minutes later. The eventual 1-1 draw with a tough, physical Ghana team tied the USA with France on every tie-breaker except the last one – Fair Play points – and with the USA receiving no yellow cards in group play while France received one, the Americans won the group and advanced to the quarterfinal against Mexico.

In that match, Mexico took the lead in the 64th minute on a well-struck free kick, forcing the USA to mount an epic comeback. Watt, playing the role of super sub once again, tied the game in the 81st minute off a superb pass from Sanchez. After some end-to-end play produced chances for both teams near the end of regulation, it was Sanchez who set up the game-winner three minutes into stoppage time with a brilliant dribble and pass from the right wing. She beat a defender around the corner, got to the end line and played a pass back on the ground that was dummied by Pugh and rolled to the crashing Kelcie Hedge, who had entered the game in the 68th minute. Near the right edge of the six-yard box, Hedge spun her first-time shot off the foot of a defender from about eight yards out and it settled into the lower left corner for the game-winner.

The tremendous talent and overall strength of the Asian teams was on display in the semifinal round. The USA met eventual champion Korea DPR in the semifinal and played an excellent first 30 minutes, but as the match wore on, the technical savvy and power of an organized Korea DPR team put the USA on its heels. In the 51st minute, the Koreans got their goal from the penalty spot after U.S. midfielder Katie Cousins was whistled for a handball while blocking a shot and Jon So Yon converted her spot kick.

The Americans kept fighting and, as they'd done all tournament, got a goal when they needed one. As the game entered the 89th minute, forward Jessie Scarpa cut back on her defender from the left wing and sent a cross into the penalty area for Pugh. She took a hard touch and it bounced off a defender, then back off Pugh, before a Korea defender made a poor clearance. Defender Natalie Jacobs came flying through to hit an athletic left-footed, first-time volley that looped into the right side of the net to tie the game.

Due to the cooling breaks and several injuries in the stifling heat, seven minutes of stoppage time were added to the end of the match that saw some wild end-to-end play. The USA was forced to play the last four minutes of stoppage time with 10 players when Watt, its fastest player, had to go out injured after the Americans had already made their three allowed substitutes in regulation. After the USA dodged a few quality scoring chances from Korea DPR in second half stoppage time, U.S. head coach Michelle French was able to utilize the new rule allowing for a fourth sub in overtime and sent on Courtney Peterson for Watt.

Korea DPR wasted no time going ahead, however, creating a very nice goal less than a minute into the first overtime. The USA tried to push for a second equalizer and battled with tremendous heart until the end, but a clearly fatigued U.S. team could not find the net again.

The U.S. team expended a tremendous amount of energy in the tournament but still had enough left in the third-place match to hold a supremely talented Japan without a goal – with Murphy making several excellent saves along the way -- until the 87th minute, when Golden Boot winner Mami Ueno looped in the game-winner from the left side of the penalty box.

Although the USA did not get on the podium, the tournament did showcase some bright young stars, most notably Pugh, Sanchez and Murphy. At the time, the third-place match was just the second game the USA had lost in regulation time in its history at this tournament.

THE PAIN OF PENALTIES, AGAIN (2014)

The 2014 FIFA U-20 Women's World cup opened with a rare meeting between the 2012 finalists. This time, Germany came out on top, scoring two second half goals to down the USA in the first game of Group B. The Americans rebounded with two wins by shutout over Brazil and China PR to earn second place in the group and a spot in the quarterfinal.

Forward Lindsey Horan, the first professional to represent the USA in the U-20 Women's World Cup, showed why she was one of the world's best young players, scoring three of the four goals over the final two group matches. Her goal against Brazil in a tremendously hard-fought match came with eight minutes left to play. Rose Lavelle added a clinching score against China during a 3-0 victory in Moncton, Canada.

The USA's first three games were played on artificial turf, but on grass in Toronto at BMO Field, the USA met the North Koreans in the quarterfinal, the same country it had beaten at this stage four years ago. This time the Koreans turned the tables in a competitive match that saw Makenzy Doniak open the scoring for the USA in just the sixth minute. North Korea tied the game on a penalty kick in the 65th minute and the teams played scoreless through the rest of regulation and overtime.

Unfortunately, the USA missed its first three penalty kick attempts. While Stephanie Amack converted on the fourth try, the Americans had dug themselves too deep a hole and the Koreans prevailed 3-1 in the shootout, sending the USA home before the semifinal for just the second time.

Through this tournament, the USA had only lost one knockout match in regulation time in the seven tournaments, that coming to Germany in the 2004 semifinal.

TOP OF THE PODIUM IN TOKYO (2012)

The 2012 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup in Japan was a triumph of American spirit as well as Japanese character. The hosts organized a fantastic tournament on short notice after it was moved from Uzbekistan and then captured the attention of the nation with some tremendously attractive soccer played with unabashed joy. The Japanese fell to the powerful Germans in the semifinal (after giving up three goals inside of 20 minutes) while the USA defeated a talented Nigeria team to make the World Cup Final and then triumphed 1-0 on a goal from speedy attacker Kealia Ohai.

What made the USA's march to the tournament title even more special was the adversity the team faced in group play. After a convincing 4-0 opening game victory against Ghana, featuring a hat trick from Maya Hayes, the USA tied China PR 1-1 and then got smashed by Germany, 3-0.

Those results gave the Americans a remarkably tough road to the championship as they would have to defeat three group winners along the way. First up was a Korea DPR side that featured 10 players from its 2012 London Olympic Team. Seven North Koreans who played against the full U.S. Women's National Team at the Olympics during the USA's 1-0 group play victory at Old Trafford in Manchester, England, played against the U.S. U-20s in the quarterfinal, and the Koreans came into the game with a tournament-high 15 goals. The USA got a wonder-strike from distance from Vanessa DiBernardo and an overtime header from Chioma Ubogagu to earn the hard-fought 2-1 win and a berth to the semifinal against Nigeria, the country that had knocked the USA out of the U-20 World Cup two years earlier in the quarterfinal stage.

The Americans played a tremendous match against Nigeria in the 2-0 victory, getting a header goal from Morgan Brian and a strike off a beautiful run from Ohai. That victory earned the USA another shot at Germany, which made the championship game without allowing a goal in its previous five games of the tournament.

The USA ruined Germany's perfect record just before halftime as Crystal Dunn's dynamic run with the ball down the right flank in the 44th minute set up Ohai for what would be the game winner.

The USA played stout defense in the second half, led by center backs Cari Roccaro and Julie Johnston – who would win the Bronze Ball as the third best player in the tournament – and got several clutch saves from goalkeeper Bryane Heaberlin to earn the historic victory.

THE PAIN OF PENALTIES IN GERMANY (2010)

If the 2010 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup proved anything – besides Germany's dominance at home – it's that the African teams were getting stronger. The USA drew 1-1 with both African sides it faced and was knocked out of the tournament at the quarterfinal stage.

The USA started the tournament with a tie against a tough Ghana side, although the Americans had plenty of chances to win the game, firing 25 total shots with only Sydney Leroux finding the back of the net with 20 minutes left. The young Americans rebounded to defeat Switzerland, 5-0, in its second match as Leroux notched a hat trick, the first for an American woman in a Women's World Cup since 1991 and just the third-ever for a U.S. player.

The USA then faced the Korea Republic with the group title on the line and edged the talented Koreans, 1-0, as Leroux once again found the net. That set up a quarterfinal match with Nigeria, a physical side which somehow racked up 26 fouls (with four yellow cards) to the USA's five. The Americans scored early through Amber Brooks, but gave up a bomb from distance just 11 minutes from the end of the game. The USA once again had plenty of chances to win the game, including a few in overtime, but Nigeria managed to fire a remarkable 31 shots with U.S. goalkeeper Bianca Henninger making 14 saves.

The match went to penalty kicks and U.S. U-20 veterans Christine Nairn and Leroux missed the USA's first and fourth kicks, respectively, while Nigeria made all four, but not without controversy. Henninger twice saved the shot of Nigeria's third kicker, only to have both wiped away and ordered retaken by the referee. Nigeria finally tallied on its third chance.

Leroux's five goals, which won her the Bronze Shoe as the third-leading scorer in the tournament, combined with the five she scored in 2008 in Chile, gave her the most for a U.S. player in U-20 Women's World Cup history. Henninger, who gave up just two goals in the tournament, won the Golden Glove as the best goalkeeper in the competition.

GLORY REGAINED IN CHILE (2008)

The 2008 U.S. Under-20 Women's World Cup Team put together one of the most complete performances ever for a U.S. team at a world championship event, scoring 12 goals while allowing just three on the way to a glorious 2-1 title game victory over defending U-20 world champions Korea DPR. The fans in Chile adopted the U.S. team during the tournament as the players had once-in-a-lifetime experiences during the first-ever FIFA Women's World Cup in South America.

Forwards Sydney Leroux and Alex Morgan had fantastic tournaments, accounting for nine of the USA's 12 goals. The USA took home an unprecedented amount of hardware as Leroux won the Golden Ball as the best player in the tournament and the Golden Shoe as the top scorer with five goals. Morgan, who scored four times, won the Silver Ball and the Bronze Shoe while goalkeeper Alyssa Naeher, who allowed just one goal over the five brilliant matches in which she played, took home the Golden Glove. The USA also won the FIFA Fair Play Award.

The U.S. started off with two convincing 3-0 wins over France and Argentina. With the top spot in the group locked up after just two matches, DiCicco played numerous reserves in the third group game against China PR, a 2-0 loss.

The Americans rolled to a 3-0 win against England in the quarterfinal as captain Keelin Winters scored on a fantastic header to get things started. The Americans then out-battled the Germans, getting an own goal on a cross from Nikki Washington as well as a hustling slide from Leroux.

The win set up a championship game meeting with Korea DPR. Leroux scored a fantastic goal from distance in the 23rd minute and Morgan added another brilliant long-range strike just before halftime that goes down as one of the greatest ever goals for a U.S. player in a world championship final. The dangerous Koreans attacked with fervor, but the U.S. defense stayed strong, led by center backs Nikki Marshall and Lauren Fowlkes. The Asian champions did pull a goal back in the second minute of second half stoppage time, but the Americans would lift the trophy in front of an appreciative crowd in Santiago.

UNFORTUNATE FOURTH IN RUSSIA (2006)

The USA's 2006 U-20 team disappointed in its results at the world championship in Russia, taking fourth and becoming the only U.S. women's team to finish out of the top three at a FIFA world championship. The U.S. team had played 50 matches against national teams, colleges and women's clubs in 2006 leading into the world championship and had never failed to score at least one goal, but somehow could not muster one in the semifinal or third place match, which both went to penalty kicks. The U.S. team had kicks to win both games only to miss, and then miss the next as well.

In group play, the USA struggled a bit early as U.S. head coach Tim Schulz utilized his entire roster. The U.S. U-20s opened the tournament with a 2-1 win over minnow DR Congo. The young Americans then defeated Argentina 4-1 in a match that could easily have seen more U.S. goals, and put together a quality performance in the final first round match to defeat France 1-0 on a goal from Jessica Rostedt.

In the quarterfinal round, the USA looked to be the favorite after trouncing defending champion Germany 4-1 as Danesha Adams scored twice, but then came the scoreless semifinal and third-place match against China PR and Brazil, respectively, and the painful penalty kick shootouts.

Standouts on the U.S. team included Adams, a midfielder/forward, who won the Bronze Ball as the third-best player in the tournament, as well as goalkeeper Val Henderson and midfielder Amanda Poach, who along with Adams made the All-Tournament Team. Flank defender Tobin Heath and flank midfielder Kelley O'Hara (two goals) also had fine tournaments for the USA.

This U.S. team featured several players with bright futures on the full National Team, including forwards Amy Rodriguez (who scored twice in her second youth world championship), Lauren Cheney, Heath and Stephanie Lopez.

TAKING THIRD IN THAILAND (2004)

The 2004 U.S. U-19 Women's National Team was going to be hard-pressed to live up to the standards set by the 2002 squad, which won the first-ever world youth championship for women while rolling over the competition in Canada, but amazingly, they almost did. Featuring four players from the 2002 squad, the 2004 team in Thailand put on one of the finest displays of soccer ever seen by a U.S. team in a world championship to win a difficult Group C that featured Asian champion Korea Republic, European champion Spain and Russia.

The USA opened the tournament with a 3-0 victory over Korea Republic, scored in just the second minute in a 4-1 victory over Russia and finished group play with a highly professional 1-0 win over Spain as Jessica Rostedt provided the lone goal. The USA dominated Australia 2-0 in the quarterfinals as Angie Woznuk came off the bench to help create both goals, but ran into a wall in the always tough and talented Germans in the semifinal and fell 3-1 to end its dreams of a second world youth title. The young U.S. team rebounded remarkably well in the Third-Place match, taking out Brazil 3-0 despite the South Americans featuring the virtuoso attacking duo of Marta and Cristiane from their silver-medal winning team at the 2004 Olympics.

It was a breakout tournament for Woznuk, the USA's dynamic attacking midfielder, who won the Silver Ball as the second Most Valuable Player and the Bronze Boot as the third-leading scorer in the competition despite battling a foot injury throughout. A new wave of talented American strikers also emerged as 17-year-old Amy Rodriguez scored two goals while 18-year-old Rostedt and 19-year-old Megan Rapinoe scored three goals each.

Like she did for the 2002 U-19 squad, goalkeeper Ashlyn Harris played every minute and was once again stellar, sealing her status as one of the top young goalkeepers in the world. Harris earned All-Tournament recognition along with Woznuk and center-back Becky Sauerbrunn, who teamed with Rachel Buehler to form a bruising partnership in the middle of the U.S. back line. Left back Stephanie Lopez also showed signs of future U.S. stardom while the USA was awarded the FIFA Fair Play Award, getting just two yellow cards in the tournament.

HISTORIC WIN IN CANADA (2002)

In the first FIFA tournament for U-19s, under the most adverse conditions and on the biggest of stages, the U.S. Under-19 Women's National Team achieved one of the most historic victories in U.S. Soccer history, defeating host Canada 1-0 on Sept. 1, 2002, in front of 47,784 fans at Commonwealth Stadium in Edmonton, Alberta, to win the 2002 FIFA Under-19 Women's World Championship.

This unique group of teenagers represented the first young women in U.S. history with the opportunity to play in a sanctioned FIFA world championship. They embraced that challenge, played the semifinal and championship game in front of massive crowds and a world-wide TV audience, and came out champions, showing with unbridled emotion that all young girls in the United States could look forward to the chance to be a world champion as a youth player.

On the field, the young U.S. players had to maintain their composure in the championship game, played in front of a massive Canadian crowd, awash with red-and-white flags. Substitute Megan Kakadelas created the winning goal by curving a cross on the ground into the penalty area late in overtime. The ball was kept alive by a darting Heather O'Reilly, who crashed into a defender on a hard near post run. The ball squirted across the goalmouth to U.S. captain Lindsay Tarpley who pounded a shot into the net from close range to end the game.

With the win, the U-19s added another first to the glorious history of the U.S. Women's National Team program, which claimed the first Women's World Cup and the first Olympic gold medal for women's soccer. The USA rolled through Group play, defeating England 5-1, Australia 4-0 and Chinese Taipei 6-0, before blasting Denmark 6-0 in the quarterfinal match. The USA fell behind 1-0 to Germany in the semifinal, before storming back to win 4-1 on two goals from Wilson, one from Tarpley and one from defender Jill Oakes.

Tarpley was awarded with the Bronze Boot as the third leading scorer in the tournament with six goals while Kelly Wilson earned the Silver Boot as the tournament's second-leading scorer with nine goals in just five games. Wilson also picked up the Bronze Ball as the third most valuable player in the tournament.

The victory was the end of a glorious two-year run to the tournament in which the first crop of U-19s went 21-1-1 in international competition and formed a family bond that carried them past an excellent and tough Canadian team, and their massive fan support, to the first-ever world championship for youth women.

"The journey not only made us better players, but it showed us that great things can be accomplished through hard work, love and belief," said Tarpley, who two years later would score for the USA in the Olympic gold medal match. "Over the last two years, we've had some amazing times on the soccer field, but it's the friendships we'll carry forever. I know we will look back at this 20 years from now with the same feelings for each other that we have now. We'll remember the day we became world champions together."

U.S. UNDER-19 WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM SUPPORTS U-20s

The U.S. Under-19 Women's Youth National Team was re-instituted in 2015. Prior to that year, the last time U.S. Soccer had programming at the U-19 level was 2004, which was the year that the final FIFA Women's World Cup was held at the U-19 level before it moved to U-20 in 2006. Since then, the U-19 age level had basically been a part of the U-20s. In 2015, as part of an overall commitment to player development, new programs at the U-16 and U-19 levels were started back up and U.S. Soccer now has a total of eight Youth National Teams for both its men's and women's programs: U-14, U-15, U-16, U-17, U-18, U-19, U-20 and U-23.

These additions create two separate programming tracks for even-birth-year players and odd-birth-year players, allowing for a more consistent approach toward development and additional opportunities for players to participate in National Team events and matches.

Although the U.S. Under-19 Women's Youth National Team will never again compete for a world title, it has a rich history. In 2002, led by future Women's National Team stars Heather O'Reilly, Lindsey Tarpley and Lori Chalupny as well as numerous players who went on to successful professional and international careers, the U-19 WYNT won the first World Cup title for youth women in a tournament played in Canada. The final U.S. U-19 Women's World Cup Team, also featuring many players who would go on to successful careers, finished third at the 2004 FIFA U-19 Women's World Cup in Thailand.

Players from the pool for the U-19s will be brought to several training camps over the course of the year in order to expose more players of this age to the National Team camp environment as well as give activity to the younger group of players in the pool competing for spots on the FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup Team. The player pool is identified on a year-round basis, through U.S. Soccer YNT Identification Centers, club soccer, ODP interregional events and younger Women's Youth National Team camps.

Camps are often scheduled to run concurrent with other YNT camps to give the players an opportunity to watch and play against older players and learn through those experiences.

Players in this year's group of U-19s are born on or after Jan. 1, 2003. Players age-eligible for the 2022 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup are those born on or after Jan. 1, 2002.

2022 U.S. UNDER-19 WYNT PLAYER POOL – 03s

Following is the current player pool for the U.S. Under-19 Women's Youth National Team. U.S. Soccer re-established this age group in 2015 after not having a U-19 WYNT since 2004, which was the year of final U-19 Women's World Cup after before FIFA changed to a U-20 event. This group of players will, for the most part, be used by the U.S. U-19 WYNT head coach and coaching staff for training camps and matches in 2022. Players born in 2003 make up this year's U-19 WYNT player pool and are age-eligible 2022 FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup. The pool is constantly evolving, with new players being added and called-up. In addition, members of U-19 pool will often be called to U-20 WYNT camps and members of the U-17 and U-18 National Team Pools may be called-up to the U-19s.

U.S. UNDER-18 WOMEN'S NATIONAL TEAM BRIDGES GAP

In 2008, the U.S. Under-18 Women's Youth National Team was reinstituted (after having existed from 1998-2001) to give international competition to players who have just finished a cycle with the U.S. U-17s but are a year away from the next U-20 cycle.

This year's group of players, primarily born in 2002, will likely have several domestic training camps and an international trip. Several of the U-18s may be called into U-19 or U-20 events as that group of players enters more intense preparations for the 2022 FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup.

The U-18s are an important part of the U.S. Women's National Team program that now fields teams at the U-14, U-15, U-16, U-17, U-18, U-19, U-20, U-23 and full Women's National Team levels. The structure mirrors the men's side (which sends its U-23 team to the Olympics) and with the inception of the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup in 2008, teams now compete every two years for FIFA U-17 and U-20 Women's World Cup titles.

The U-18 WNT provides a transition for a number of those players that could possibly make up the core of the team that would attempt to qualify for the following U-20 Women's World Cup or even contribute to the current cycle of U-20s. The U-18s also provide a proving ground for players in the U-20 pool who may be just below the core group training for the U-20 Women's World Cup, giving them an environment to show that they are worthy of being pulled back into the top tier of U-20s.

In 2021, all U-18 WYNT programming was cancelled due to the global pandemic.

In 2020, before the COVID-19 pandemic shut down all YNT programming, the U-18s played three matches during a tournament in Lakewood Ranch, Florida, defeating China PR 2-0 and Norway 5-0 before falling to the Netherlands, 2-1.

In 2019, the U-18s played just two international matches, both against England in England, winning one and tying one. In 2018, the U-18s played five international matches, once again all abroad, three during the La Manga Tournament in Spain and two in Switzerland. The USA went 1-1-3 in those games against top European sides.

In 2017, the U-18s played all six of its international matches abroad, traveling to England and to Australia. The USA defeated England while tying and beating Norway during its trip to England. In Canberra, the USA fell to the Canada U-20s but beat Australia twice to finish with a 4-1-1 record.

In 2016, the U-18s had an excellent slate of international matches, playing games in Spain, England and Northern Ireland over the course of the year. The USA went 4-2-2 with wins against England U-19, Norway U-19, France U-19 and Northern Ireland U-19. The USA picked up draws against Denmark U-19 and England U-18. The only losses both came to England, to the U-18s and U-19s.

In 2015, the team had several domestic events and an international trip to play the Mexico U-20s while compiling a record of 3-1-2. In 2014, the team mostly had domestic events while compiling a 1-3-3 overall record, but did get in two valuable international trips, one to La Manga, Spain, for a tournament against older national teams and a trip to Mexico City for two games against the Mexico U-20s that produced a win and a draw.

In 2013, the team played a series of domestic matches, going 4-1-1 against colleges and women's clubs. In 2012, the squad had three training camps and compiled a record of 2-1-1, which included two matches against top Chinese women's club Shanghai FC.

In 2011, the squad went 3-1-1, including a victory over the German U-18s and a loss to the Japanese U-20s. In 2010, the squad went 4-2-2 and in 2009, head coach Dave Chesler led the team to a 4-0-3 record, which included a 5-1 victory against the Canada U-20 team.

Dean Duerst, who coached the U.S. U-17s in 2007, led the 2008 U-18s to a highly successful year, defeating three college teams and winning six games against European U-19 sides in Europe.

The U.S. U-18s had a nice run of success during the late 1990s, winning the 1999 Pan American Games in Canada and going 14-0-3 during the year. Shannon Cirovski, a veteran of the USA's 1991 FIFA Women's World Cup championship team, was the first coach of the U-18s in 1998 before then U.S. Women's National Team assistant coach Jay Hoffman grabbed the reins and guided the team to Pan Am gold.

Chesler coached the U-18s in 2009 and 2010 and former Youth Women's National Teams Director April Heinrichs coached the team from 2011-2016, before Jaime Frias took over as the full-time head coach for 2017 and 2018.

2022 U.S. UNDER-18 WYNT PLAYER POOL – 04s

Following is the current player pool for the U.S. Under-18 Women's Youth National Team. The U.S. U-18 head coach and coaching staff will, for the most part, use this pool of players for training camps and matches in 2022. Players in the U-18 player pool may be called into training camps with the U-19 or U-20 Women's Youth National Team and are age-eligible for the next U-20 Women's World Cup, but this group of players will form the core of the team attempting to qualifying for the 2024 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup. The pool is constantly evolving, with new players being added and called-up. Players in this year's U-18 WNT player pool were born in 2004.

Eligibility: Players born on or after Jan. 1, 2005

U.S. UNDER-17 WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM LOOKS TOWARD 2022 FIFA U-17 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

The U.S. Under-17 Women's Youth National Team will play its 20th year of existence as it heads into 2022 with the goal of qualifying for the 2022 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup in India. Players eligible for the next U-17 Women's World Cup must be born on or after Jan. 1, 2003.

U.S. Soccer first added the U-17 Women's Youth National Team to its programming at the end of 2002. The U-17 program was initiated as U.S. Soccer felt it was vitally important to get more talented young players training with National Team coaches and with the best players in their age group. The philosophy for the U-17s is to accelerate the development of the USA's best young players and better prepare them for the game's highest levels through training with top players and international matches.

Starting in 2008, the age group got its own world championship, an exciting prospect for the young Americans who will get the chance to compete for their country in a Concacaf qualifying competition and then, potentially, the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup.

HISTORY OF THE U.S. UNDER-17 WYNT

In 2021, coming off a long pause in programing due to the global pandemic, the U-17s finally resumed with training camps in October and November, the latter under new head coach Natalia Astrain. In 2022, the team will have a short run-up to April's Concacaf qualifying tournament for the 2022 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, which will be held in India.

In 2020, before the U-17s even had the chance to attempt to qualify for the 2020 FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup in India, the qualifying tournament was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The dates for the World Cup itself were subsequently moved, and then the competition was finally cancelled in November of 2020 due to the pandemic without the Concacaf qualifying tournament ever taking place. India was then given hosting rights by FIFA for the 2022 tournament.

In 2019, the U-17s had an excellent first year of the cycle, compiling a 9-1-1 record in international play, losing only to Spain in a back-and-forth 4-3 result and tying Germany. Along the way, the USA beat Mexico, Russia, Portugal, the Czech Republic, Belgium, China and Sweden. The U.S. players certainly got a taste for international travel, playing tournaments in Spain and the Czech Republic (both of which it won) and a friendly competition in Sweden. Thirteen different players scored for the USA in 2019, led by Allyson Sentnor, who was born in 2004 and had six international goals. The U-17s scored multiple goals in 10 of its 11 games and three or more goals in nine of eleven.

In 2018, the U-17s had a stellar preparation period for the Women's World Cup, playing 18 international matches in four different countries before heading to Uruguay. The USA lost just one of those games while picking up victories against Venezuela, Argentina, Uruguay, Japan, Costa Rica, Bermuda, Canada, Haiti, Mexico and Colombia. The USA won all five games at an unusual Concacaf Women's U-17 Championship, beating Costa Rica in its first game in Nicaragua before the tournament was postponed due to civil unrest. The tournament resumed about six weeks later in Florida, and the USA took care of business, winning the group before defeating Haiti in the semifinal to qualify for Uruguay, and then defeated Mexico, 3-2, in the championship game to take the regional title. At the World Cup, the USA defeated Cameroon in the opening game, but then fell to youth powers Korea DPR and Germany and did not advance out of the group. Still, the USA went 15-3-3 during the year and 40 players got experience in international matches. Hawaiian forward Sunshine Fontes had a record-breaking year, pounding in 22 goals, most-ever for a female U.S. YNT player in a calendar year, and broke the U.S. record for most career international goals at the U-17 level with 24.

In 2017, the U-17s got off to an excellent start in the first year of the cycle, getting the chance to play 13 high-level international matches as part of its preparations for Concacaf qualifying. The USA went 9-1-3, defeating Mexico, England, Italy, Japan and Haiti, with its only loss coming to China PR in a wild 5-4 game in Weifang, China. The USA got to travel abroad three times, giving the young U.S. players valuable experience playing in difficult environments. Jordan Canniff (6 goals) and Maya Doms (5 goals) led the team in scoring. The USA allowed five goals in its one loss to China but allowed just six over the other 12 games.

In 2016, the U-17s compiled a record of 13-2-2 and won the Concacaf U-17 Women's Championship with a perfect 5-0-0 record, defeating Canada 5-0 in the semifinal to qualify for the U-17 Women's World Cup and then downed Mexico in the championship game, 2-1. The USA also won the U.S. Soccer NTC Invitational at the beginning of the year, defeating the England, Korea Republic and Japan U-17 teams. At the World Cup in Jordan, the USA started strong with a 6-1 win against Paraguay as Civana Kuhlmann scored three goals, but then lost its final two group games 2-1 to Ghana and 3-2 to Japan, and did not advance to the quarterfinals. The losses were the first in the entire cycle for a team that came into the tournament unbeaten in international matches.

In 2015, the U-17s had an extensive schedule of domestic training camps and won the second annual NTC Invitational in Carson, Calif., defeating the U-17 teams from Mexico, Canada and Japan. The year was used for growth and evaluation to prepare for the Concacaf U-17 Women's Championship at the beginning of 2016 that qualified three teams for the U-17 Women's World Cup in Jordan. The USA finished the year with a 9-0-1 record.

In 2014, the U-17s were split as the 97s finished their cycle with three tremendous results at the NTC U-17 Women's Invitational where the USA defeated China, New Zealand and eventual U-17 Women's World Cup champion Japan to win the competition, while the 99s comprised the last three events of the year and logged two dominating victories over host Korea Republic during a trip to South Korea. The USA finished the year with a 7-0-0 record.

B.J. Snow was named the first full-time head coach for the U-17 program in January of 2013. The U-17s put together a quality series of results over the year, including two draws with Germany and two dominating wins against England, but a penalty kick loss in the semifinal of the Concacaf Women's U-17 Championship knocked the Americans out of the Women's World Cup despite outscoring its opponents at the tournament by a 26-1 margin. Amazingly, it was the second time in the program's history that a team had dominated at Concacaf qualifying and failed to reach the U-17 Women's World Cup due to a penalty kick loss. Still, the USA compiled a record of 9-1-5 and many talented young players who would have bright futures with older National Teams emerged from this cycle.

The U-17s had a successful year in 2012, going 19-1-4 overall and 13-0-4 in international matches, but learned how cruel the game can be, especially in a Women's World Cup, when the squad became the first U.S. women's team to fail to advance out of group play in a World Cup tournament. Despite not losing a match, the USA's 6-0 win against Gambia and draws with eventual finalists France (0-0) and Korea DPR (1-1) made the USA the first team ever to exit a FIFA women's tournament after the group stage while earning five points.

Still, 2012 saw the USA register wins against U-17 teams from Germany and China, U-19 teams from France and the Netherlands and a win against the full Slovenian Women's National Team. The USA also drew 0-0 with China's U-20s. The USA rolled through Concacaf qualifying while earning five shutouts, outscoring its opponents 26-0, including a hard-fought 1-0 victory against Canada to win the regional title in Guatemala. Summer Green led the USA in scoring with 16 goals, including 12 at qualifying, the most ever for an American player during a Concacaf qualifying event.

In 2011, Albertin Montoya took over the program and started building and also refining the player pool as he developed a team that played an attractive ball-possession attacking style. The young U.S. team went 1-1-2 in international matches, facing Germany and Japan twice each.

The U.S. U-17s had an odd year in 2010 as head coach Kazbek Tambi put together an incredibly talented group that outscored its opponents 38-0 at Concacaf Qualifying in Costa Rica, but fell in the all-important semifinal in penalty kicks to Canada to end its World Cup dreams.

The U-17s had a tremendous build-up schedule in place that included games against the Germany, Brazil and Japan U-17s, but one missed penalty kick rendered the preparation moot. The team nevertheless went 16-2-3 during 2010, including a 13-2-3 record in international play with its only losses coming to Japan three months after the disappointment at qualifying.

In 2009, the U-17s put together an overall record of 7-2-2, including 4-2-1 in international games, and ended the year with an impressive four-game sweep of the U-17 and/or U-20 sides from Chile, Argentina and Uruguay in Buenos Aires. The U.S. played three close matches with a German team one year older to start the year but tied once and lost twice at the event in Florida.

After coaching the U.S. U-16s in 2007, Tambi moved with the age group to U-17s in 2008 to prepare for qualifying for the historic 2008 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, the first of its kind for this age group. In 2008, the U-17s compiled a record of 19-3-2 and 11-2-1 in international matches while winning the Concacaf qualifying tournament in Trinidad & Tobago and came within minutes of winning the inaugural FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, eventually falling 2-1 in overtime to Korea DPR.

In 2007, as this age group began its run to the 2008 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, the team went 9-1-0, defeating two college teams as well youth sides from Germany (U-17), Denmark (U-19), England (U-19), Argentina (U-20) and Uruguay (U-17). The only setback was a loss to the Argentina U-17s.

In 2006, the U-17s defeated and tied the Germany U-17s twice early in the year and then lost to two women's clubs before reeling off six straight wins including a 4-1 triumph against the Argentina U-20s. The only setback in international matches was a 2-1 loss to the full Argentina Women's National Team. In 2005, the U-17s defeated Germany's U-17s twice, and defeated Japan's U-18s, but struggled on a trip to Mexico where they lost to Mexico and Canada's U-20s and Mexico's U-18s.

In 2004, the U-17s defeated Canada's U-17s with a resounding 5-2 win and downed Germany's U-17s, 2-1. In 2003, the U.S. went undefeated in international matches, defeating Canada once and Germany twice. The U-17s also went undefeated against much older competition at the U.S. Soccer Festival in Houston, Texas. In fact, the only loss of the year came in a 4-3 shootout to the U.S. U-16 Girls in the first match of the year.

The U-17s played their first three matches in late November of 2002, two against older regional teams, and then won its first international 3-0 against Scotland in Boca Raton, Fla., on Nov. 30, 2002.

FIFA U-17 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP REVIEW

The U.S. Under-17 Women's National Team has participated in four of the six U-17 Women's World Cups that have been staged since FIFA began holding the competition for this age group in 2008. The USA finished the first tournament in 2008 as runner-up to Korea DPR after a 2-1 overtime loss in the final. Four years later in 2012, having missed out on the 2010 edition of the tournament, the U-17s returned to the competition, only to be eliminated in group play despite finishing level on points with eventual champion France and runner-up Korea DPR. The U-17s did not qualify for the 2014 competition but returned for the 2016 event in Jordan. At the first Women's World Cup to be held in the Middle East, the USA won its first group game but lost its next two matches and did not qualify for the knockout rounds. In 2018 in Uruguay, the USA started fast, but dropped its next two group games and did not advance. In 2020, the Concacaf U-17 Women's Championship was never played due to the COVID-19 pandemic, which was also the reason for the eventual cancellation of the FIFA Under-17 FIFA Women's World Cup in India. India was awarded by the hosting rights by FIFA for the 2022 tournament.

HARD-FOUGHT EFFORT NOT ENOUGH IN URUGUAY (2018)

Entering its fourth FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, the U-17 USWNT faced a tough group featuring a strong African side in Cameroon, reigning champion Korea DPR and perennial women's soccer powerhouse Germany.

The USA got off on the right foot, putting together a 3-0 victory over a physical Cameroon side. The U.S. back line stood tall while the offense struggled in the early-going, but the USA rode a wild first half into the break with a 2-0 lead. In the 22nd minute, the U.S. played on with a Cameroon player on the ground and as the African players paused, Mia Fishel raced towards goal, shot at the goalkeeper and then pounded her own rebound into the net to put the USA on the board. Tensions rose as the half wore on, culminating with a straight red card shown to the Cameroon 'keeper and a penalty kick awarded to the USA. Sunshine Fontes hammered it home to double the advantage and the Hawaiian forward clinched the match late with a long-range chip in the 81st minute.

Against Korea DPR, the USA were undone by set plays, allowing all three goals on corner kicks in a 3-0 loss. While the U.S. defense, led by goalkeeper Angelina Anderson, held strong during the run of play, the North Koreans capitalized on their set-piece opportunities, finding the net on three of five corners, including the first two of the game.

All four teams in Group C entered the final day of group play tied at three points and the USA needed a win against Germany to guarantee advancement to the quarterfinals. After falling behind early on a direct free kick in the fourth minute, the U.S. responded energetically, taking the initiative on the attack and creating a number of quality chances. Despite outshooting Germany and controlling the tempo of the game, the U.S. failed to finish any of its opportunities and German goalkeeper Wiebke Willebrandt put on a remarkable performance. In the first half, a U.S. goal was waved offside and another was disallowed because of a handball just before the break. Down 2-0, the USA fought valiantly in the second half, but was unable to find the back of net as Germany was ruthless on the counterattack, going on to win 4-0 as the U.S. failed to advance out of group play for a second straight U-17 WWC.

GREAT START, TOUGH FINISH IN JORDAN (2016)

The 2016 FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup marked the first FIFA women's event in the Middle East and Jordan did not disappoint as hosts, putting on a fantastic tournament over four venues in and around the capital of Amman. The USA started the tournament with a 6-1 trouncing of Paraguay as forward Civanna Kuhlmann became the first U.S. player to score three times in a U-17 Women's World Cup match. She was the fourth U.S. player to score a hat trick in a youth Women's World Cup as three players had accomplished the feat at the U-20 level. Frankie Tagliaferri, Ashley Sanchez and defender Kiara Pickett also scored against Paraguay.

The USA got off to another fast start in its next Group D game against Ghana, scoring an early goal as Tagliaferri, off an assist from Kuhlmann, tallied again, this time in just the fifth minute, but then a physical Ghana side became the aggressor. Ghana scored an equalizer in the 63rd minute, and an 84th minute penalty kick called for a hand ball in the box turned out to be the USA's undoing. The young Americans fell 2-1 to set up a likely must-win game against powerhouse Japan in the group finale.

Against Japan, the USA started strongly as Sanchez put the USA up 1-0 in the 33rd minute when she burst past the back line to finish a breakaway. The Americans took the 1-0 lead into halftime and were in position to qualify for the quarterfinals even after Japan tied the game in the 53rd minute. That all changed around the 68th minute, when Ghana scored against Paraguay in the other group match taking place at the same time, meaning the USA needed a goal to win the game and earn the three required points to advance.

Instead, it was Japan that scored twice and the USA was eliminated after finishing third in Group D. Sanchez pulled a goal back in stoppage time for the final 3-2 score line, converting a penalty kick after she was taken down in the box, but the Americans would have needed two more scores at that point. The USA did have two goals called back for offside in the second half, significant calls that would have made a big difference had at least one gone the other way, but instead Japan advanced and made it to the championship game where it lost to Korea DPR in penalty kicks after a 0-0 draw in regulation.

FIVE POINTS NOT ENOUGH IN AZERBAIJAN (2012)

The 2012 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup in Azerbaijan turned into a painful learning experience for the young Americans who became the first team ever in a FIFA women's competition to earn five points in group play and yet fail to advance to the quarterfinals. The USA learned the importance of a goal or two in advancing during a World Cup, losing out to eventual champion France on goal difference to finish third in the group. It was the first time a U.S. women's team had not advanced out of group play during a FIFA event.

The USA was drawn into what turned out to be by far the most difficult group, which produced the eventual finalists and champion France. The Americans drew with the French 0-0 and tied eventual runners-up Korea DPR 1-1, but as it turned out, a 6-0 victory over Gambia in the middle game of Group B proved to be the USA's undoing. The North Koreans beat Gambia 11-0 and France beat the Africans, debutantes in a FIFA Women's World Cup, by a 10-2 score, getting six goals in the last 20 minutes to move ahead of the Americans on goal difference.

Still, there were many positives to be taken from the USA's Women's World Cup experience. The U.S. team allowed just one goal in the tournament and battled extremely talented French and Korean teams to the final whistle. Against North Korea, the USA took the lead on a goal from Darian Jenkins in just the second minute, only to concede a few minutes later to eventual Golden Ball winner Ri Un Sim in the fourth. The USA had several chances to steal the match at the end, but it was not to be and the Koreans deservedly won the group.

The USA did get a glimpse of some future talent, especially in goal where Jane Campbell showed signs that she could be one of the most talented young 'keepers to emerge in a while. In the beginning of 2013, she would get her first call-up to the full Women's National Team. Summer Green, the USA's leading scorer during the year, scored her first two World Cup goals.

Kudos should also go to Azerbaijan, the first predominantly Muslim country to stage a Women's World Cup at any level, as it put on a world class event. The tournament featured many activities around the matches and some of the best crowds of the three FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup tournaments held so far. France would eventually triumph in a penalty kick shootout that went eight players deep as France goalkeeper Romane Bruneau saved RI Un Yong's attempt to end the game and Les Bleus lifted the trophy.

OH SO CLOSE IN NEW ZEALAND (2008)

The 2008 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup in New Zealand was held with 16 nations playing in four venues and four stadiums – Auckland, Hamilton, Wellington and Christchurch – and the tournament organizers put on a fantastic first world championship event for this age group.

The high level of play displayed over the 18 days from such young players was a sight to behold, giving cause for excitement about the U-17 and U-20 Women's World Cups to come. The organization from the Kiwis, as well as the support from the people of New Zealand, made the tournament memorable and added to the excitement for these players getting their first taste of soccer at the world stage.

The U.S. team actually started slow, losing its first match to a talented Japan team by a 3-2 score. The young Americans also needed to come from a goal down against a spunky Paraguay side in its second group match to win 3-1, setting up a clash with France for a spot in the quarterfinals. The USA gutted out a 1-1 tie against the French, but that was good enough to earn a quarterfinal meeting with Korea Republic.

The USA's World Cup run then picked up steam as the U-17s put together their best match to date, trouncing the Koreans, 4-2. A powerful German squad awaited in the semifinal, but the USA put forth a tremendous performance, coming back from a goal down to win, 2-1, as forwards Vicki DiMartino and Courtney Verloo each scored. Verloo (four goals) and DiMartino (five goals) combined for nine of the USA's 13 goals with Kristie Mewis adding two more.

The first ever FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup Final opened with a startling goal for the USA in just the second minute off a throw-in, but then Korea DPR methodically took control of the match and ended up doubling the USA in shots. Still, the USA clung to a 1-0 lead until the North Koreans tied the game with just 13 minutes left in regulation time. The match remained knotted at 1-1 and looked headed for penalty kicks, but Korea DPR scored the game-winner just three minutes from the end of overtime.

Despite the loss, which ended the USA's record of winning every "first" FIFA women's world championship (the 1991 FIFA Women's World Cup, the 1996 Olympics and the 2002 FIFA U-19 Women's World Cup), the young Americans distinguished themselves very well and the team produced numerous future professional players.

The USA's emotional run to the title game was backed by some excellent individual performances. Kristie Mewis won the Bronze Ball as the third best player in the tournament and would be named the U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year a few months later. DiMartino won the Silver Shoe as the second leading scorer in the tournament and Taylor Vancil won the Golden Glove as the top 'keeper.

Other top players for the USA included defensive midfielder Amber Brooks, defenders Cloee Colohan, Rachel Quon and Crystal Dunn and midfielders Olivia Klei and Samantha Mewis. The Mewis sisters became the first siblings to represent the USA in a FIFA Women's World Cup.

U.S. UNDER-16 GIRLS' NATIONAL TEAM SUPPORTS U-17 WORLD CUP EFFORTS

The U.S. Under-16 Women's Youth National Team was re-instituted in 2015. Prior to that year, U.S. Soccer had not had programming at the U-16 level since 2007. When FIFA instituted a world championship at the U-17 level for 2008 the U-16 age group was absorbed into the U-17s. In 2015, as part of an overall commitment to player development, new programs at the U-16 and U-19 level were started back up and U.S. Soccer now has a total of eight Youth National Teams for both its men's and women's programs: U-14, U-15, U-16, U-17, U-18, U-19, U-20 and U-23.

These additions create two separate programming tracks for even-birth-year players and odd-birth-year players, allowing for a more consistent approach toward development and additional opportunities for players to participate in National Team events and matches.

U.S. Soccer will continue to provide quality training environments and training sessions for young players and aggressively expand these efforts through its YNT Identification Center program and other initiatives.

As the U-17s have had Women's World Cups since 2008, the U-16s (and U-15s) become even more important as this age group has a tangible goal to play in a Women's World Cup.

The pool for the U-16s will be brought to several training camps over the course of the year to expose more players of this age to the National Team camp environment and experience. U-16 players may also be brought into U-17 training camps and events during the year. The player pool is identified on a year-round basis, through U.S. Soccer YNT ID Centers, club soccer, ODP interregional events and the younger Women's Youth National Team camps.

U-16 camps are often scheduled to run concurrent with other YNT camps to give players an opportunity to watch and train against older players and learn through those experiences.

Players in this year's group of U-16s were born on or after Jan. 1, 2006.

2022 U.S. UNDER-16 WYNT PLAYER POOL – 06s

Following is the current player pool for the U.S. Under-16 Women's Youth National Team, which was re-instituted in 2015. Prior to that, U.S. Soccer had not conducted U-16 programming since 2007. The U.S. U-16 WYNT head coach and coaching staff will, for the most part, use this pool of players for training camps and matches in 2022. All the players in this pool are age-eligible for the 2022 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup. To be age-eligible for the next FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, player must have been born on or after Jan. 1, 2005. This year's U-16 player pool consists of players born in 2006. The pool is constantly evolving, with new players being added and called-up. Players from the U-15 Girl's National Team pool (07s) may be called to a U-16 GNT camp. (see next page)

U.S. UNDER-15 WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM

Head Coach: Katie Schoepfer
Major Competition: Concacaf Girls' U-15 Championship

Key events: Domestic Camps; International Matches

U.S. UNDER-15 GIRLS' NATIONAL TEAM SETS BASE FOR THE FUTURE

In its 19th year of existence, the U.S. Under-15 Women's Youth National Team was instituted in 2004 to help bridge the gap between the annual summer Under-14 Girls' National Identification Camp (which is no longer held, having been replaced for several years by U-14 WYNT training camps and a new U-14 Talent Identification Program) and the U.S. Under-17 Women's Youth National Team. With the implementation of the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, the importance of the U-15s and the U-16s has grown as this age group has a tangible goal when they enter their first major programming experience with the U.S. Women's National Teams.

U.S. Soccer's scouts monitor a large pool of players for the U-15s with many evaluated at the Youth National Team ID Centers across the country. A pool of around 35-40 players will be brought to several training camps and international friendlies over the course of the year to give more players of this age the experience of being in a National Team camp and match environment. In 2019, the team played a series of friendlies vs. Netherlands and would have played more international matches in 2020 if not for the global pandemic. All programming was cancelled in 2021 due to the ongoing pandemic. The player pool is identified and monitored on a year-round basis through the YNT ID Centers with players coming from club soccer, ODP national/interregional events and U.S. U-14 Women's Youth National Team camps.

Players in this year's group of U-15s are born on or after Jan. 1, 2005, which is the age cutoff for players to be eligible for the 2022 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup.

In 2016, the USA participated for the first time in the Concacaf Girls' U-15 Championship (the second time the tournament had been held). The USA won all seven games by shutout, compiling a 49-0 goal difference, and defeating Costa Rica 5-0 in the semifinal and Canada 2-0 in the championship game to take the regional title.

In 2018, the USA participated in its second Concacaf Girls' U-15 Championship, taking a younger team of players born in 2004 and 2005 to play against teams of players mostly born in 2003. The USA won four games and lost one, that to guest team Portugal by a 3-0 score in group play, but avenged that setback in the semifinal, flipping the score to win 3-0. In the championship game, the USA battled Mexico to a 0-0 tie through the 70 minutes of regulation before scoring three goals in extra time via Jaedyn Shaw (two goals) and Alyssa Thompson.

The USA will would have participated in its third Concacaf Girls' U-15 Championship in August of 2020, but it was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The U.S. U-15s will now focus on the next Concacaf event for U-15 girls, which will likely be held in 2022.

U.S. UNDER-14 WOMEN'S YOUTH NATIONAL TEAM

Over the years, the play of the United States Youth National Teams has confirmed its status as the top nation for women's and girls' youth soccer in Concacaf, as well as one of the best in the world. The work done with the U.S. Under-14 Women's Youth National Team program, which has been in existence since 1999, is a major reason for the increasing quantity and quality of young players vying for spots on the numerous U.S. Women's National Teams.

In 2015, the structure of the USA's Youth National Teams was adjusted with new programming added at the Under-16 and Under-19 levels. U.S. Soccer now has Women's Youth National Teams at the U-14, U-15, U-16, U-17, U-18, U-19, U-20 and U-23 levels.

The structure means that U.S. Soccer now has two tracks for players, one for players born in even years and the other for those born in odd years. Players born in odd years, which are the age-cut-off years for the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, follow the path of U-15 (2 years), U-17 (2 years) and U-19 (2 years). Players born in even years, which are the age-cut-off years for the FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup, follow the path of U-16 (2 years), U-18 (2 years) and U-20 (2 years).

In winter 2018, a new YNT U-14 Talent Identification Program was launched for top male players across the country. A similar program has been implemented for female players in March early 2020. The program features three Regional Mini-Camps, one each in the West, Central and East areas of the United States as well as a national training camp that brings together each region's best players.

Players are identified and monitored for the U.S. Youth National Teams through scores of YNT ID Centers that are staged across the country throughout the year and through youth soccer development programs such as ECNL, GAL, ODP, id2, National League and more.

Since the Talent Identification department was established in 2017, it has been headed by Mirelle van Rijbroek, who oversees the running of the YNT ID Centers and the Regional Mini-Camps with the goal of identifying and monitoring players for the Youth National Teams. The three regional Talent Identification Managers are Katie Cole in the Central region, Diane Drake in the East and Marieke Laurens in the West.

Players for Youth National Teams are identified and monitored by U.S. Soccer's National Team coaching staff, the Girls' TID Director and Managers as well as YNT Network Scouts spread throughout the country, which includes about 90 scouts nation-wide. U.S. Soccer is also constantly reaching out and connecting with clubs and coaches for recommendations on players both verbally and online.

In 1999, U.S. Soccer started what was then called the U.S. Under-14 National Development Program, knowing that in order to continue to compete with the elite countries on the international level, the U.S. would have to build a base of players from the youth level up. The U-14 program has evolved in its structure but still serves the purpose of introducing the USA's top young players to a level of soccer they would not otherwise experience at this point in their careers. Additionally, players are involved in international games that are invaluable in their development.

The U-14 girls' program has helped to produce numerous players who have made an impact on the older levels of the Women's National Team. Women's World Cup champion Heather O'Reilly and Lindsay Tarpley, both 2002 U-19 Women's World Cup Champions and Olympic gold medalists, attended U-14 National Team camps at the beginning of their careers. Other well-known names in the WNT program that began their careers as U-14s include Lori Chalupny, Leslie Osborne and Tobin Heath, as well as 2012 U-20 Women's World Cup champions Julie Johnston, Crystal Dunn, Cari Roccaro, Abby Smith, Maya Hayes, Sarah Killion, Bryane Heaberlin, Morgan Brian, Mollie Pathman, Samantha Mewis and Vanessa DiBernardo. In addition, 2016 Olympian, 2019 Women's World Cup champion and two-time U-20 Women's World Cup Team member Mallory Pugh also started her WNT career at the U-14 level.

U.S. WOMEN'S BEACH SOCCER NATIONAL TEAM

BEACH SOCCER HISTORY

Born on the beaches in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, beach soccer has long been played informally on sandy shorelines around the world. Despite its South American roots, the game was codified in 1992 by a group in Los Angeles and one year later the first professional beach soccer competition was held at Miami Beach with the USA hosting Brazil, Argentina and Italy.

In 1994, the first World Championship was held for men's beach soccer in Rio de Janeiro, and the U.S. team had modest success with a second-place finish in 1995 and a third-place finish in 1997. FIFA recognized men's beach soccer beginning in 2005, and has staged ten FIFA Beach Soccer World Cups.

The U.S. Women's Beach Soccer National Team took the field for the first time in August 2019 at Concacaf qualifying for the inaugural ANOC World Beach Games. Vying for the lone North American berth to the main event, the USA finished second in El Salvador, going 2-1-0, but still qualified for the World Beach Games thanks to another nation dropping out of the competition. At the World Beach Games, the Beach WNT dropped its first two matches before topping Paraguay to finish 1-2-0 and fifth place at the tournament.

In 2021, the Beach WNT participated in the first Women's Intercontinental Beach Soccer Cup that was held in Russia before the FIFA Beach Soccer World Cup at the same venue that hosted the men's tournament.

While there is no FIFA Beach Soccer World Cup for women, as the game continues to grow, the Beach WNT will continue to compete in games and tournaments around the world.

BASIC LAWS OF THE GAME

Beach Soccer is played on a field that is approximately 36 meters long and 27 meters wide. The game is played on sand that is a minimum of 40 centimeters deep and players must be barefoot. Five players, including a goalkeeper, are on the field at one time and play three, 12-minute periods.

There are up to seven substitutes on the bench, and like Futsal, there are unlimited substitutions. In instances where games cannot end in ties, matches are decided by a three-minute overtime and then kicks from the penalty spot, which is an imaginary mark on an imaginary penalty area line nine meters from the goal.

Other rules include:

- After a ball goes out of bounds, it can be thrown or kicked back in play.
- Goalkeepers can pick up the first back pass from a teammate per possession.
- Players taking a free kick can make a small mound of sand to place the ball on.

FIFA WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Federation Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) conducts eight major outdoor soccer world championships played at the international level. Those tournaments are the FIFA World Cup, the FIFA Women's World Cup, the Men's Olympic Football Tournament, the Women's Olympic Football Tournament, the FIFA Under-20 World Cup, the FIFA Under-17 World Cup, the FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup and the FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup. Additionally, FIFA also conducts the Futsal World Cup every four years, and the Beach Soccer World Cup biennially. A quick synopsis of these tournaments is listed below. More detail can be found on USA performances at each of these tournaments throughout the U.S. Men's National Team Media Guide and the U.S. Women's National Team Media Guide.

FIFA WORLD CUP

The FIFA World Cup has been played 20 times since the first competition in 1930 in Uruguay. The tournament has grown in stature over the years and has become not only the biggest sporting event in the world, but also simply the biggest event in the world every four years. Outside of the USA's third-place finish in the inaugural tournament, the team's quarterfinal run in 2002 is the side's best World Cup finish.

FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

The FIFA Women's World Cup has been contested on eight occasions with the USA earning four championships (China '91, USA '99, Canada '15 and France '19), Germany two (USA '03 and China '07) and Norway (Sweden '95) and Japan (Germany '11) one each. The 2011 Women's World Cup featured 16 teams for the fourth time, after seeing 12 compete in both 1991 and 1995. Canada 2015 was the first time the Women's World Cup featured 24 nations while the 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup, which will be jointly hosted by Australia and New Zealand, will be expanded to 32 teams.

OLYMPIC FOOTBALL TOURNAMENTS

After competing as an exhibition sport at the 1900 and 1904 Olympic Games, soccer became the first team sport included in the Olympics with the first official tournament dating back to the 1908 London Games when the United Kingdom defeated Denmark to claim the gold medal. Since that time soccer has been part of every Olympiad except the 1932 event in the United States.

On the women's side, the sport wasn't introduced to the Olympics until the 1996 competition in the United States. The U.S. claimed the inaugural gold medal in women's Olympic football by defeating China 2-1 on Aug. 1, 1996, in front of a capacity crowd of 76,481 fans in Athens, Georgia.

The growth of professional football after World War II meant that some of the best players were not eligible to compete in the Olympics. Nevertheless, the Olympic Tournament retained its vitality as a forum for the amateur game. In 1952, Hungary's great generation with players such as Grosics, Czibor, Puskas and Kocsis won the tournament in Helsinki. After that, and until Los Angeles in 1984, all the Olympic titles went to Eastern Europe, a span of eight straight tournaments.

When the Olympics entered the modern era, FIFA was obliged to reconsider its position for the Barcelona 1992 tournament, where, for the first time, the tournament was restricted to Under-23 national teams. In 1996, FIFA altered the U-23 designation slightly, allowing teams to add three overage players into the mix, a rule that is still in effect.

Through the 1928 Olympics in Holland, Olympic caps were counted as full international appearances, but that designation changed with the advent of the World Cup in 1930. Although the Olympic Games football tournament actually falls under the realm of the International Olympic Committee, FIFA presides over the event on behalf of the IOC.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games were postponed to 2021.

FIFA UNDER-20 WORLD CUP

Contested every two years, the FIFA Under-20 World Cup is restricted to players under 20 years of age. The tournament was renamed from the FIFA World Youth Championship in 2006. The U.S. has qualified for the tournament on 16 occasions, finishing fourth in 1989 (Saudi Arabia). At the most recent tournament in 2019 in Poland, the U.S. opened group play 2-1 loss to eventual champions Ukraine before reeling off victories against Nigeria (2-0) and Qatar (1-0) to advance to the knockout stage. In the Round of 16, the U-20 MNT won a thrilling game against favorites France 3-2 to move on to the quarterfinals where it faced eventual third place finisher Ecuador and dropped an incredibly competitive match, 2-1. The U-20 MNT's performance marked the third consecutive time the team reached the quarterfinals after also doing so in 2017 and 2015, making the USA the only nation to reach the quarterfinals of the last three U-20 World Cups. The 2021 edition of the tournament was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Indonesia will host the tournament in 2023.

FIFA UNDER-20 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

Renamed the FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup in 2008, the tournament was staged as a U-20 event for the first time in 2006 after two initial tournaments were played as Under-19 events. The inaugural FIFA U-19 Women's World Championship was held in Canada from Aug. 17-Sept. 1, 2002, with 12 teams. That first tournament was an incredible success, with the USA capturing the first championship via a Lindsay Tarpley golden goal in a 1-0 victory in front of 47,784 fans in Edmonton, Canada. The U.S. fell to Germany in the semifinals in Thailand in 2004, and in 2006 finished out of the top three for the first time in program history. In 2008, however, Golden Ball winner Sydney Leroux and Silver Ball winner Alex Morgan returned the U.S. to the top of the podium. After getting knocked out once again in penalty kicks in 2010, this time in the quarterfinal, a 1-0 victory against Germany in the 2012 U-20 Women's World Cup Final in Tokyo capped a remarkable run by the young Americans with defender and captain Julie Ertz (neé Johnston) earning the Bronze Ball. In 2014, the USA once again fell on penalty kicks, losing to Korea DPR in a quarterfinal shootout after drawing 1-1, and in 2016 it finished in fourth place after losing to eventual World Cup champion Korea DPR in the semifinal, 2-1. The 2018 edition of the tournament saw the U.S. ousted from a tough group that included champions Japan and runner-up Spain. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2020 edition of the tournament was postponed and eventually cancelled. Costa Rica will host the next edition of the tournament in 2022.

FIFA UNDER-17 WORLD CUP

The Under-17 World Championship is contested every two years for players less than 17 years of age. The U.S. was the only team in the world to qualify for every U-17 World Championship, from the tournament's inception in 1985 through 2013. The first three tournaments were actually played as U-16 World Championship tournaments, but FIFA changed the event to its present U-17 status in 1989. The Concacaf region hosted the tournament for a second time in 2001, when Trinidad & Tobago served as the first-ever Caribbean host for a FIFA World Championship. Mexico became the first Concacaf team to win an outdoor men's world championship in 2005 with an impressive triumph in Peru before winning the tournament a second time in 2013 as the host country. The U.S. achieved its best result in 1999, finishing fourth. In 2019, the U-17 MNT did not escape its group which contained semifinalists the Netherlands, Senegal and Japan.

FIFA UNDER-17 WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

The FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup was played for the first time in 2008 in New Zealand. The U.S. made an impressive run to the final where it was defeated by Korea DPR in overtime. In 2012 in Azerbaijan, the USA was drawn into a group with eventual finalists France and Korea DPR, and despite not losing a game and earning five points in the group, the young Americans failed to advance to the knockout stage, becoming the first women's team in a FIFA event to earn five points in its group but not advance. The USA did not qualify for the 2010 or 2014 U-17 Women's World Cups, losing in penalty kicks in the semifinal of the qualifying tournaments. The USA failed to advance past the group stage in both 2016 and 2018. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2020 edition of the tournament was postponed and eventually cancelled. India will host the next edition of the tournament in 2022.

FIFA FUTSAL WORLD CUP

The FIFA Futsal World Cup has been contested eight times with Brazil winning the first three tournaments, and Spain winning two championships in 2000 and 2004 before Brazil returned to glory as hosts in 2008 and defeated Spain for a fifth title in 2012. The Futsal World Cup is the only indoor tournament hosted by FIFA. The 1992 second-place finish was the best-ever showing in a FIFA event by a U.S. men's team, and came on the heels of a third-place finish in 1989. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2020 edition of the tournament was postponed to 2021. Portugal defeated defending champions Argentina in the 2021 final, which was contested in Lithuania.

FIFA BEACH SOCCER WORLD CUP

Beach soccer became a part of the FIFA family in 2005 when the first FIFA Beach Soccer World Cup was staged on Copacabana Beach in Rio de Janeiro. To everyone's surprise, France defeated Portugal in the final, while Brazil fell in the semis; however, Brazil rebounded to win four straight tournaments from 2006-09. 2011 marked the first time the competition was played biennially and ushered in a new era of dominance as Russia upended Brazil in the final before defeating Spain in 2013 to claim a second straight championship. Portugal won at home in 2015, while Brazil returned to glory in 2017 and earned its fifth title. Portugal captured its second title in 2019, which the USA qualified for but did not escape its group that featured semifinalists Japan and host nation Paraguay. The USA qualified again for the 2021 Beach World Cup and nearly beat hosts and eventual champions Russia in the opening match, but did not make it out of the group stage.

FIFA CONFEDERATIONS CUP

The Confederations Cup was contested under FIFA's auspices for the first time in 1997 and replaced the Intercontinental Championship, which was staged in 1992 and 1995 with all three tournaments held in Saudi Arabia. In 1999, the Confederations Cup was held in Mexico and it returned to Asia in 2001, where it was staged as a precursor to the 2002 FIFA World Cup in Korea and Japan. In 2005, the competition became quadrennial, staged one year before the World Cup in the tournament's host country. Brazil won the tournament from 2005-13, defeating the U.S. in the final of the 2009 edition after the USA had built a 2-0 half-time lead. In 2017, defending World Cup champion Germany defeated South American champions Chile, 1-0 to claim its first Confederations Cup title. In 2019, FIFA announced plans to abolish the tournament and replace it instead with a quadrennial, 24-team FIFA Club World Cup.

OLYMPIC HISTORY

HISTORY OF SOCCER PARTICIPATION

The first official men's Olympic soccer tournament dates back to the 1908 London Games, when Great Britain defeated Denmark to claim the first soccer gold medal. Since that time soccer has been part of every Olympic Games Program, with the exception of the 1932 Los Angeles Games. The 1940 and 1944 Olympic Games were canceled completely due to the political tensions surrounding World War II.

The United States has competed in the men's Olympic finals 13 times, including five straight tournaments from 1984 to 2000. In addition, the U.S. qualified for – but did not compete in – the 1980 Moscow Games following a boycott by the U.S. Olympic Committee. The U.S. missed out on qualifying for the 2004 Athens Olympics, but returned in 2008 after finishing second at the Concacaf qualifying event, which was held in the U.S.

In 2012, the U.S. Women's National Team earned its third straight gold medal and fourth overall when it topped 2011 FIFA Women's World Cup champion Japan on Aug. 9 in front of more than 80,000 spectators at Wembley Stadium in London. The U.S. Men were eliminated in Concacaf qualifying in March, dropping to third place in their group following a late El Salvador goal in the closing seconds of a 3-3 draw on March 26.

Up until and including the 1988 Seoul Games, the Olympic soccer tournament was an unrestricted event, and thus the U.S. Olympic Soccer Team was essentially the U.S. National Team. However the tournament structure has changed since that time, and the restrictions on age and experience of players involved in Olympic competition has been under review by FIFA, which makes all tournament recommendations to the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The 1992 Barcelona Games proved to be the turning point in the Olympic soccer tournament, when the tournament was competed as an under-23 event for the first time. Host Spain captured the title at Barcelona's famed Nou Camp Stadium in front of 95,000 jubilant fans. Spain's progress in the tournament aided struggling attendances in 1992, which were far lower than expected. There is little doubt that the poor attendance in Spain played a role in the changes made for the 1996 Atlanta Games.

Not only did Atlanta '96 signify the first time women's soccer was included in the Olympic Program, but the men's tournament was adapted from its under-23 format in 1992 to include three "overage" players. "Overage" players are those who were either over 23 years of age or who previously played in an Olympic Games soccer tournament. Claudio Reyna (who was age eligible in 1996, but had competed for the U.S. in 1992), Kasey Keller and Alexi Lalas were the USA's overage players in 1996.

In 2000, veteran defenders Jeff Agoos and Frankie Hejduk, as well as goalkeeper Brad Friedel, were selected as the USA's overage players, helping the team on an unprecedented tournament run, which saw the U.S. advance to the medal round before falling in the semifinals to a strong Spanish team.

For the 2008 Olympics in China, Brian McBride agreed to come out of international retirement and captained a team that included Under-23 stars Sacha Kljestan and Freddy Adu, who had paced the U.S. through qualifying. After a 1-0 victory against Japan in the first game, the U.S. was minutes away from upsetting reigning European champions Netherlands, but had to settle for a 2-2 tie after giving up a late free kick goal. In the third group game, eventual runner-up Nigeria took advantage of a third-minute red card by Michael Orozco and held on for a 2-1 win to send the U.S. home despite earning four points.

The U.S. Women's National Team claimed the inaugural gold medal in women's competition at the Atlanta Games with a 2-1 victory over China before 76,481 fans on Aug. 1, 1996, in Athens, Ga. The attendance mark, which at the time was the largest crowd to ever watch a women's athletic event, set the stage for the incredibly successful Women's World Cup staged in the U.S. in 1999. The gold medal victory culminated an impressive five-game undefeated run through the tournament in which the U.S. Women played in front of packed crowds.

As they did in 1996, the U.S. Women had a strong run to the medal stand in 2000, winning the "Group of Death" that included China, Nigeria and Norway. In the Gold Medal match, a spirited Norway team refused to yield and eventually took home the gold with a thrilling 3-2 overtime triumph.

The 2004 Athens Games were a fitting end for a number of U.S. veterans, including Mia Hamm, Julie Foudy and Joy Fawcett, who went out of the sport as they came into it: as champions. The never-say-die team won both its semifinal and final matches in overtime, courtesy of a Heather O'Reilly strike against Germany and an Abby Wambach goal against Brazil to claim the gold.

Four years later, the U.S. came into the Olympics without Wambach, the team's top scorer who broke her leg in a preparation match. With Pia Sundhage leading the team into her first World Championship as head coach, a new class of players including Hope Solo, Carli Lloyd and surprise leading scorer Angela Hucles led the team to gold with a 1-0 victory over Brazil.

In 2012, the U.S. Women went undefeated at 6-0-0 for the first time at an Olympic tournament. The USA's run included a thrilling come-from-behind victory in the semifinal against Canada, with Alex Morgan scoring the game-winner in the 123rd minute for the latest goal ever scored in a FIFA competition. In the gold medal match, Lloyd scored both U.S. goals against Japan and the USA became the first country – in either men's or women's soccer – to earn a fourth gold.

In 2016, the U.S. women defeated New Zealand 2-0 to open their Olympic tournament in Belo Horizonte, and went on to defeat France 1-0 before drawing Colombia 2-2 in Manaus to win the group. In the quarterfinal round, the USA fell to Sweden in penalty kicks following a 1-1 draw through regulation and extra time despite outshooting Sweden 27 to 6 and dominating much of the match. It was the first time in USWNT's history that the team did not medal at an Olympic tournament.

The U.S. Women returned to the podium in 2021, as the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games were postponed one year due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The USA fell to Sweden in the opening match of group play but responded with a 6-1 win over New Zealand and a 0-0 draw against New Zealand to finish second in the group and advance to the knockout round. In the quarterfinal round, the USA defeated the Netherlands, 4-2 on penalty kicks, following a riveting 2-2 draw through regulation and extra time. After falling to Canada on a late penalty kick in the semifinal, the USWNT bounced back to win the bronze medal with a 4-3 win over Australia. It was the USWNT's sixth Olympic medal overall, the most of any country.

PAN-AM GAMES

HISTORY OF SOCCER PARTICIPATION

The Pan American Games are held every four years during the summer preceding the Olympic Games. In terms of the number of sports and athletes, the Pan American Games are second in size only to the Olympics. The men's soccer tournament has been part of every Pan American games since its inception and in 1999 women's soccer made its debut.

After scheduling conflicts kept the United States from competing in the 2003 games in Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic, U.S. Soccer was able to return to the competition at the 2007 event in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. However, conflicts again kept the U.S. out of the 2011 event hosted in Mexico and will preclude participation in the 2015 event in Canada.

In 2007, the U.S. Men's team was represented by head coach Bob Jenkins' Under-18 Men's National Team, and after opening the tournament with a strong 2-1 win over Venezuela, the U.S. dropped its next two games and was eliminated. In its second match, the U.S. led Bolivia 2-0 at the half, only to lose 4-2. Against Mexico in its final group game, the teams were tied 0-0 with 15 minutes remaining when the U.S. was reduced to 10 men, and eventually lost 2-0.

That same year, the U.S. Under-20 Women's National Team had a very strong run into the tournament finals, behind a blistering six-goal tournament from Lauren Cheney (U.S. Soccer's Young Female Athlete of the Year in 2007). After winning their group with a 2-1-0 record, head coach Jill Ellis' U-20s defeated the Senior Canada Women's National Team 2-1 in the semifinal, then lost to the full Brazil Women's National Team 5-0 in the final.

In 1999, the U.S. Under-23 National Team competed in the men's tournament, while the U.S. Under-18 Women's National Team represented the U.S. in the women's competition held in Winnipeg, Canada. The U.S. Men captured the second Pan-Am Games Bronze Medal in their history with a 2-1 victory over the Canada in the third-place match. Carlos Bocanegra and a young Landon Donovan led the USA with goals in that match.

The Women's U-18 squad captured gold medal in the first-ever Pan American Women's Final with a hard-fought 1-0 win over an older Mexico squad. The U.S. Women dominated their opponents throughout the tournament, going undefeated in six games (5-0-1) while outscoring their opposition 22-2.

The first Pan American Games were held in 1951, but its history goes back two decades earlier. In 1932, the South American delegation of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) proposed the formation of an organization to promote amateur sports in the Americas. The idea led to the first Pan American Sports Congress in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1940. The 16 countries represented at the meeting formed the Pan American Sports Committee, and agreed to hold the first Pan American Games in 1942 in Buenos Aires, but World War II forced their postponement.

The idea stayed alive, and the first Pan American Games finally opened in Buenos Aires on Feb. 25, 1951. The organization governing the Games was renamed the Pan American Sports Organization (PASO) and is made up of nations of North, Central and South America and the Caribbean.

The soccer tournament at the Pan American Games has never enjoyed a very high profile, perhaps because in the past competing nations have not sent their strongest team. The one exception was the 1975 Games in Mexico City, when 110,000 spectators turned out at Azteca Stadium to watch the final between Mexico and Brazil.

Like many of the competing nations, the United States has used the competition as a preparation for the Olympic Games. In 1991, the U.S. won its first Pan American gold medal in soccer in Havana, Cuba, defeating Mexico 2-1 in overtime. Former U.S. Men's National Team midfielder Joe-Max Moore scored a sensational free kick to win that game for the Americans.

Concacaf

CONCACAF WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP HISTORY

Hosts, Champions & Qualifiers

Concacaf has hosted 15 competitions that have served as regional championships for women's national teams. The USA has participated in 14 of those tournaments, missing only the 1998 Concacaf Women's Championship when the Americans were automatic qualifiers for the 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup, which it hosted. The USA has won 13 Concacaf championships.

Eight of those tournaments were qualifying events for the FIFA Women's World Cup, five were Olympic Qualifying tournaments and two did not have any qualifying ramifications (the Women's Gold Cup in 2000 and the Concacaf Women's Championship in 1993). The 1996 and 2000 Olympic Women's Soccer Tournaments did not have Concacaf Qualifying events as the teams qualified for the Olympics based on their Women's World Cup finish the previous years.

Three of the tournaments were called Concacaf Women's Gold Cups. Those took place in 2000 (hosted by USA) when it was an eight-team competition that was not a qualifying tournament and featured guest team Brazil; in 2002 in a tournament co-hosted by Canada and the USA that served as the qualifying for the 2003 FIFA Women's World Cup; and a six-team event in 2006 hosted by the USA that served as qualifying for the 2007 FIFA Women's World Cup.

In December 2020, Concacaf announced the launch of a Concacaf Women's Nations League, which will commence play in 2023.

In August 2021, the Confederation announced the qualifying path to the 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup, which is now also the path to the 2024 Olympic Games in Paris and, for a few teams, the newly instituted 2024 W Gold Cup.

The newly dubbed 2021 Concacaf W Qualifiers began for all teams – except the USA and Canada – during the FIFA Women's Match Windows in November 2021 and will continue in April 2022, and will serve as the preliminary round of the 2022 Concacaf W Championship. The eight team Concacaf W Championship will be held in July 2022 and will consist of group play, followed by semifinal and championship rounds. Along with qualifying for the World Cup, at conclusion of the Concacaf W Championship, the winning nation will also guarantee its place in the 2024 Paris Summer Olympic Games Women's Football Tournament and the 2024 Concacaf W Gold Cup. The runner-up and the third-place nations will progress to a Concacaf Olympic play-in to be played in September of 2023. The winner of the play-in will also guarantee their place in the 2024 Paris Summer Olympic Games and the 2024 W Gold Cup.

SHEBELIEVES CUP

Inspired by the U.S. WNT players, SheBelieves is an initiative led by U.S. Soccer to inspire and encourage women and girls. The campaign launched in the run-up to the 2015 Women's World Cup and has since grown into a powerful message of empowerment and believing in oneself. The SheBelieves Cup, presented by Visa, is a four-team elite international tournament, represents a showcase event for the campaign, which also features efforts such as the SheBelieves Summit, presented by Deloitte, a forum bringing together young professionals and leaders in sport and business, SheBelieves Hero™, a nationwide search for a young community leader who embodies the SheBelieves ethos, SheBelieves Academy, an online learning tool conceived in partnership with author Joan Kuhl and designed to help young women achieve personally and professionally, and SheChampions, a coach mentorship program concepted in collaboration with former head coach Jill Ellis to increase the number of female coaches in the U.S. through mentorship, resources, and support.

2021 SHEBELIEVES CUP

In the 2021 SheBelieves Cup, which was held exclusively at Exploria Stadium in Orlando, Fla. due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the USA swept the competition and became the first nation to win back-to-back SheBelieves Cup titles. The Americans swept all three matches, 1-0 vs. Canada, 2-0 vs. Brazil and 6-0 vs. Argentina, and in the process, became and the first team to not allow a single goal at the competition. USWNT midfielder Rose Lavelle was awarded the Visa SheBelieves Cup MVP award and scored the game-winning goal vs. Canada in the USA's first match of the Tournament. Christen Press and Megan Rapinoe scored in the win over Brazil, who finished second after wins over Canada (2-0) and Argentina (4-1). Canada's lone win of the tournament came in a 1-0 victory over fellow SheBelieves Cup debutant Argentina. The 2021 SheBelieves Cup produced a total of 17 goals.

2020 SHEBELIEVES CUP

In the 2020 SheBelieves Cup, which was the USA's final competition before the sports world shut down (it would be 261 days before the USA would play again), the American women took the title while sweeping all three games, 2-0 vs. England, 1-0 vs. Spain and 3-1 vs. Japan. The victory against Spain came on a last gasp header from Julie Ertz that whipped the sold-out crowd at Red Bull Arena into a frenzy. Spain finished second after wins over Japan (3-1) and England (1-0) and Alexia Putellas, who scored twice in the tournament, was named the first-ever SheBelieves Cup Visa MVP. England managed to beat Japan, 1-0, in its middle match, but fell to the USA and Spain in its first and last games, respectively. A Japan team in transition allowed the most goals in the tournament (7) and failed to win a game, finishing fourth. After a 19-goal bonanza in 2019, the 2020 SheBelieves Cup produced 13 total scores.

2019 SHEBELIEVES CUP

In the 2019 SheBelieves Cup, the USA finished second, in part because the Americans allowed an equalizer in second half stoppage time in a 2-2 draw with Japan to open the tournament. The USA then drew England, 2-2, and beat Brazil, 1-0, but England won the event after a 2-1 win over Brazil and a 3-0 win against Japan. Japan went 1-1-1, beating Brazil 3-1 to finish third, while Brazil failed to win a game and finished fourth. In the 2018 SheBelieves Cup the goals finally started flowing. After the first two tournaments produced nine goals each, 16 were scored over the six games in 2018. The U.S. games were tight as the Americans defeated Germany 1-0 on a goal from Megan Rapinoe, tied France 1-1 on a goal from Mallory Pugh, and then defeated England 1-0 on an England own goal that was created by a Megan Rapinoe cross. England finished second by virtue of its 4-1 win against a France team playing a few reserves and a 2-2 draw with Germany. France finished third but did end on a high note with a 3-0 victory against Germany while the Germans finished fourth after failing to win a game.

CINDY PARLOW CONE

U.S. Soccer President

Cindy Parlow Cone is first female President of U.S. Soccer, the second sitting National Soccer Hall of Fame inductee and the first to hold the position who played for a senior U.S. National Team. Cone was elevated from Vice President to President of the U.S. Soccer Federation on March 12, 2020.

She was elected Vice President of U.S. Soccer in February of 2019 at the U.S. Soccer Annual General Meeting and served in the position for a year, completing the term that was vacated. She then was re-elected to a full, four-year term at the 2020 AGM in February. While leading the Federation back to resuming programming through the COVID-19 global pandemic, which began just a month after her reelection, Cone's priorities as President included focusing on improving U.S. Soccer's efforts to take meaningful action in the diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging space, bringing commercial rights back in house, team building, and leading efforts to grow the game in all its forms.

Cone is a title-winning coach at the grassroots, collegiate and professional levels and holds a USSF "A" coaching license. During the past 20 years, she has served on numerous committees, including the FIFA Steering Committee, the U.S. Soccer Medical Advisory Committee, Appeals Committee, and the Athletes' Council.

The Memphis, Tennessee native was a star for the U.S. Women's National Team during a career that spanned 1996-2004, earning 158 caps while scoring 75 goals, which still stands as 8th all-time on the USA's all-time goals list. Her seven career hat tricks are still second all-time behind Mia Hamm and Carli Lloyd. She also had 35 career assists. In 1998, she won U.S. Soccer's inaugural Young Female Player of the Year Award.

At 5-foot-11, she was a towering presence on the USA's forward line. During her career she was a two-time Olympic gold medal winner (1996 & 2004) and a member of the historic 1999 Women's World Cup winning side, scoring two goals in that tournament including a diving header against Nigeria in group play and the crucial opening score in the 2-0 semifinal victory against Brazil.

She played her last match for the U.S. WNT on Dec. 8, 2004, in a 5-0 win against Mexico at The Home Depot Center in Carson, Calif., in what was also the final match for Mia Hamm, Julie Foudy, Brandi Chastain and Joy Fawcett (who was on the bench but did not play).

She is the youngest player ever to win both an Olympic gold medal and a Women's World Cup title. In total, she played in nine Olympic matches and 11 World Cup matches. In 2000, she led the USA with 19 goals, which was her career high in a calendar year. She had four hat tricks that year, one shy of a U.S. record for a single year.

She also played for the USA's youth National Teams and played three seasons in the WUSA, the USA's first women's pro league, advancing to two championship games with the Atlanta Beat.

Inducted into the National Soccer Hall of Fame in 2018, Cone was a four-time All-American at the University of North Carolina, score 68 goals and 53 assists in 103 games, and was on teams that won two NCAA titles. She won both the Hermann Trophy and the M.A.C. Player of the Year awards as the consensus college soccer player of the year as a junior and a senior, which at the time, paired her with Mia Hamm as the only twotime winners of both awards. Cone was also pioneer of sorts for college soccer, entering UNC early after three years of high school. She majored in Education at UNC.

She also served as an assistant coach at UNC, winning four NCAA titles, including 2012 when she took coaching lead due to an illness to head coach Anson Dorrance's wife.

She was also the first head coach to win a National Women's Soccer League championship, guiding Portland Thorns FC to the title in 2013 during the league's inaugural season.

Cone is on the board for the non-profit Goals for Girls, an organization that uses "soccer to teach leadership skills in young women and teach them how to be agents of change, in their own lives and in their communities."

She is currently the Girls' Director for NCFC Youth in the Durham-Chapel Hill area.

In the summer of 2007, she married John Cone in Chapel Hill. She has a street – Cindy Parlow Drive – named after her in her hometown of Memphis, Tenn.

WILL WILSON

CEO / Secretary General
U.S. Soccer Federation

Will Wilson was named CEO / Secretary General of the U.S. Soccer Federation on March 23, 2020.

Wilson came to U.S. Soccer with 29 years of diverse and vast experience in the international and domestic sports industry. He brought a broad knowledge in management, P&L responsibility and overall strategic planning to the role with one of the USA's largest and most successful National Governing Bodies.

In his first year as CEO, Wilson, 53, oversaw U.S. Soccer's agreement with Nike to extend the long-standing partnership which began in 1995. The deal marked the largest commercial agreement in U.S. Soccer history and one of Nike's largest soccer federation investments globally, and was also the third commercial partnership signed under the organization's new leadership.

He joined U.S. Soccer from the Wasserman Media Group, where he served as an Executive Vice President and Co-Head of Football for the past eight years. Before joining Wasserman at the start of 2012, Wilson held executive positions with Soccer United Marketing, the National Football League, Champ Car World Series and Arena Football.

A seasoned sports executive who is fluent in Spanish, Wilson has amassed a background in management, commercial planning, sponsorship, player relations and media negotiation, he has experience working in both Mexico and Europe during a career in sports business which has seen him serve clubs and leagues at various levels and in a variety of positions.

As an NFLPA Certified Contract Advisor, he came to U.S. Soccer with a vast understanding of labor issues and working within the constructs of a collective bargaining agreement. Throughout his career he developed extensive knowledge and real-world experience in the areas of sponsorship acquisition, media negotiation, contract negotiations, ticket & hospitality sales, marketing/PR, brand development, event management and retail licensing.

At Wasserman, his group represented several coaches and more than 100 NFL players, including former quarterback Andrew Luck, for whom he negotiated the most lucrative contact in NFL history to date in 2016. The contract featured new record highs in both annual and guaranteed salary.

Before joining Wasserman Media Group, Wilson worked at Soccer United Marketing from 2008-2012, where he managed international partnerships and properties and oversaw the special events group for Major League Soccer and SUM. He oversaw the promotion of numerous major soccer matches and events, and negotiated business relationships with some of the world's premier soccer properties.

Wilson also served as Executive Vice President of Sales for the Arena Football League (AFL), where he managed the growth of the AFL's national sponsorship and media sales, reporting directly to the Commissioner and worked regularly with the owners and the Board of Directors.

In this role he managed the series-wide domestic and international revenue streams and oversaw the sponsorship, broadcast media, licensing, marketing, PR, and partner services functions of the international open wheel racing sanctioning body. He reported directly to the President/CEP and worked daily with race-team owners and the Board of Directors.

Wilson lived in Mexico City for five years when he served as Managing Director of NFL Mexico. Wilson oversaw all aspects of the League business in Latin America, including sponsorship, media rights, licensing, and special events. He was a major part of securing for Mexico the first-ever regular season NFL game outside of the United States which drew a record crowd of 103,000 fans at Azteca Stadium. He also led the negotiation team that restructured the NFL in-market terrestrial agreements to include joint live Super Bowl broadcasts for the first time.

Prior to his time in Mexico, he served as General Manager of the NFL Europe League Scottish Claymores based in Glasgow, Scotland, where he developed and managed all business initiatives including ticket sales, sponsorship, marketing/promotion, public relations and event and fan development programs. Wilson also did a stint in Germany with the Frankfurt Galaxy in the World League of American Football as the Assistant Director of Public Relations.

Born in London, England, Wilson graduated with a degree in English Literature from Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, where he was a four-year letter winner in football. He also holds an MBA from the Tecnológico de Monterrey Graduate School of Business (EGADE) in Monterrey, Mexico. He has lived 28 years of his life abroad.

U.S. SOCCER REFEREE PROGRAM

The U.S. Soccer Federation Referee Program's membership ranks among the largest of all FIFA nations with nearly 120,000 registered officials, mentors, coaches, and assignors. Officials registered with U.S. Soccer work sanctioned games at all levels of competition including youth, adult, professional, and international matches.

Referee Education Resources

U.S. Soccer is committed to producing referee education resources aimed at supporting officials regularly working amateur games at the youth and adult levels. These officials represent the foundation of the U.S. Soccer Referee Program and their training and development is paramount to the success of the program. -This is accomplished through the development of targeted training materials and standardized curricula supporting specific levels of competition.

Referee Identification and Training

These initiatives focus on identifying and training high potential officials with the ability to referee at the professional and international levels. These efforts see U.S. Soccer assign a network of highly qualified referees, referee mentors and referee coaches to various elite-level regional and national events. Quantitative and qualitative data from these events are used to classify the program's up-and-coming and high performing officials.

The Professional Referee Organization (PRO)

The Professional Referee Organization is the organization responsible for managing the referee, assistant referee, and vmo program in professional soccer leagues in the United States and Canada, working alongside the U.S. Soccer Federation, Major League Soccer, United Soccer League and National Women's Soccer League.

The organization's goals are to increase the quality of officiating in U.S. and Canadian professional leagues, develop more professional-quality officials at a younger age, and produce officials who will represent the United States and Canada in FIFA competitions.

2022 FIFA International Panel

A list of international referees and assistant referees that are eligible to officiate FIFA sanctioned matches in the coming year is announced annually by FIFA. The current American contingent totals 10 referees, 16 assistant referees, five video match officials and one futsal referee.

U.S. SOCCER'S COACHING DEPARTMENT AND NATIONAL COACHING SCHOOLS

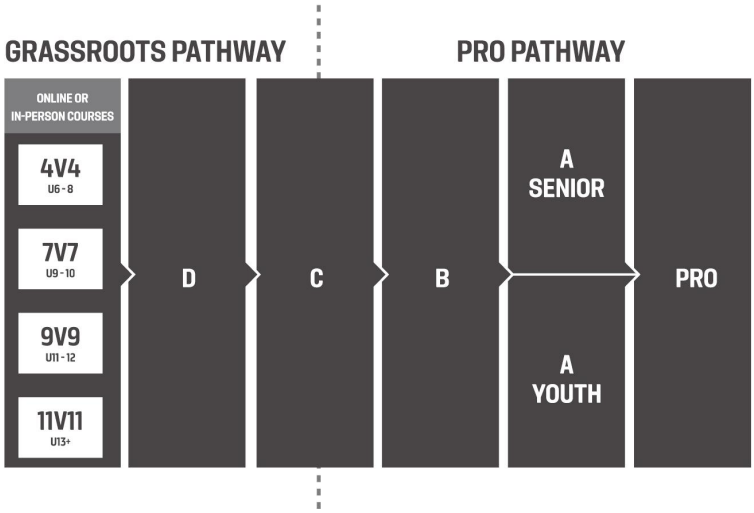
U.S. Soccer Coaching Education was established in the early 1970s by famed West German teacher and coach Dettmar Cramer. Each level of the U.S. Soccer Coaching License Pathway is designed to meet the needs of coaches ranging from the coach who is inexperienced in soccer to the former professional player who desires to coach in amateur, professional or international competitions.

U.S. Soccer has licensed thousands of coaches in the decades since the department was first founded. U.S. Soccer is committed to providing soccer coaches with up-to-date theoretical and practical knowledge so coaches can develop to their full potential. The diagram below shows the current U.S. Soccer Coaching License Pathway.



U.S. Soccer provides courses in which coaches can earn nationally-recognized certifications which afford them opportunities and recognition inherent in the attainment of various levels of coaching expertise. Proven curriculums improve coaches' knowledge of the game and provide valuable information on current coaching trends and international developments in the game.

The course curriculums are based on sets of tasks that a coach must carry out. These tasks are defined as coaching matches, coaching training sessions, leading the team, leading the player, managing a performance environment, leadership and more. Coaches will be educated and assessed based on the progression of these tasks relative to each course within the license pathway.

A (Senior and Youth), B and C level courses span four to ten months and take place over a series of meetings. Candidates have an opportunity to practically apply what they have learned in their home environment with their own team between meetings. U.S. Soccer staff typically travel to assess candidates in their home environment for the Pro, A-Senior and A-Youth courses.

U.S. Soccer also offers C, D and Grassroots level courses that are available through member organizations. While the member organizations are responsible for the execution of these courses, the curriculum is developed and overseen by U.S. Soccer Coaching Education. For more information on U.S. Soccer Coaching Education courses, visit the U.S. Soccer Learning Center at learning.ussoccer.com.

The following is an overview of U.S. Soccer Coaching Education courses:

Introduction to Grassroots Coaching

The Introduction to Grassroots Coaching is a cost-free, online module intended for all parents and coaches of youth players. The focus of this grassroots introduction is to share U.S. Soccer's best practices in creating a fun, supportive, activity-centered and age-appropriate environment for grassroots players.

Grassroots Licenses

The eight Grassroots courses, which replaced the F and E License courses, offer an a-la-carte approach meant to empower coaches with education that is relevant to their specific coaching needs. The Grassroots Licenses will help coaches ensure fun, enjoyable and developmentally-appropriate environments for their players. Candidates will learn how to understand the basic needs of grassroots players, the basic structure of the game, the basic structure of a grassroots training session and the basic tasks of a grassroots coach. A unique combination of three of the eight Grassroots Licenses, including two in-person courses (one of which must be 11v11) and one online course now formally represent the prerequisite to progress to the U.S. Soccer D License.

D License

The National D license is a 45 to 60-hour course for the grassroots coach who meets the prerequisites outlined above. The focus of this course) is to prepare coaches to work with youth teams (U-6 to U-19) in a participation environment. Coaches will learn to create game-like training sessions and a gameday environment that encourages players' ownership of their decision-making. The course consists of a mix of classroom lectures and field sessions that focus on using the Play-Practice-Play training methodology.

C License

The C license prepares coaches to work with youth teams (U-11 to U-19) in a participation environment. The goals of the course are to educate candidates in creating a series of progressive game-like training sessions that encourage players' ownership of their decision-making and creating a gameday environment linked to training session goals.

B License

The B license prepares coaches to work with youth (U-13+) or senior teams in a performance environment. Goals of the course are to educate candidates in implementing a game model based on a style of play as well as creating and implementing a coaching structure to influence players during games and training sessions.

A-Youth License

The A-Youth License prepares coaches to work as a head coach with youth teams in a high-performance environment. The course runs for 10 months, typically including three in-person meetings and three development periods. Candidates are educated in creating and articulating a style of play in a game model as well as creating and implementing a training and coaching methodology to develop the team and individual players during training sessions and games.

A-Senior License

The A-Senior License prepares coaches to work as a head coach with a senior team in a high-performance environment. Similar to the A-Youth License, candidates are educated in creating and articulating a style of play in a game model as well as creating and implementing a training and coaching methodology to develop the team and individual players during training sessions and games.

Academy Director License

The Academy Director License is designed to meet the high demands and standards of leading an academy in an elite youth development environment. Goals of the course are to educate candidates in creating an elite training and competitive environment that is aligned with the club philosophy, and creating a culture of excellence that seeks to develop a complete player on and off the field.

Pro License

The Pro License prepares candidates to work as a head coach with a senior team at the highest level of national and international professional soccer. Primary goals of the course are to educate the candidate in developing a winning team culture, creating a game model that aligns with the club culture, the quality of the players and beliefs of the coach, and developing and using a leadership style that drives the high-performance environment. The year-long course is centered around the management of a professional team.

Director of Coaching License

The Director of Coaching (DOC) license prepares candidates to work as a technical leader of a youth soccer club in a participation environment. Primary goals of the course are to create a player-centered development environment to develop the player on and off the field and to create a safe training and competitive environment.

Talent Scout

The Talent Scout license prepares youth scouts to learn the process of identification, examination and monitoring of potential (top) talented players. Students will acquire or further develop the competencies (knowledge, skills, attitude) and personal traits necessary to work as a Talent Scout. The primary goal of the course is to help youth scouts learn the process of identification, examination and monitoring of potential (top) talented players.

Coach For Community

Coach For Community is a free educational resource. The target is to provide the necessary tools and resources for coaches to create the most impactful learning environments for players. While the primary focus is on entry-level coaches, the program is open to all. The three key program objectives are to share best practices for player development including coaching games and practices (with a focus on U.S. Soccer's Play-Practice-Play methodology), provide expertise in grassroots coach education and player development, and to make connections with local soccer leaders.

Each individual that completes a free registration in U.S. Soccer's Learning Center and participates in the event will receive a $25 voucher to be used towards one of the four online courses.

U.S. Soccer National Development Center

Home to U.S. Soccer Coaching Education and Sporting Kansas City's first team, the National Development Center celebrated its grand opening on May 16, 2018. The $75 million, 50.49-acre facility, which serves as the home to the U.S. Soccer Coaching Education department, is also home to Children's Mercy Sports Medicine Center. Sporting the latest soccer-specific technology and sports medicine innovations, the NDC represents the future of the sport in the United States and aligns with U.S. Soccer's primary objective of improving the sport at all levels.

Located along the north side of the NDC, the U.S. Soccer Coaching Education Center provides a world-class environment designed to maximize the development of coaches. With full-time administrative and technical staff, two locker rooms, four classrooms with operable walls, six breakout rooms, all-day cafeteria access, two full-size, synthetic turf fields with LED sports lighting, and a two-story coaching pavilion, the NDC will host more than its fair share of U.S. Soccer coaching courses over the coming years.

The NDC is located at 1913 Pinnacle Way in Kansas City, KS. Sitting approximately 1.5 miles northeast of Children's Mercy Park, Sporting Kansas City's home venue, the NDC is about a 20-minute ride from the Kansas City International Airport and equidistant from downtown Kansas City (Missouri).

U.S. Soccer National Training Center

U.S. Soccer's National Training Center at Dignity Health Sports Park in Carson, Calif., stands as one of the great achievements in the organization's 100-plus-year history. What started as a vision in 1999 became a reality with its construction in 2003 and is now widely hailed as an exemplar of sports infrastructure in the United States.

The complex is a first-class facility that shows the integration of all U.S. National Team programs, from talent identification camps straight through to the full Men's and Women's National Teams playing in the main stadium.

The National Training Center officially opened on June 6, 2003, as the U.S. Under-17 Men's National Team arrived to begin training. The first game at what is now known as Dignity Health Sports Park was played in the stadium one day later on June 7, 2003, as the Los Angeles Galaxy topped the Colorado Rapids 2-0 in Major League Soccer action.

Located on the campus of California State University, Dominguez Hills, the National Training Center includes four grass soccer fields, two FieldTurf soccer fields and a general training area. The complex also includes three additional practice fields, as well as all the necessary team support facilities, including locker rooms, a training room, a weight room and office space for staff. U.S. Soccer has approximately 10 full-time staff working out of the National Training Center.

In a very short time, the National Training Center established itself as the center of the soccer world in the United States and was the main reason the United States was able to serve as an emergency host for the 2003 FIFA Women's World Cup. The facility hosted early round games, as well as the third-place match and the final on short notice after the tournament was moved from China to the United States.

The stadium has also hosted numerous international and professional tournaments, including the Concacaf Gold Cup, Champions League, SuperLiga and InterLiga, while also attracting some of the largest clubs in the world for friendlies.

The U.S. Soccer Foundation

The Major Charitable Arm of Soccer

The U.S. Soccer Foundation is a prominent leader in sports-based youth development, using soccer as a vehicle for social change among youth. The Foundation provides nationally recognized programs that are proven to deliver positive health and social outcomes. Its innovative, accessible and affordable initiatives offer safe environments in which both boys and girls thrive. Since the Foundation's inception, it has impacted more than 13 million individuals through more than $100 million in direct funding to over 600 organizations nationwide. The Foundation recently announced its goals to serve one million children annually in quality soccer programs and build 1,000 safe playing spaces by 2026.

Dedicated to growing the sport of soccer and using it as a vehicle for positive change, the Foundation runs three national programs:

SOCCER FOR SUCCESS

Soccer for Success is the U.S. Soccer Foundation's afterschool program, offered free to participants, that uses soccer as a tool to address children's health issues, teach critical life skills, and promote healthy lifestyles in underserved communities. The Foundation partners with community-based organizations across the country to operate Soccer for Success sites – providing tens of thousands of children with quality afterschool programming led by trained coach-mentors three times per week for the entire school year. Currently, the Soccer for Success program serves more than 40,000 children in over 180 communities across the country. To date, more than 100,000 youth have participated in Soccer for Success.

To address some of the challenges created by the COVID-19 pandemic, the Foundation adapted the Soccer for Success program. Partners now have access to the Soccer for Success curriculum that provides coach-mentors with training, tools, and practice plans to run virtual or in-person socially distanced sessions.

To bring elements of the program to all children and families, the Foundation created Soccer for Success at Home which incorporates the program's five components. This free online hub includes videos, activities, and resources.

SAFE PLACES TO PLAY

In addition to programming, the U.S. Soccer Foundation works to provide children with safe and accessible places to play by transforming underutilized spaces into soccer fields. In communities where space is at a premium, the Foundation developed the 'mini-pitch' to provide customized solutions to meet communities' needs. The Foundation's Safe Places to Play program also provides grants to organizations to help them build or enhance field space(s) in their communities.

PASSBACK

Since 2002, the U.S. Soccer Foundation's Passback program has collected and redistributed more than one million pieces of soccer equipment to children in underserved communities. Thanks to dedicated individuals, soccer clubs, and organizations that collect and donate soccer equipment, the Passback program is able to bring the game of soccer to children who love the sport but can't afford the gear to play.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Foundation is no longer distributing gear to local organizations. Instead, all equipment collected for the Passback program should be shipped to SOCCER.COM directly via the address below.

In addition to its programs, the Foundation is dedicated to assisting those who serve youth through soccer in underserved communities. Each year the Foundation organizes the Urban Soccer Symposium, an event which brings together non-profit organizations that directly support soccer programs and projects to share funding resources, best practices and other technical expertise. The Foundation has laid the groundwork for networking and partnership opportunities among urban soccer programs nationwide.

NATIONAL SOCCER HALL OF FAME

NATIONAL SOCCER HALL OF FAME

The National Soccer Hall of Fame (NSHOF) is a public-private partnership among FC Dallas, the City of Frisco, Frisco Independent School District and U.S. Soccer Federation. The NSHOF, part of a $55 million renovation at Toyota Stadium in Frisco, Texas, contains two components: The NSHOF Experience and the HOF Club.

The NSHOF Experience is a 10,000-square foot segment of the NSHOF that honors the past, while fully incorporating modern technology of the present and future including virtual reality, gesture technology and interactive digital video boards throughout to celebrate the players and builders of American soccer that have elevated the sport to where it is today. It features interactive exhibits, iconic soccer memorabilia and serves as the home for Hall of Fame induction ceremonies annually.

The NSHOF's home in Frisco opened in 2018 after not having a home for seven years, with the previous home located in Oneonta, N.Y. from 1979-2010. The NSHOF was officially recognized by U.S. Soccer in 1983.

What is now the National Soccer Hall of Fame first sprang to life in 1950 when a group of former professional and amateur players from the Philadelphia "Old-timers" Association took it upon themselves to recognize the achievements of soccer in America. Sixty years after the "Old-timers" first got together, more than 300 members have been elected to the Hall of Fame for their outstanding contributions to American soccer, both on and off the field.

The Hall of Fame also possesses an archive of more than 80,000 items, which make up one of the largest collections of soccer artifacts and records in the world. The collection includes such rare pieces as the world's oldest soccer ball (made in the USA) and both the 1991 and 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup trophies. The collection also includes the North American Soccer League archive, the 1994 FIFA World Cup USA archive, a rare soccer photography collection from New York depression-era photographer John Albok, materials from the U.S. National Teams in World Cup competition and artifacts from the American Soccer League of the 1920's and 1950's.

Members are elected annually via three ballots – Player, Builder and Veteran (player), and since 2018 have been inducted in Frisco, Texas. Beginning with the Class of 2021, a 96-member Selection Committee consisting of Hall of Famers, media members, historians and soccer executives and coaches participate in annual elections. For the election of the Class of 2022, the maximum number of inductees is three Players, one Builder and one Veteran.

The USA's 3.9 million registered players are the second most in the world, behind only Germany (6.3 million*), and ahead of third-ranked Brazil (2.1 million*).

Soccer continues to see impressive participation growth at the high school and collegiate levels. In the 2014-15 academic year, Soccer was fourth most popular high school sport for girls (behind only track and field, volleyball and basketball) with 375,681 participants, but showed the steepest continued incline in new participants^ over the last 15 years. Participation levels increase for soccer at the collegiate level relative to all other sports with only track and field involving more athletes; however new track and field team numbers are stagnant, while colleges and universities continue adding women's soccer programs with 599 having been started throughout the country since 1988-89.+

With approximately 145,000 registered referees, the U.S. is second in the world behind only Japan.

According to the 2010 FIFA Big Count, there are nearly 800,000 soccer officials in the U.S. (coaches, referees, administrators).

SOCCER ON TELEVISION

As the game has grown in the United States, so has the amount of soccer on television. With the amount of coverage increasing each year, soccer fans in the U.S. are able to watch games – in a single weekend no less – from top leagues in countries such as Argentina, Brazil, England, France, Germany, Italy, Mexico, and Spain.

Remarkable growth in the demand for domestic soccer viewership led to the signing of a landmark TV rights deal between U.S. Soccer, MLS and major television broadcasters ESPN, FOX Sports and Univision in 2014. An eight-year agreement through 2022 will see all three networks televise both U.S. Men's and Women's National Team matches. ESPN and FS1 will split the English-language Men's National Team broadcast package of approximately 10 games per year and will likewise share the schedule of Women's National Team games. TUDN, the exclusive Spanish language home of U.S. Soccer, will broadcast all USMNT games, plus a minimum of four USWNT matches each year throughout the term of the agreement.

The U.S. viewer has benefited from the overall increase in the number of televised games, be they domestic or international matches, and viewership will continue to grow in the years to come.

Details of the U.S. Soccer and MLS television broadcast deal through 2022:

ESPN Networks & FOX Sports

- ESPN and FOX Sports 1 will share all U.S. Soccer matches.
- ESPN and FOX Sports will share MLS Cup Playoff matches outside of two Univision games.
- MLS Cup will alternate each year between ESPN and FOX Sports.

2018/2019/2022/2023 FIFA WORLD CUP TELEVISION RIGHTS

In October of 2011, the amazing growth of the sport was demonstrated when a bidding war over the U.S. broadcast rights for the 2018 and 2022 FIFA World Cups and 2019 and 2023 FIFA Women's World Cups played out in Zurch, Switzerland. In the end, a record sum of more than $1 billion was paid by Fox and Telemundo, an increase of more than 147 percent over the combined $425 million that ESPN and Univisión paid for the rights to the 2010 and 2014 tournaments.

Fox paid a reported $450 to $500 million to beat out ESPN and NBC for the English rights, while Telemundo is said to have paid $600 million to outbid Univision for the Spanish rights. Additionally, FIFA granted FOX the U.S. broadcast rights for the 2026 World Cup, which was awarded to the United Bid from Canada, Mexico and the United States at the 2018 FIFA Congress.

FIFA – SOCCER'S WORLD GOVERNING BOARD

Founded in 1904 to provide unity among national soccer associations, the Federation Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) boasts 211 members, rivaling that of the United Nations, and is arguably the most prestigious sports organization in the world.

FIFA was established on May 21, 1904, by seven national associations — Belgium, Denmark, France, Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland — to "promote the game of Association Football (as opposed to rugby or American football), to foster friendly relations among National Associations, Confederations, their officials and players, by promoting the organization of football matches at all levels, and to control every type of association football by taking steps as shall be deemed necessary or advisable."

FIFA's birth was a result of the growing number of international games shortly after the dawn of the 20th century. Soccer leaders in Europe felt that such expanded competition required a governing body, and under the leadership of Robert Guerin, a French journalist, the seven founding members gathered in Paris to shape the future of the sport. Guerin, FIFA's first president, presided over the organization from 1904 to 1906. Seven other men have also served as FIFA president, including Jules Rimet for 33 years from 1921 to 1954.

Currently, Italy's Gianni Infantino serves as FIFA president, having been elected in 2016's Extraordinary Congress held in the wake of corruption allegations against numerous FIFA Officials that resulted in former president Joseph "Sepp" Blatter stepping aside and then being banned from FIFA by its Ethics Committee. FIFA's general secretary since 2009, Infantino served a three-year term as FIFA president and was re-elected for a second term at the 2019 FIFA Presidential Election during the 69th FIFA Congress in Paris on June 5.

Under FIFA's governance soccer has become the world's most popular sport. According to the Federation's 2006 "Big Count," the game is played by more than 150 million registered athletes — including 10 million women — and viewed by billions of fans in stadiums and on television worldwide.

As soccer's ultimate administrative authority, FIFA governs all facets of the game: regulating the rules of play, overseeing the transfers of players internationally, organizing international competitions such as the FIFA World Cup, establishing standards for refereeing, coaching and sports medicine, and encouraging soccer's development around the world.

Among the official world championships staged by FIFA are the World Cup, the Women's World Cup, the Under-20 World Cup, the Under-20 Women's World Cup, the Under-17 World Cup, the Under-17 Women's World Cup, the Beach Soccer World Cup and the Futsal World Cup. Additionally, FIFA oversees the men's and women's Olympic Football Tournament staged under the auspices of the International Olympic Committee every four years. FIFA has also staged the FIFA Confederations Cup, a competition between each of its confederations' champions, and the FIFA Club World Cup, which was held at the beginning of 2000 for the first time in Brazil.

Concacaf

HOST OF THE WORLD'S GAME

The Confederation of North, Central America and Caribbean Association Football (Concacaf) was founded in 1961 and serves as the organizing body for 41 national associations, including the United States, and spans from Canada in the north to Suriname in the south. Concacaf organizes international competition in a number of events, including the Champions League, qualifying tournaments for all FIFA competitions and the Gold Cup.

After a shutdown of all competitions due to the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020, the originally postponed inaugural Concacaf Nations League Final Four took place in Denver, Colorado from June 3-6, 2021. The United States claimed the title after defeating archrivals Mexico in extra time with a penalty kick goal from Christian Pulisic and a dramatic penalty kick save from Ethan Horvath in the dying moments of the match. The USA would earn its second consecutive Concacaf major title just one month later after beating Mexico yet again to claim the 2021 Gold Cup.

Additionally, the Concacaf Men's Olympic Qualifying Championship which was to be held in March 2020 and the start of Men's World Cup qualifying, which was to hold its first windows in September and November that same year, were all postponed and played on those same dates in 2021. Of course, the 2020 Tokyo Olympics was also postponed until 2021 and the United States won the bronze medal.

While the Under-20 Women's World Cup qualifying did take place in January 2020 – and was won by the USA – many events didn't take place, including qualifying for the U-17 Women's World Cup. Both youth Women's World Cups were eventually cancelled by FIFA, as were the Men's Youth World Cups for '21 because qualifying could not be held.

In December of 2020, Concacaf announced it would launch new senior Women's National Team competitions to benefit the entire Confederation which began in 2021 and will include major centralized summer tournaments in 2022, which will conclude with qualifying for the 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup, and 2024, which will conclude with the first Concacaf Women's Nation's League tournament.

The structure of new competitions is aimed at transforming Women's National Team football across the entire confederation. The new calendar prioritizes providing more official match dates for all Concacaf region women's senior national teams and ensuring there is elite competition to showcase the highest level of women's international football. Through this new calendar, Concacaf will more than double the number of official senior women's national team matches compared with the current cycle of competitions.

This major development for the women's game follows the launch in June 2019 of Concacaf W – the Confederation's women's football strategy – which has focused on working with Concacaf Member Associations (MAs) to grow all aspects of women's football in North and Central America and the Caribbean.

2019 was a positive year for Concacaf in that the U.S. Women's National Team claimed its fourth Women's World Cup title, winning all seven games in France en route to the historic title which concluded with a 2-0 victory against the Netherlands in Lyon, France. In his first major tournament since taking the helm of the U.S. Men's National Team, head coach Gregg Berhalter marshaled a young and developing side to the 2019 Concacaf Gold Cup Final where they fell in a 1-0 thriller against Mexico. The USA also finished atop its group in Concacaf Nations League play in the fall.

Concacaf kicked off the summer of 2018 with the announcement that the United Bid of the United States, Canada and Mexico was awarded the right to host the 2026 FIFA World Cup. In October, three teams: the USA,

Canada, and Jamaica, qualified for the 2019 FIFA World Cup in France. Jamaica became the first women's team from the Caribbean to qualify for a FIFA Women's World Cup while the USA won its 12th regional title.

In 2017, the United States won the biannual Confederation championship in thrilling fashion with a 2-1 win against Jamaica in the 2017 Gold Cup Final.

The previous year in 2016, Concacaf hosted the Copa America Centenario in honor of the 100th anniversary of the world's oldest international football tournament. In stunning fashion, Chile retained the Copa America crown it had also won a year earlier in a rematch against Argentina in the Centenario Final that drew 82,026 fans, making it the most well-attended final of the Millennium. Staged outside South America for the first time, the tournament featured six teams from Concacaf and all 10 teams from CONMEBOL as the two American Confederations partnered for the historic competition, setting a new standard for worldwide inter-confederation cooperation.

2015 began Concacaf's current run of hosting the world's largest football tournaments when it held the FIFA Women's World Cup in Canada – which was won by the USA -- its first World Cup at the full international level since the United States hosted the Women's World Cup in 2003. In recent history, Concacaf has hosted the 2014 U-20 Women's World Cup in Canada, the 2011 U-17 World Cup in Mexico and the 2010 U-17 Women's World Cup in Trinidad & Tobago.

The 2012 London Olympic Games proved to be a landmark tournament for the confederation as the U.S. Women's National Team and Mexico U-23 Men's National Team captured gold, making it the first time in the competition's history that teams from the same confederation stood atop the podium.

The 2002 World Cup was a banner tournament for Concacaf that saw the U.S. advance to the quarterfinals, while Mexico won their group to earn a second round berth in Korea and Japan.

In 2005, Concacaf saw one of its men's teams win the first-ever outdoor world championship in the confederation's history as Mexico swept through the FIFA U-17 World Cup in Peru.

In 2000, Guatemala hosted the FIFA Futsal World Cup and in doing so became the first Central American country to host a FIFA world championship. And in 2001, Trinidad & Tobago hosted the spectacular Under-17 World Cup, becoming the first Caribbean country to host a world championship. A year later, the first-ever FIFA Women's Under-19 World Cup was staged in Canada in 2002 and won by the United States. After Trinidad & Tobago hosted the U-17 Women in 2010, Mexico welcomed the 2011 U-17 World Cup for men and triumphed as tournament champions.

As the Confederation's premier event, the Gold Cup is traditionally played every two years by the national teams within Concacaf. It rotated to an odd-year, summer schedule in 2003. Mexico, eight-time winner of the Gold Cup, defeated the U.S. in the 1993, 1998, 2009, 2011 and 2019 finals, downed Brazil in '96 and 2003 and defeated Jamaica in 2015. The U.S. has won six Gold Cups, the inaugural 1991 event, and again in 2002, 2005, 2007, 2013 and 2017. The 2000 Gold Cup was perhaps the most surprising, with Canada taking home their first major international title as the U.S. and Mexico failed to qualify for the semifinals. In 2015, the Confederation's entrant to the FIFA Confederations Cup shifted to a system whereby one nation must win the two Gold Cups held before the Confederations Cup or, if it does not win both editions, enter a one-game playoff against the nation that also won either of the Gold Cup tournaments in advance of a Confederations Cup.

The Women's Gold Cup lasted for three events, with the U.S. winning all three events in 2000, 2002, 2006. In 2002, it took a golden goal from Mia Hamm for the U.S. to dispatch Canada in the final, 2-1, and in 2000 the U.S. downed guest-team Brazil 1-0 to claim the championship. In the most recent edition of the tournament, the U.S. again prevailed in extra time, this time courtesy of a Kristine Lilly penalty kick in the 120th minute. The Women's Gold Cup is now known as the Concacaf Women's Championship.

Concacaf competed in the FIFA Club World Cup for the first time in 2000, when Mexico's Necaxa impressed with a third place finish in the 2000 tournament in Brazil. Most recently, the confederation's best finish came from Mexico's Monterrey, which claimed third in 2012. The Conacacaf club tournament, which is contested amongst 38 nations' domestic league champions, was won by D.C. United in 1998 and 2001. In 2008, Concacaf unveiled its own Champions League to replace the Champions Cup and decide the region's annual club title.

In 1994, Concacaf joined Europe and South America as the only confederations to host three or more World Cup finals. Mexico welcomed the world twice, in 1970 and 1986, while the United States staged the event for the first time in 1994.

Launched on April 6, 1996, Major League Soccer is the U.S. Soccer sanctioned Division I outdoor professional soccer league in the United States. The LA Galaxy are the league's most successful team and its first to claim five MLS Cup titles (2002, 2005, 2011, 2012, 2014), surpassing D.C. United, winners of three of the first four MLS Cup titles (1996, 1997 & 1999) as well as the 2004 crown. Two more clubs have claimed multiple titles; the San Jose Earthquakes (2001, 2003), Houston Dynamo (2006, 2007), Seattle Sounders FC (2016, 2019) and Columbus Crew (2008, 2020). They are joined on the list of MLS Cup champions by the Chicago Fire (1998), Colorado Rapids (2010), Real Salt Lake (2009), Sporting Kansas City (2013), Portland Timbers (2015), Toronto FC (2017) Atlanta United FC (2018) and reigning champions New York City FC (2021).

In 2021, the league will continue to be divided into two conferences: Eastern Conference – Atlanta United FC, Charlotte FC, Chicago Fire FC, Columbus Crew SC, D.C. United, FC Cincinnati, Inter Miami CF, CF Montreal, New England Revolution, New York City FC, New York Red Bulls, Orlando City, Philadelphia Union, Toronto FC; Western Conference – Austin FC, Colorado Rapids, FC Dallas, Houston Dynamo, LA Galaxy, Los Angeles FC, Minnesota United, Nashville SC, Portland Timbers, Real Salt Lake, San Jose Earthquakes, Seattle Sounders FC, Sporting Kansas City and Vancouver Whitecaps FC.

The league has expansion plans to bring the total count of teams to 30 by 2022.Nashville and Miami began play in 2020, Austin FC in 2021, while Charlotte FC and St. Louis SC will play their inaugural seasons in 2022 and 2023, respectively.

MLS has a unique ownership and operating structure, based on a "single entity" concept. Unlike other professional sports leagues, which are a confederation of independent franchise owners, MLS' "single entity" structure allows investors to own an interest in the league, as well as individual teams. MLS believes that the structure will better position the league for long term success.

In 2021, MLS announced the new MLS Next Pro, a division III league set to kick off in March 2022 consisting of 21 pro clubs, including one independent club in Rochester New York FC. The league is set to add more independent clubs in 2023 and beyond. The league serves to build on the MLS pro pathway, which begins at the youth level in MLS Next, which was introduced in 2020 and kicked off in 2021 as a successor to the U.S. Development Academy.

The Washington Spirit won their first-ever NWSL Championship after defeating the Chicago Red Stars 2-1 in extra time in Louisville, Kentucky, while the Portland Thorns won their second Supporters Shield after leading the league with 44 points.

In March of 2020, the league announced a landmark, multi-year media rights agreements, in which CBS Sports and Twitch have acquired the rights to exclusively present all NWSL matches for the next three years, beginning with the 2020 season.

A National Association member of the U.S. Soccer Federation, US Club Soccer is a non-profit organization committed to the development and support of soccer clubs in the United States.

US Club Soccer has been a good standing affiliate of the U.S. Soccer Federation since 2001. A 14-member Board of Directors makes policy decisions for the organization.

US Club Soccer's mission is to effectively foster the growth and development of clubs throughout the United States, creating the best possible development environment for players of all ages in every club.

One of the primary ways this mission is accomplished is through the Players First licensing initiative. Players First, a guiding philosophy of US Club Soccer, is a branded, holistic club soccer experience for parents and players, which emphasizes the development of each individual to his or her full potential, and helps parents make better choices about where their children should play. Players First is based on five pillars: Club Development, Coaching Development, Player Development, Parent Engagement & Education and Player Health & Safety.

US Club Soccer's local and national programs have been developed with strong input from clubs around the country and with a minimum of rules and restrictions.

Among these programs are the National Premier Leagues (NPL), which include 21 leagues throughout the country to provide high-level competition, and to elevate and change the competitive youth landscape based on US Club Soccer's fundamental principles.

While the NPL provides meaningful league-based competition culminating yearly with the NPL post season consisting of NPL Playoffs (boys) and NPL Finals (boys and girls), US Club Soccer also offers national championship aspirations to clubs through the National Cup, a cup-based competition consisting of state cups, Regional events and the National Cup Finals.

The popular PDP and id2 Programs are Olympic Development Programs approved by the United States Olympic Committee and U.S. Soccer Federation. Annually, the id2 Program consists of id² Training Camps in various locations around the country and National Selection programming for boys and girls (id2 National Selection International Tour). Targeted age cycles are coordinated in conjunction with U.S. Soccer.

The id2 Program consistently identifies and develops players ready for youth national team training camps and beyond. Players such as Christian Pulisic, Lindsey Horan, Tyler Adams, Catarina Macario and Tim Weah have all participated in the id2 Program.

US Club Soccer is also committed to the development of coaches and administrators and provides several off-the-field resources for members.

AYSO's success has been based on the philosophies of "Everyone Plays®" and "Balanced Teams," ideas originated 50 years ago by founder Hans F.W. Stierle. AYSO requires every player to play at least half of every game and that individual teams are balanced every year to assure fair play. Other AYSO tenets include open registration, positive coaching and good sportsmanship.

Each year AYSO forms new teams as evenly balanced as possible, providing a stronger learning experience for players as they play teams comprised of similar ability. It also allows for each player to experience playing with a wide variety of teammates of different skill levels.

AYSO is a volunteer-driven organization of more than 225,000 parents and friends who serve as coaches, referees and team administrators. A full-time staff administers AYSO from the organization's National Office in Torrance, California.

CHICAGO:
HOME TO U.S. SOCCER HOUSE

In the tradition of many world soccer federations and the FIFA House in Zurich, the U.S. Soccer Federation took up residence in two refurbished mansions in Chicago's Prairie Avenue Historical District more than two decades ago. Since dubbed the U.S. Soccer House, the corner of 18th Street and Prairie Avenue now serves as the American home of the world's most popular sport.

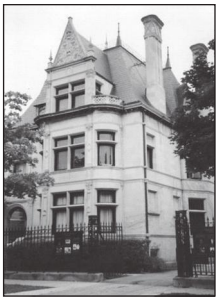
Formerly located in Colorado Springs, Colo., U.S. Soccer moved their operational base into the Kimball house at 1801 South Prairie Avenue and the Coleman-Ames house at 1811 South Prairie Avenue in December of 1991.

Dating back to 1873, Soccer House was built by William Wallace Kimball, founder of Kimball pianos and organs; Joseph Coleman, president of a hardware manufacturing firm; and Coleman's wife, Leonora, who served on the board of the Women's Christian Association in 1886.

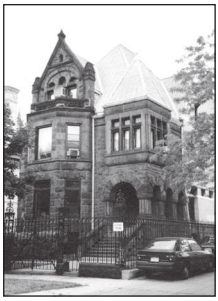
There was a time when Prairie Avenue, from 16th to 22nd streets, was the "Fifth Avenue" of the Midwest. The area is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the men and women who helped shape the industrialization of the Midwest and in 1979 it was designated an historical district.

Nearly 20 millionaires once resided within Soccer House's six-block area. Families who were influential in the industrialization of the Midwest and called South Prairie Avenue home included: George Pullman (railroad cars), John J. Glessner (farming implements), Marshall Field (retailer), Samuel Allerton (banker) and Philip Armour (meat packing).

Kimball House circa 1895



Kimball House



Coleman-Ames House

Prairie Avenue Historical District

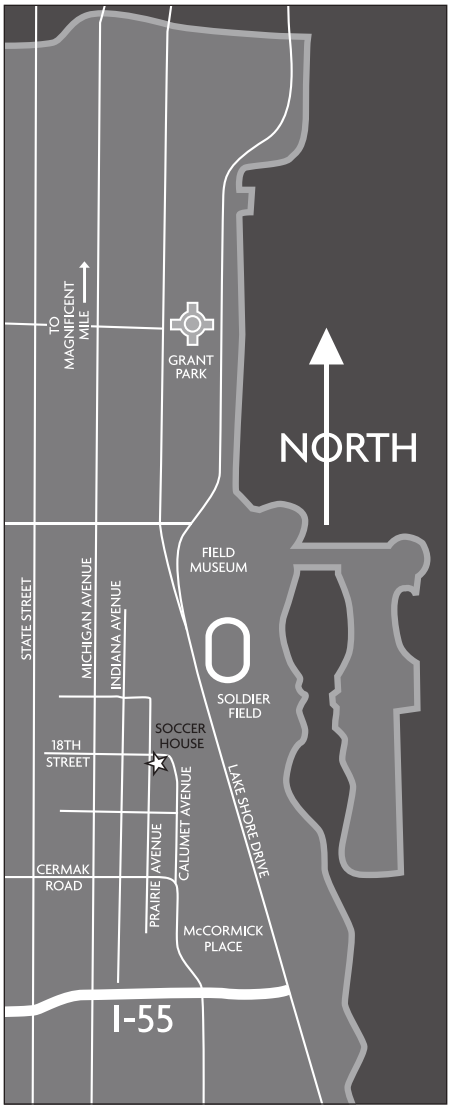
Construction of Prairie Avenue began after the Great Chicago Fire of 1871 when Pullman became the first millionaire to move to the area, building the grandest of Prairie Avenue mansions in 1873. Friends of Pullman followed his lead and also built extravagant homes on Prairie Avenue. The Marshall Field House was the first in the neighborhood to be electrically lit.

The Kimball House, built of Bedford limestone and topped with a slate roof, has an exterior consisting of numerous large and small turrets, gables, balconies and ornamental iron-railed galleries. The interior of Kimball House is as extravagant as its exterior, with wood abundant throughout. The ceilings are beamed in oak and mahogany, and fireplaces made of onyx warm the parlor.

Neighboring the Kimball House to the south is the Coleman-Ames House built in 1886. Numerous families have resided in this mansion. Coleman, the original owner, lived in the home until 1888, when he sold the mansion to Massachusetts coal merchant Miner T. Ames. Ames resided in the house for just two years before he died in 1890. The Coleman-Ames house is home to U.S. Soccer's coaching, refereeing, accounting and technology departments.

It wasn't until the late 1940s that a connecting link between the Kimball and Coleman coach houses was erected, designed to give the courtyard a unified appearance.

With its historic appearance, Soccer House has been Chicago's home to Hollywood, serving as a location shoot for a number of motion pictures, including extended use for the filming of Richard Gere's "Primal Fear."



U.S. SOCCER TIMELINE

Early 1800s: As was the case in England, many American schools and colleges played forms of football, but under rules that varied from place to place.

1862: The Oneida Football Club, made up of Boston prep school students, was organized by Gerritt Smith Miller. The game the Oneidas played was more like rugby than like soccer, but they were the first American team playing any type of football to be organized on a continuing basis, rather than just for the day.

1866: The first game in America using the association football rules standardized three years before in London was played on Oct. 11 in Waukesha, Wis. A team of Carroll College students beat a team of local residents.

1869: A week after they played what has been called the first American football game, teams from Princeton and Rutgers met on Nov. 13 in Princeton, N.J., in a game using association football rules, the first intercollegiate soccer game in America.

1876: Most of the football-playing colleges abandoned soccer in favor of rugby. However, within a few years soccer had begun to take hold in immigrant communities in various American locations such as Fall River, Mass.; Kearny, N.J., and St. Louis.

1883: The first soccer league in America, the Western Football Association, was organized in St. Louis.

1884: The American Football Association, only the second national soccer association outside of the British Isles, but one that was really more regional than national, was organized in Newark, N.J.

1885: The first American Football Association Cup was won by ONT of Kearny, N.J., and a team representing the United States played one from Canada in Kearny on Nov. 28 in the first "international" game in America.

1894: The first attempt to start a pro soccer league in the United States, the American League of Professional Football Clubs, lasted for only three weeks in October. However, a longer-lasting league, the National Association Foot Ball League, began the following spring.

1898: A depression resulting from the financial panic of 1893 caused the suspension of both the American Football Association and the nation's leading league, the National Association Foot Ball League of New Jersey.

1904: A Canadian team won the soccer competition at the Olympic Games in St. Louis.

1905: A 17-game North American tour by the Pilgrims, an English amateur team, helped to revive soccer in the United States. St. Leo's won the first of its 10 consecutive St. Louis Major League titles.

1906: West Hudson of Harrison, N.J., won the first championship of the revived AFA Cup. A year later, it added the first championship of the revived National Association Foot Ball League.

1913: The United States Football Association was founded at an April 5 meeting in New York. FIFA, which had been founded in 1904, granted it provisional membership later in the year and full membership in 1914.

1914: The first National Challenge Cup tournament, the championship of the new USFA, was won by the Brooklyn Field Club (the tournament's name was later changed to the U.S. Open Cup).

FIRST TEAM: The very first U.S. Men's National Team squad prepares to take the field in their first match, a 3-2 victory over Sweden in Stockholm on Aug. 20, 1916.

1916: The first national team organized by the USFA, named the All-American Football Club, played six games in a tour of Sweden and Norway. The captain, Thomas Swords of Fall River, scored the first goal ever for the U.S. national team, against Sweden.

1919: Bethlehem Steel, after sweeping the National Challenge Cup, the AFA Cup and the National Association Foot Ball League, became the first American club to make a European tour when it played 14 games in Sweden and Denmark.

1920: The National Challenge Cup was won for the first time by a team from west of the Alleghenies, Ben Millers of St. Louis.

1921: The original American Soccer League, largely a merger of the National Association Foot Ball League in the Middle Atlantic states and the Southern New England Soccer League, began play. In its first season, it included three teams from Massachusetts, two from New York, two from New Jersey and one from Pennsylvania.

1928: The Soccer War, a year-long battle between the ASL and the USFA, began with ASL demands to take over the leading role in administering the sport.

Later in the year, the Fall River Marksmen, again winners of the ASL and National Challenge Cup titles, made a six-game tour of Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Austria.

1932: Disputes over the definition of an amateur and the costs of long travel distance from Europe caused the elimination of soccer from the program at the Los Angeles Olympic Games.

1933: Two years after the demise of the original American Soccer League, a new ASL, with a scaled-back budget, began play.

1934: Buff Donelli, later a famous American football coach, scored four goals in a World Cup qualifying victory against Mexico. The U.S. Men too part in their second consecutive World Cup, going winless in Italy.

1977: Pelé won his only North American Soccer League championship as the Cosmos defeated the Seattle Sounders in the final. A month after the season, Pele played his final game, changing uniforms at halftime in a match between the Cosmos and Santos, in East Rutherford, N.J. By signing Franz Beckenbauer of West Germany and Carlos Alberto of Brazil, the Cosmos became the first team in world soccer history to field the captains of the last two World Cup-winning teams.

1978: American soccer rode the crest of the attendance surge that followed Pelé's American venture, with the North American Soccer League expanding from 18 teams to 24 and the Major Indoor Soccer League beginning play with six teams.

1982: A European selection played a World selection in the FIFA all-star game in East Rutherford, N.J., but the NASL surge was beginning to fade. The Cosmos won the last of their five NASL championships. North Carolina won the first NCAA women's soccer championship.

1985: The North American Soccer League folded, a year after the second American Soccer League had done the same. Three months later, the New York Cosmos folded, after attempting to play a series of exhibition games. The United States men were surprisingly eliminated by Costa Rica in World Cup qualifying, but the United States women's national team played its first game.

1988: FIFA, which five years earlier had rejected a United States bid for the 1986 World Cup, named the United States as host of the 1994 World Cup.

1989: The United States qualified for the World Cup for the first time in 40 years. Paul Caligiuri's famous goal in the deciding game was a 35-yard dipping shot that found the net in a 1-0 upset victory against Trinidad & Tobago Nov. 19 in front of 35,000 red-clad Trinidadians. The U.S. Futsal National Team finished third at the first FIFA World Championship for Futsal.

FIRST OF SIX: The 1990 World Cup marked the first of six consecutive world cup appearances for the U.S.

U.S. Cup '93 was used as a dress rehearsal for World Cup organizers, officials and volunteers, as well as the U.S. Men. The USA's 2-0 defeat of England made headlines around the world. Attendance and media interest were high, with 286,761 people attending the tournament's six games, and ABC broadcasting the June 13 U.S.-Germany match.

The U.S. Under-20 Men defeated Europe's No. 1 seed, Turkey, 6-0 in the first game of the World Youth Championship in Australia. FIFA officials called the trouncing one of the most extraordinary results in the history of the tournament.

The APSL was declared a Division II professional league. The United States Interregional Soccer League (USISL) was given Division III status. Plans for Major League Soccer — a Division I league to follow the legacy of World Cup '94 — were presented by U.S. Soccer President Alan Rothenberg.

STARS AND STRIPES I: The 1994 MNT advanced out of World Cup group play for the first time in 64 years.

1994: U.S. Soccer served as host national association for the 1994 FIFA World Cup, staging the greatest event in FIFA history. More than 3.5 million fans flocked to stadiums — still a World Cup record — and soccer fever in the U.S. was at an alltime high. The U.S. team advanced beyond the first round for the first time in 64 years, falling to eventual champion Brazil 1-0 in a July 4 round of 16 showdown at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto, Calif. On June 4, 91,123 fans jammed the Rose Bowl to watch the U.S. defeat Mexico, 1-0, in its final tune-up prior to the World Cup. Game proceeds netted $1 million in U.S. Soccer contributions to UNICEF/Children's Defense Fund.

The U.S. Women won the Chiquita Cup, a four-team international tournament in which the U.S. hosted Germany, China and Norway. The U.S. went on to successfully defend its Concacaf championship, qualifying for the 1995 FIFA Women's World Championship by outscoring the opposition 36-1 en route to winning all four qualification matches. Head coach Anson Dorrance announced his resignation and U.S. Soccer named assistant coach Tony DiCicco to succeed him.

1995: U.S. Soccer announced in February its intention to host the 1999 Women's World Cup and began the formal bid process with FIFA. The U.S. Men won the U.S. Cup '95 in June, defeating Nigeria and Mexico and tying Colombia. Later that month, the women placed third in the FIFA Women's World Cup in Sweden, falling to eventual champion Norway in the semifinals 1-0, then defeating China.

In July, the men made international headlines by advancing to the semifinals of Copa America. The U.S. scored its first-ever victory against Argentina, 3-0, and advanced via penalty kicks (against Mexico) into the semifinals before falling 1-0 to defending world champion Brazil. Steve Sampson, who had served as interim coach since April, was named full-time head coach in August.

1996: The U.S. Women won the first women's soccer gold medal at the 1996 Atlanta Olympics, defeating China 2-1 in the championship game. The U.S. posted a 21-1-2 overall record and won the Brazil Cup and U.S. Women's Cup '96. The U.S. Men's Olympic Team narrowly missed advancing to the quarterfinals with a 1-1-1 record.

Major League Soccer was launched, providing the United States with its first Division I outdoor pro league since the North American Soccer League ceased operations in 1985. MLS averaged more than 17,000 fans per game. The A-League and USISL merged to form a larger and stronger Division II outdoor league.

FIFA awarded the 1999 Women's World Cup to the United States and U.S. Soccer pledged it would be the biggest and most successful women's sporting event ever.

1997: The U.S. Men qualified for a third straight World Cup, completing a16-game qualifying run with just two losses and advancing with a game to spare. The U.S. Women continued their impressive play by winning their fourth straight Nike U.S Cup.

The FIFA Women's World Cup Organizing Committee had awarded the '99 games to seven U.S. locations: Boston; Chicago; Los Angeles; New York/New Jersey; Portland, Ore.; San Francisco Bay Area; and Washington, D.C.

1998: A disappointing World Cup finished with the U.S. in last place after two difficult match-ups against Germany and Yugoslavia, and a heartbreaking loss to Iran. Brian McBride scores the team's only World Cup goal. The tournament concludes with the resignation of head coach Steve Sampson, who is eventually replaced on Oct. 27, by Bruce Arena.

The women's team continued their impressive play, losing just twice in 1998 while playing in front of record crowds all across the country. Dr. Bob Contiguglia took over as U.S. Soccer's new president, replacing Alan I. Rothenberg, who had reached the eight-year term limit.

1999: In front of more than 90,000 fans at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., the U.S. women won the 1999 FIFA World Cup by playing China to a 0-0 tie through regulation and overtime and then defeating them 5-4 in penalty kicks. Soccer hysteria spread through America as the women appeared on every top news program, at the White House and on the cover of Time, Newsweek, People and Sports Illustrated. U.S. Women's National Team head coach Tony DiCicco resigned in November as the winningest coach in U.S. Soccer history with a record of 103-8-8.

In Bruce Arena's first full year at the helm of the U.S. Men, the team records triumphs against Germany (twice), Argentina, Chile and earns third place at the 1999 FIFA Confederations Cup in Mexico. The U-23 Men's beat Canada for the bronze medal at the 1999 Pan American Games in Winnipeg, Canada, while the U-18 Women captured the gold. The U-20 Men advanced to the second round of the 1999 FIFA World Youth Championship in April, with their only two loses coming to eventual finalists Spain and Japan. Taylor Twellman scored four goals and earned the Bronze Boot to become the first American male in the modern era to earn a FIFA scoring award. In November, the U-17 Men extended a record unbeaten streak to 24 games, advancing to the semifinals of the World Championship before losing in penalty kicks to Australia. Landon Donovan and DaMarcus Beasley earned the Gold and Silver Balls as the tournaments top two MVPs.

COMING UP ROSES: The U.S. Women's National Team won the 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup, the most successful women's sporting event ever, in a penalty shootout against China.

2000: Bruce Arena's squad continued to advance toward their ultimate goal of qualifying for the 2002 World Cup. The team secured 10 out of a possible 12 points — all shutouts — to win its semifinal qualifying group.

The U.S. Women maintained the momentum from their historic Women's World Cup title with 41 matches in 2000, posting a 26-6-9 record. The U.S. won six tournament titles in 2000, but had to settle for a silver medal at the 2000 Summer Olympics, losing in overtime to archrival Norway in the gold medal match.

The U.S. Men and Women put on an impressive display for the world at the Sydney Games as the only nation to have both its teams advance to the semifinals. The men were the surprise team of the tournament, winning their group and advancing to the semis before grabbing fourth place, the highest Olympic finish for the U.S.

2001: The U.S. Men qualified for a fourth straight World Cup, boosted by four wins and a draw to open the final round of Concacaf qualifying. For the first time, the U.S. Men clinched a spot in the World Cup at a home qualifier, topping Jamaica 2-1 behind two goals from Joe-Max Moore in front of 40,483 fans at the last soccer match played at Foxboro Stadium.

The U.S. Women played only 10 international matches as the Women's United Soccer Association begins play, with the Bay Area CyberRays winning the inaugural Founders Cup. Mia Hamm was named the first FIFA Women's World Player of the Year.

The Under-17 Men advanced to a ninth consecutive FIFA U-17 World Cup, but were drawn into the Group of Death in Trinidad & Tobago with Japan, Nigeria and France, and were eliminated in the first round. The U.S. Under-20 Men qualified for their third straight FIFA World Youth Championship, where the team finished second in their group in Argentina and were eliminated in the second round by Egypt.

The National Professional Soccer League, in existence since 1984-95, merges with the WISL and is renamed as the Major Indoor Soccer League.

SAVED: Brad Friedel saved a penalty kick by Korea Republic as the U.S. preserved a 1-1 draw in their second group game in 2002.

2002: The U.S. Men advanced to the quarterfinals at the 2002 World Cup in Korea/Japan, the team's best World Cup showing since 1930. The U.S. shocked the world with a stunning 3-2 opening game upset of Portugal before eventually finishing in second place in Group D. The U.S. then posted their first victory in the World Cup knockout stage, blanking Concacaf rival Mexico 2-0 in the Round of 16. The World Cup run ended in the quarterfinals with a 1-0 loss to Germany. Claudio Reyna was named to the All-Tournament Team, while Landon Donovan earned honorable mention. The men began 2002 by winning the Concacaf Gold Cup in January with a convincing 2-0 victory against Costa Rica for the first Gold Cup title for the U.S. since 1991.
The U.S. Women's qualified for their fourth consecutive

FIFA Women's World Cup after capturing the 2002 Concacaf Gold Cup with a 2- 1 overtime victory against Canada at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. The U.S. Under-19 Women topped the host Canadians 1-0 in overtime to win the inaugural FIFA U-19 Women's World Championship. Kelly Wilson won the Bronze Ball as the tournament's third MVP and the Silver Boot, while captain Lindsay Tarpley earned the Bronze Boot.

The U.S. Under-20 National Team qualified for their fourth consecutive FIFA World Youth Championship. The U.S. National Futsal Team played their first home matches in history, defeating Canada and tying Mexico in March in Baltimore, Md., and Washington, D.C., respectively.

HOME DEPOT DRAW: USWNT legends Michelle Akers and Carin Gabarra took part in the FIFA Women's World Cup USA 2003 Final Draw at The Home Depot Center in Carson, Calif.

2003: Due to the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome, FIFA relocated the Women's World Cup out of China. After a successful bid to host the tournament, U.S. Soccer faced the unprecedented task of hosting the tournament with just four months of preparation. The U.S. Women won Group A and then beat Norway in the quarterfinals 1-0. But Germany stunned the U.S. with a 3-0 victory in the semifinals, which led the U.S. to top Canada in the third-place match. Shannon Boxx, Joy Fawcett and Mia Hamm all earned all-star honors from FIFA.

The U.S. Men, preparing for World Cup qualifying in 2004, finished in third place at the Concacaf Gold Cup with a 3-2 come-from-behind win against Costa Rica. The Men's Under-17 and Under-20 squads finished their respective World Championships with fifth place finishes after bowing out with quarterfinal losses to Brazil and Argentina, respectively.

2004: The U.S. Women won every tournament entered, culminating with the 2004 Olympics. Other tournament titles included the Algarve Cup, the Four Nations Tournament and the Concacaf Regional Olympic qualifying tournament, as the team set a record with 28 victories on the year.

Under head coach Bruce Arena, the U.S. Men qualified for the final round of World Cup Qualifying for the Concacaf region. The men finished the year with an 8-1-6 record, losing only to the Netherlands away and going a record 13-games undefeated.

The U-23 Men failed to qualify for the Olympics for the first time since 1976, losing 4-0 to Mexico in Guadalajara after winning their group only match up against the second-place Mexicans in the single-elimination qualifier. The Under-19 Women finished third at the FIFA U-19 Women's World Championship. The Futsal Team won the 2004 Concacaf Championship and qualified for the 2004 FIFA Futsal World Championship, where the team had a strong showing with a seventh-place finish.

2005: Manager Bruce Arena led the U.S. Men to a first place finish in Concacaf World Cup qualifying for the first time in 71 years, earning a berth at the 2006 FIFA World Cup Finals in Germany with a 2-0 win against Mexico in Columbus, Ohio. The men also brought home the 2005 Concacaf Gold Cup, beating Panama 3-1 in penalty kicks after a scoreless draw. The team finished the year with a record 13 wins and .750 winning percentage.

The U.S. Women began a new era, starting off the year with a new coach and a third consecutive Algarve Cup title, their fourth overall. They ended the year undefeated and without allowing a single goal.

The Under-20 Men swept through Concacaf Qualifying, earning a berth to the FIFA Youth World Championship, where they finished 11th, bowing out to Italy in the Round of 16. The Under-17 Men also had a strong 2005, qualifying for the 2005 FIFA U-17 World Championship and finishing fifth overall after a loss to Holland in the second round.

GOLDEN GIRL: Abby Wambach was truly golden in 2004, scoring an unfathomable 31 goals, including the overtime winner to clinch the 2004 gold medal at the Athens Olympics.

2006: A disappointing World Cup in Germany for the United States, as the team failed to advance out of the first round despite a gallant, nine-man 1-1 draw with eventual World Cup champions Italy. After eight years in charge, Bruce Arena is replaced at the helm of the USMNT by Bob Bradley, on an interim basis.

Later in the summer, the U.S. Under-20 Women's National Team finished fourth in Russia. The disappointing finish marks the first time a U.S. Women's National Team has finished outside the top three in a FIFA or Concacaf World Championship event.

The U.S. Women, however, continued their incredible run under Greg Ryan, winning three of the four tournaments they enter. The year concludes with another Women's Gold Cup crown and a berth in the 2007 FIFA Women's World Cup in China.

2007: Bob Bradley became the first Men's coach to win his first three games in charge and was hired full-time to guide the USA through 2010. In the summer of 2007, the MNT won its second consecutive Gold Cup, and fourth total title, by defeating Mexico 2-1 in front of a packed house at Soldier Field in Chicago. With the victory, the MNT gained entry into the 2009 Confederations Cup. The Men also travelled to Venezuela to compete in Copa America for the third time.

After qualifying for their respective World Cups to continue impressive streaks, the U-17 Men and U- 20 Men took on the world during the summer in back-to-back tournaments. The U-20 team performed admirably in Canada, and reached the quarterfinals after defeats of Poland, Brazil and Uruguay. The U-17 team, meanwhile, did well to qualify from a tough group in South Korea, before being eliminated by Germany in the Round of 16. The U.S. Women maintained a two-plus year undefeated run, looking to take the streak into the FIFA Women's World Cup. Drawn into the toughest group in Women's World Cup history, the U.S. advanced in first place after three difficult games against Korea DPR, Sweden and Nigeria. The U.S. rolled into the semifinals, but was upended by a quality Brazil side. Eventually, the WNT took third place for the second consecutive World Cup with a convincing win against Norway. Former Swedish National Team player and captain Pia Sundhage was appointed to the position of WNT coach after Greg Ryan's departure from the team.

Wilmer Cabrera was named head coach of the U-17 MNT, replacing John Hackworth. For the first time, U.S. Soccer hired four full-time referees to enhance high-level performance, training and development opportunities for the sport's elite officials in the United States. The U.S. Soccer Development Academy launched in the fall.

2008: Led by Pia Sundhage, the U.S. Women had one of its best years ever, losing only one game, which ironically came in the opening match of the 2008 Beijing Olympics, a tournament the U.S. would eventually win to take home their third gold medal. Overall, the U.S. won all six tournaments it entered to finish with a 33-1-2 record, giving them the most wins and best winning percentage ever in a calendar year (.944).

GOLDEN AGAIN: The U.S. got revenge for the 2007 loss and defeated Brazil in the 2008 Olympic Final.

FINALLY: Landon Donovan celebrates his goal against Brazil in the first half of the 2009 Confederations Cup Final.

The U.S. Men was successful in its own right, starting off on the right foot in 2010 FIFA World Cup qualifying with a 9-0 aggregate against Barbados in the second round. The U.S. opened the semifinal round with 1-0 victories in Guatemala and Cuba. Coming back to the U.S., home victories against T&T and Cuba clinched advancement with two games to play.

The U-23 Men joined the U.S. Women by qualifying for the 2008 Olympics in March, but just missed out on the second round once arriving in Beijing. Despite a 1-0 victory against Japan and a 2-2 draw with the Netherlands, the U.S. fell 2-1 against eventual silver medalist Nigeria. On the youth side, the U-17 and U-20 Women's National Teams both made the championship match of their respective FIFA World Cups. In New Zealand, the U-17s went on an impressive run to the final before finally succumbing to Korea DPR in the final, but in Chile their older counterparts were able to exact revenge with a 2-1 victory to bring the World Cup trophy back to the United States for the first time since 2002.

Building off the initial kickoff in 2007, U.S. Soccer's Development Academy wrapped up its first year with a collection of dynamic matches during Finals Week at The Home Depot Center. In the U-15/16 championship, Carmel United topped PDA 1-0, and the Baltimore Bays topped LAFC 4-2 to take the U-17/18 title.

2009: The U.S. Men opened 2009 focused on final round qualifying for the 2010 FIFA World Cup with a

2-0 win against archrival Mexico in Columbus, Ohio, Bob Bradley's squad proceeded to go undefeated at home and clinch a spot in South Africa with a come-from-behind win in Honduras. They finished atop the Concacaf table with a tie against Costa Rica in Washington, D.C., on the last day of qualifying.

During the summer, the U.S. Men traveled to South Africa to compete in the 2009 FIFA Confederations Cup. The USMNT was drawn into a group with Italy, Brazil and Egypt, and advanced into the semifinals by virtue of a 3-0 dismantling of Egypt in the final game. They kept the nation captivated by beating Spain, the No.1-ranked team in the world in the semifinals before falling 3-2 to Brazil in the final. Tim Howard was awarded the Golden Glove and Clint Dempsey given the Bronze Ball .

Pia Sunhage's women's team had a more relaxed year after their gold medal winning exploits in 2008, and wrapped up the year with a 7-0-1 that included falling in penalties to Sweden in the Algarve Cup final.

Both the U-17 and U-20 Men's National Team competed in their respective FIFA World Cups this year, with the U-17 team advancing out of the group stage in Nigeria before falling to Italy in the Round of 16. A tough group containing Germany, Cameroon and Korea Republic saw the U-20s out of the tournament following the first round in Egypt.

TIES THAT BIND: Michael Bradley celebrates scoring the game-tying goal against Slovenia in the 2010 FIFA World Cup.

The U.S. Soccer Development Academy completed its second year of competition in 2009, once again concluding the season with Finals Week at The Home Depot Center. In the U-15/16 age group, playoff No.1-seed Derby County Wolves continued their strong season straight through Finals Week with a title. Indiana United Academy defeated D.C. United to take home the U-17/18 championship.

2010: The year's most memorable moment came in the U.S. Men's third group game at the 2010 World Cup in South Africa as Landon Donovan scored a last-minute goal for the U.S. to clinch advancement and clinch a group for the first time in 80 years. Following a 1-1 tie with England, a 2-2 tie with Slovenia and a 1-0 win against Algeria, the U.S. was eliminated in the Round of 16 losing to Ghana 2-1. Clint Dempsey became the second U.S. player to score in multiple World Cups, and Landon Donovan had three total goals to be come the third to score in multiple World Cups and the all-time World Cup goal leader for the U.S.

After a surprising loss to Mexico in the semifinals of Women's Concacaf qualifying, the U.S. topped Italy 2-0 in a two-game qualifying playoff to earn a spot in the 2011 FIFA Women's World Cup. The U.S. won its seventh Algarve Cup with the first of two victories against 2011 hosts Germany.

The U.S. Under-20 Women lost in penalty kicks to Nigeria in the quarterfinals of the 2010 FIFA U-20 World Cup, while the U-17 Women became the first U.S. Women's team to fail to qualify for a FIFA World Cup event after not advancing out of the CONACACAF qualifying tournament.

No Division II league met U.S. Soccer's sanctioning standards, so the Federation administered a league called USSF D-2 for one year.

2011: The U.S. Women were on center stage during the 2011 Women's World Cup in Germany. Their dramatic run in the Women's World Cup was highlighted by an electric, come-from-behind victory in the quarterfinals against Brazil, in which Abby Wambach scored the latest goal (six minutes into stoppage time) ever in a World Cup match. The U.S., however, would lose out in penalties to a spirited Japanese side in the final after playing to a 2-2 draw through 120 minutes.

During the summer of 2011 at the Concacaf Gold Cup, the U.S. advanced to its third consecutive final, scoring two early goals before falling 4-2 to Mexico.

The continental tournament would prove to be Bob Bradley's last involvement as head coach of the U.S., with former Germany international and FIFA World Cup winner Jurgen Klinsmann taking the helm of the U.S. Men in August. He earned his first win in Miami against Honduras thanks to a Clint Dempsey strike and later led the team to a 3-2 victory against Slovenia in its last game of the year.

The U-17 and U-20 Men's National Teams both entered another cycle of their respective FIFA World Cups. The U-17 Men reached the knockout round for the seventh time but lost to Germany in the Round of 16. After winning their qualifying group with two shutout victories, the U-20s graduated to the quarterfinals but fell to Guatemala and did not reach the World Cup for the first time since 1995.

2012: The USWNT capped off the 2012 London Olympics with a 2-1 victory against Japan in front of more than 80,000 spectators at Wembley Stadium as the U.S. Women earned their fourth Olympic gold – a first for any country on the men's and women's sides. Carli Lloyd scored both goals for the USA, capping off a tournament that featured a dramatic game-winning goal from 2012 U.S. Soccer Female Athlete of the Year Alex Morgan in the 123rd minute of the team's semifinal victory against Canada.

The USMNT advanced to the final round of 2014 FIFA World Cup Qualifying, defeating Guatemala 3-1 in the final Group A match of the Semifinal Round as Clint Dempsey scored his 29th and 30th career goals to tie Brian McBride for third all-time in U.S. history. The U.S. Men also had some memorable international friendly victories in 2012, including the first win on Mexico's home soil – a 1-0 victory at Estadio Azteca on Aug. 15.

The U.S. U-20 WNT defeated defending champion Germany 1-0 in the 2012 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup in Tokyo. Kealia Ohai scored the game's lone goal and the Americans earned their third World Cup crown in the tournament's history. The U.S. U-17 WNT competed in the 2012 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, and in an extremely rare occurrence did not advance past the group stage despite an unbeaten 1-0-2 record.

2013: U.S. Soccer celebrated its 100th birthday in 2013, marking the occasion with a doubleheader event on June 2 as the USMNT beat Germany 4-3 in an electrifying match in the nation's capital, Washington, D.C. The USWNT also enjoyed victorious celebration as it defeated Canada 2-0 in Toronto in the first match since the dramatic semifinal victory in the 2012 London Olympics.

The MNT accomplished its primary task of qualifying for the 2014 FIFA World Cup, marking the seventh-consecutive time the team has reached the finals. The USA finished in first place for the third straight Concacaf cycle, highlighted by yet another "dos a cero" victory against regional rival Mexico. The team captured its fifth Gold Cup title, winning all six matches en route to the championship. A multitude of team and individual records were broken, a Snow Clasico played out in Denver and a dramatic comeback against Panama punctuated the end of the qualifying campaign.

The U.S. Women's unbeaten 2013 campaign was highlighted by Abby Wambach capturing the international scoring record on June 20 with four goals against Korea Republic at Red Bull Arena. She surpassed Mia Hamm's record of 158 and continues to extend the record, ending the year on 163. The team will look to extend its 39-game unbeaten run in all competitions as it heads into 2014, with head coach Tom Sermanni yet to taste defeat with the USA.

2014: A banner year for U.S. Soccer. Growth is the word that best defined the year as record numbers of fans flocked to stadiums, parks and any available TV to see the USMNT compete at the 2014 FIFA World Cup. Impressive new television and sponsor agreements were signed, allowing U.S. Soccer to invest heavily in its coaching and youth development programs. All the while, the USWNT continued to cement its role as the No. 1 women's program in the world and turning heads in the process.

Early in the year, the USWNT transitioned to the guidance of former interim head coach and long-time assistant Jill Ellis, who led the team to an impressive qualification to the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup in Canada as well as a 17-1-4 record to finish the year. Along the way, team captain Christie Rampone became only the second soccer player in history – man or woman – to reach 300 caps for their country. The team also brought in talented youngsters such as midfielder Morgan Brian and defenders Julie Johnston and Crystal Dunn who are pushed for playing time.

The USMNT's year was highlighted by a successful run to the Round of 16 at the 2014 FIFA World Cup in Brazil. Head coach Jurgen Klinsmann guided the team out of the 'Group of Death' on the back of a cathartic win against Ghana and a dramatic draw against the world's No. 1 player Cristiano Ronaldo and Portugal. Despite goalkeeper Tim Howard's heroics – and tournament record 15 saves – against Belgium, the USA exited in the first knockout round. The team and soccer culture in the United States was then stunned by the retirement of the greatest player it had ever produced when Landon Donovan decided to hang up his cleats after playing one final match for his country in an October friendly against Ecuador.

2015: A year of continued evolution for the U.S. Soccer National Teams and Federation as a whole, saw the USWNT claim the most coveted prize in the sport by winning the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup in record breaking fashion vs. Japan. It was a dominant year for the WNT, which also won a final Algarve Cup title early in the year before launching the #SheBelieves campaign aimed at inspiring fans throughout the world to achieve their dreams and then drawing record TV audiences for its World Cup games that subsequently let to record crowds during its Victory Tour.

The USMNT's high-water mark came in June when the team won back-to-back friendlies on European soil vs. the Netherlands and reigning World Cup champions Germany. The team also saw an injection of youth in its ranks as promising young players climbed the MNT program ladder from a talented U-20 team that made an inspired run to the FIFA U-20 World Cup Quarterfinals up to the U-23 MNT and in the case of defender Matt Miazga the full National Team. Despite undesired results in the semifinals of the Concacaf Gold Cup and Concacaf Cup, the MNT closed out the year with quality results in its first two games of Semifinal Round Qualifying for the 2018 FIFA World Cup in Russia.

TRIPLE CROWN: The USWNT became the first team in women's soccer history to claim a third FIFA World Cup title, doing so in record fashion in 2015.

2016: Another big year for U.S. Soccer saw its Men's and Women's teams of all age groups find success throughout the year. On the Women's side, the year began with a storming run to the Concacaf Olympic Qualifying tournament title by the senior team, which then won the inaugural SheBelieves Cup with victories against European powers England, France and Germany. From there another pair of quality results against rival Japan had the team looking good heading into the 2016 Olympic Games in Rio; however, a bitter Round of 16 exit at the hands of former coach Pia Sundhage and Sweden on penalty kicks after a 1-1 draw left a sour taste. The team finished the year strong, winning its remaining six games while introducing a wealth of young talent.

Additionally, the U-20 WNT made a strong run at the U-20 World Cup, reaching the third-place match.

The Men's National Team had a roller coaster of a year. A must-win World Cup Qualifying match at home to Guatemala saw the USA come good to set the team up for an impressive summer run at the Copa America Centenario, which was hosted in the United States. Despite an opening match loss to Colombia, the U.S. recovered to steam into a semifinal showdown against world power Argentina, where the team was defeated by a sublime performance from five-time FIFA World Player of the Year Lionel Messi. The MNT righted the ship by cruising into the Final Round of 2018 World Cup Qualifying with a pair of high-flying wins. But the year would take a sharp turn once more as defeats to Mexico at home and Costa Rica away sealed the fate of Jurgen Klinsmann as head coach and saw former manager Bruce Arena reinstalled to lead the team in 2017.

2017: The U.S. Women's National Team experienced one of its busiest, most competitive schedules to begin a World Cup and Olympic cycle. The team played seven teams in the top 10 of the FIFA Women's World Rankings on the way to compiling a 12-3-1 record that included an eight-game unbeaten streak to finish the year. The USA hosted two major tournaments in the SheBelieves Cup and the Tournament of Nations, as head coach Jill Ellis used the year for experimentation and player evaluation as more than 50 players were seen in training camps and games while six players earned first caps.

After starting the Final Round of 2018 FIFA World Cup Qualifying with two defeats to end the previous year, the U.S. Men's National Team set a different course with the return of Bruce Arena as head coach.

The turnaround began in March when the U.S. picked up eight points via two home wins and two away draws, one against Mexico at the revered Estadio Azteca. With qualifying stabilized, attention shifted to the Concacaf Gold Cup, where the U.S. earned its sixth confederation title when Jordan Morris' 88th minute game winner defeated Jamaica in the championship match on July 26.

With a regional crown in hand, the MNT returned to qualifying in September, but faltered with a home defeat to Costa Rica and away draw with Honduras that saw the USA still alive with two qualifying matches left. An impressive 4-0 win against Panama pushed the U.S. to the brink of qualifying for the 2018 World Cup, but needing just a draw on the last matchday at Trinidad & Tobago, the side fell 2-1 to the Soca Warriors in Couva, Trinidad. A result that combined with Honduras' and Panama's wins that night knocked the U.S. out of World Cup contention.

Arena resigned on Oct. 13, opening the search for a new head coach, and a month later the beginnings of a new-look MNT took its initial step when a young team led by acting head coach Dave Sarachan played defending European champions Portugal to a 1-1 draw.

On the youth side, the U.S. was one of only two nations to see its U-17 and U-20 Men's National Teams reach the Quarterfinals of their respective World Cups. The U-17 squad secured its spot at its World Cup with a second-place finish at the Concacaf U-17 Championship. The U-20 MNT qualified for the competition by winning the Concacaf U-20 Championship for the first time in federation history, defeating Honduras on penalties.

Additionally, the Paralympic National Team earned its best finish at a major world competition since the 1996 Paralympic Games with a fifth-place result at the 2017 IFCPF CP Football World Championships in San Luis, Argentina.

2018: The U.S. Women's National Team went unbeaten through 20 matches in 11 states and two countries in a year that will go down as one of the most successful in program history. The squad lifted three trophies by winning the SheBelieves Cup, the Tournament of Nations, and the Concacaf Championship. Jill Ellis' side punched its ticket to the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup in dominant fashion, winning all five qualifiers by a combined score of 26-0. In its penultimate match of the year, the USA captured its 500th all-time victory with a 1-0 win versus Portugal in Lisbon.

The U.S. Men's National Team took on a transitional year in 2018 by facing one of the most challenging schedules in team history. The USA squared off against the likes of Brazil, England, Italy, and Colombia in a gauntlet designed to test a new generation of the red, white, and blue. One of the team's best moments came in June, when it drew eventual World Cup champion France, 1-1, in Lyon. The USA then hired its first-ever General Manager in Earnie Stewart and new head coach Gregg Berhalter to lead the charge toward the 2022 World Cup.

On the youth side, the U-15 Girls National Team, U-17 Women's National Team, and U-20 Men's National Team all won Concacaf Championships. The para 7-a-side team qualified for the 2019 IFCPF World Cup with a third-place finish at Copa America.

And in a momentous moment for soccer in the U.S., the United Bid of Canada, Mexico and the United States, was awarded hosting rights for the 2026 FIFA World Cup. The 2026 competition will be the first to host an expanded field of 48 teams. The three federations will now begin working to build excitement, energy and awareness about the biggest World Cup in history!

2019: The U.S. Women's National Team experienced an historic 2019 that saw the team win its fourth World Cup title. The U.S. set Women's World Cup records for goals (26), goal differential (plus-23) and never trailed to become the first team to go 7-0-0 in the Women's World Cup. Midfielder Megan Rapinoe was awarded the Golden Ball as the tournament's best player and the Golden Boot as its top scorer with six goals and three assists. At the conclusion of the 2019 Victory Tour, head coach Jill Ellis retired with a remarkable 106-7-19 overall record. On October 28th, U.S. Soccer announced Vlatko Andonovski as the ninth head coach in USWNT history. The Andonovski era started on a high note as the U.S. closed out 2019 with wins over Sweden and Costa Rica.

In head coach Gregg Berhalter's first year in charge, the U.S. Men's National Team started his tenure with friendly wins over Panama, Costa Rica and Ecuador while earning a 1-1 draw with defending Copa América champions Chile. En route to its 11th Gold Cup Final, the USMNT outscored opponents 15-1 in three group stage and two knockout round matches before falling to Mexico,1-0. After another loss to Mexico in a friendly a couple of months later, the U.S. rebounded with a 1-1 draw vs. world No. 5 Uruguay. The inaugural edition of the Concacaf Nations League served as the next set of games on the schedule for the USA. Drawn into Nations League A, Group A, the USMNT closed out the year with home and away matches against Canada and Cuba. With two wins against Cuba and one over Canada, the U.S. advanced to the Final Round of Nations League and finished the year at No. 22 in FIFA's world rankings, up three spots from 2018, its highest year-end finish since 2013 (14th).

On the youth side, the U.S. became the only nation to reach the quarterfinals of the last three U-20 World Cups. Before falling to Ecuador in the quarterfinals, the U-20 USMNT advanced to the knockout stage with wins over Nigeria and Qatar before upsetting tournament favorite France with a 3-2 comeback victory in the Round of 16. The U-17 USMNT qualified for a record 17th FIFA U-17 World Cup after reaching the 2019 Concacaf U-17 Championship Final. With wins over Belgium, Czech Republic and the Republic of Ireland, the U.S. Under-17 Women's National Team won the UEFA Women's Development Tournament in Czech Republic. Additionally, the U.S. Para 7-a-Side National Team won the program's first Parapan American Games medal with a dominating 7-0 win against Venezuela to claim the bronze at the 2019 tournament and the Beach Soccer Women's National Team was launched.

2020: A year that was supposed to be a busy schedule for the U.S. Men's and Women's National Teams as well as several youth teams was largely halted due to the global health pandemic caused by the COVID-19 outbreak in March.

In their first full year under head coach Vlatko Andonovski, the U.S. Women's National Team started 2020 with an energy and performances befitting a team aiming to win a World Cup and an Olympics in back-to-back years. Yet the day after the USA won the 2020 SheBelieves Cup and capped a perfect 8-0-0 start to 2020 – including qualifying for the Tokyo Games - the sports world shut down. The Olympics were eventually postponed, all of the USA's programming was cancelled, and the team would not hit the field again for seven months when an October training camp was held in Colorado. On Nov. 27, the USWNT finally played its first game in 261 days, a rousing 2-0 win vs. the Netherlands in Breda to close the year ranked No. 1 in the world.

The U.S. Men's National Team opened the year with a 1-0 win over Costa Rica in February, then did no reconvene again until November, playing Wales to a 0-0 draw on Nov. 12 and beating Panama, 6-2, on Nov. 16. Gregg Berhalter's side then closed the year with a commanding 6-0 victory over El Salvador in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, the first domestic match for any U.S. National Team since the start of the pandemic.

On the youth side, the Under-20 U.S. Women's National Team opened the year by winning the 2020 Concacaf Women's U-20 Championship and in the process, qualifying for the Under-20 Women's World Cup. However, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, all youth World Cups scheduled for 2020 and 2021 were cancelled.

WORLD CONQUERORS: The USWNT defeated four consecutive European powers to lift the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup trophy on July 7 in Lyon, France.

2021: The U.S. Women's National Team hit the ground running in 2021, becoming the first team to win back-to-back SheBelieves Cup titles in the tournament's six-year history after recording wins over Canada, Brazil, and Argentina, while also becoming the first team finish the tournament without a conceding any goals. In July, the team earned its first-ever bronze medal at the delayed 2020 Olympic Tournament in Tokyo, which had pushed back a year due to the COVID-19 global pandemic. During that competition, Samantha Mewis and Kristie Mewis made history after becoming the first sisters to represent the USWNT at a major senior tournament (after doing so at two Youth FIFA World Cups). The team finished the year with a 17-2-5 record, a +64 goal differential and an .812 winning percentage, all the while continuing to build on a 62-game home unbeaten streak to end 2021. The USWNT once again finished the year at the top of the FIFA Rankings. Six players earned their first cap on the year, while legendary midfielder-turned-forward Carli Lloyd retired as the second-most capped player in world soccer history with 316 games played.

The Men's National Team recorded one of its best years in history, setting a record for most wins in a calendar year after posting a 17-2-3 record in 2021. The USMNT won two major titles in one summer as they conquered the Concacaf Gold Cup and the inaugural Concacaf Nations League – beating archrival Mexico in both finals -- while featuring two young and almost completely different rosters in each tournament. The team went on to finish the year with three wins against El Tri after adding a thrilling "Dos a Cero" victory in Cincinnati during World Cup Qualifying. The MNT also ended the year ranked 11th in the FIFA World Rankings, making the USA the highest-ranked in Concacaf and marking their highest year-end ranking since 2005. In addition to 27 players earning their first appearance in a World Cup Qualifier and head coach Gregg Berhalter twice sent out starting lineups that were the youngest ever for the United States in a qualifier. The team also boasted a +34 goal differential, a .841 winning percentage, and a .54 goals against average, all of which were best in team history, while their 12 clean sheets tied their best record in that category.

ROSIE ENDING: Rose Lavelle helped cap 2021 with a goal in a 3-0 victory over Australia in Sydney, Australia in front 36,109 fans.

On the youth side, after a long pause in regular programming due to the pandemic, the U-17 and U-20 U.S. Women's Youth National Teams and the U-17 Men's Youth National Team returned to the field in October with training camps in Chula Vista, Calif. In November, the U-20 MYNT kicked off a new cycle at the Revelations Cup in Mexico as it prepares for the 2022 Concacaf U-20 Championship which will serve as qualification to the 2023 FIFA U-20 World Cup and the 2024 Summer Olympics. The U-20 WYNT also held an end of year training camp in December as they prepare for the 2022 Concacaf U-20 Women's Championship which is set for Feb. 25-March 12 in the Dominican Republic. The YNT programs underwent several changes in coaching staffs as Gonzalo Segares was named U-17 MYNT head coach (previously U-15 MYNT) and Tracey Kevins was named U-20 WYNT head coach (previously U-15 and U-17 WYNT), while Mikey Varas, Natalia Astrain, and Katie Schoepfer were hired as U-20 MYNT, U-17 WYNT, and U-15 WYNT head coaches, respectively.

DOS A CERO: The USMNT celebrations Christian Pulisic's goal in the World Cup qualifier vs. Mexico on Nov. 12, 2021, in front of a sold-out crowd at TQL Stadium in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Alongside the Best of FIFA awards, the U.S. Player of the Year awards are the only awards to honor both the top male and the top female in the sport.

Votes are collected from respective National Team coaches, National Team players who have earned a cap in the applicable calendar year, American soccer league (MLS, USL and NWSL) head coaches, select media members, former players and administrators. Players cannot win the Young Male or Young Female award more than once. 2021 U.S. SOCCER PLAYERS OF THE YEAR

BIOSTEEL U.S. SOCCER MALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

CHRISTIAN PULISIC

Collecting eight appearances and three goals – all of which were game winners – Christian Pulisic continued to contribute in big moments for the USMNT in 2021. After opening his account by slotting home a penalty kick at Northern Ireland on March 28, Pulisic struck two devastating blows to Mexico within the span of five months. He put home a now iconic 114th minute penalty kick to help the USA claim the inaugural Concacaf Nations League Final on June 6 in Denver. In November, Pulisic came off the bench and scored his first touch when he nodded home Tim Weah's cross top open the scoring in the USMNT's eventual 2-0 World Cup Qualifying defeat of El Trí in Cincinnati. Part of the USMNT since age 17, Pulisic captained the side a career high four times in 2021 – including the Nations League Final as well as in the September World Cup qualifiers against Canada and Honduras.

Pulisic continued to break barriers for American players at club level, becoming the first USMNT player to feature in and win the UEFA Champions League as Chelsea defeated Manchester City 1-0 on May 29 in Porto. Pulisic played a major role in getting the Blues to the pinnacle match in club football, scoring the opening goal in the 1-1 semifinal first leg draw at Real Madrid. He also marked the second multi-goal game of his EPL career, recording a brace in Chelsea's 4-1 win against Crystal Palace on April 10. Overall, Pulisic made 40 appearances across all competitions for Chelsea, recording six goals and four assists, while also helping the Blues to a runner-up finish in the 2020-21 FA Cup Final and a top four finish in the Premier League.

This is Pulisic's third U.S. Soccer Male Player of the Year award after winning in 2017 and 2019. First awarded in 1984, the forward becomes the fourth player to win Male Player of the Year three times or more, joining Clint Dempsey (2007, 2011, 2012), Landon Donovan (2003, 2004, 2009, 2010) and Kasey Keller (1997, 1999, 2005). At 23 years old, he is also the youngest three-time winner of the award. He also took home U.S. Soccer Young Male Player of the Year honors in 2016.

BIOSTEEL U.S. SOCCER FEMALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

LINDSEY HORAN

Horan had another consistently stellar season for club and country, leading the USA in minutes played with 1,707 while starting 18 of her 22 games this year. She finished tied for fourth in goals (6) and tied for second in assists (5), all while playing at both defensive and attacking midfielder. With Julie Ertz injured, Horan played defensive midfielder leading into the Olympics and for the first half of the first Olympic match, distinguishing herself at that position before moving to a more advanced role as the tournament wore on. At the Olympics, she played in all six games, starting five, and was third in minutes played with 499. Horan scored one goal in the Olympics, that coming in her 100th cap during the group play victory against New Zealand.

Her two assists vs. Brazil at the 2021 SheBelieves Cup brought her career assist total for the USWNT to 31, making her the 18th player in USWNT history to record 30 or more assists. She tallied her 32nd on Carli Lloyd's first goal in the Olympic bronze medal game. She also scored against Colombia, Jamaica, Mexico, Korea Republic and Australia on the year. The goal against Mexico was of the best goals of Horan's career and one of the best by a U.S. player of late when she smashed home a full volley early in the game. Against Australia on Nov. 27, she captained the USA for the second time – the first was during her 100th cap celebration match on Oct. 21 – and nailed a critical penalty kick in the 68th minute to clinch the match. It was her 25th career goal, making her the 24th player in USWNT history with 25 or more goals.

For the Portland Thorns this season, she played in 14 games and had two goals and three assists while once again showing herself as one of the league's top two-way midfielders and overall players. She was named to the 2021 NWSL Best XI Second Team. This is the first U.S. Soccer Female Player of the Year award for Horan. She becomes the 18th different WNT player to win the award. Horan also becomes just the third player to win both U.S. Soccer Young Female Player of the Year (which she won in 2013) and U.S. Soccer Female Player of the Year, joining Tobin Heath and Julie Ertz (who has won the Player of the Year twice).

CHIPOTLE U.S. SOCCER YOUNG MALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

RICARDO PEPI

At just 18 years old, Pepi turned in one of the most memorable USMNT debuts in recent memory during September World Cup qualifying, catalyzing a comeback win in the hostile environs of San Pedro Sula against Honduras in the final match of the window. In the second half, "El Tren" teed up the game-tying goal, scored the game-winner, added another assist and took a hard shot to set up a fourth and final tally for the 4-1 win and a crucial three points. Pepi continued his hot streak in the October international window, bagging a brace in the USA's 2-0 win against Jamaica in Austin. The El Paso, Texas, native has played in every qualifier since his U.S. debut.

The forward also took the next step at the club level, finishing the MLS season as the league's leading American scorer with 13 goals. He also became the youngest player in MLS history to net a hat trick, accomplishing the feat on July 24 against LA Galaxy.

Pepi was selected to this summer's MLS All-Star Game, scoring the game-winning penalty in a shootout against the Liga MX All-Stars. After mostly serving as a super-sub in 2020, he made a career-high 24 starts in 31 appearances for FCD this season, solidifying himself as the club's first-choice scoring threat.

CHIPOTLE U.S. SOCCER YOUNG FEMALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

TRINITY RODMAN

Rodman was the youngest player to be drafted in the NWSL history, going to the Washington Spirit with the second overall pick in the 2021 NWSL Draft, and her performances were key in helping the Spirit finish third in the league before going on to win the NWSL championship. The 19-year-old was one of the sensations of the 2021 NWSL season, scoring six goals (including two game-winners) with six assists, which tied for the league lead. She was second in the NWSL in shots and shots on goal. She played in 25 games with 22 starts spanning more than 2,000 minutes and was named the 2021 NWSL Rookie of the Year. Rodman scored in her NWSL Challenge Cup debut, becoming the youngest American to score in NWSL competition. During the regular season she scored against Chicago (twice), Kansas City, New Jersey/New York, North Carolina and Houston. Rodman was a major part of the USA's U-20 cycle in 2020 and played in the 2018 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup.

2021 AdaptAndThrive, Extended National Team, and Social Impact Awards

Four winners for U.S. Soccer's new end-of-year awards in disability soccer, beach soccer and futsal were announced in 2021. The ADAPTandTHRIVE Disability Award, presented by Degree, recognizes an individual making an impact in the United States' broad landscape of disability soccer, while the Beach Soccer and Futsal Player of the Year Awards honor players from U.S. Soccer's Extended National Teams excelling at other versions of the sport on the sand and court.

U.S. Soccer also introduced its One Nation. Social Impact Award in 2021, which honors a player from U.S. Soccer's National Team programs for their off-field contributions making a positive impact in the areas of diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging.

2021 Sandy Castillo	2021 Nicolas Perea	2021 Ali Hall	2021 Diego Moretti	2021 Imani Dorsey

ADAPTANDTHRIVE DISABILITY AWARD, PRESENTED BY DEGREE: SANDY CASTILLO

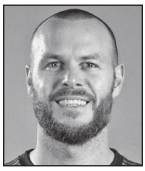
Castillo is a long-time coach and advocate for U.S. Youth Soccer TOPSoccer (TheOutreach Program for Soccer), a community-based training program for athletes with intellectual, emotional and/or physical disabilities to play the game in a safe, fun and supportive environment. Based in Southern California, she has coached youth soccer since 1985 and with TOPSoccer since 1991.

BEACH SOCCER MALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR: NICOLAS PEREA

Nicolas Perea was named Beach Male Player of the Year after significant contributions to the U.S. Men's Beach Soccer National Team's runner-up finish at the Concacaf Beach Soccer Championship and appearance at the FIFA Beach Soccer World Cup. The defender played 11-a-side soccer professionally before making his international beach soccer debut this year at World Cup qualifying, and contributed seven goals for the Beach USMNT (three in qualifying and four at the World Cup). This year marked the USA's first consecutive Beach Soccer World Cup appearances since 2006/2007 and Perea was one of two U.S. players to score in all three World Cup matches. He also netted the USA's first goals at both qualifying in Costa Rica and the World Cup in Russia.

BEACH SOCCER FEMALE PLAYER OF THE YEAR: ALI HALL

The nascent U.S. Women's Beach Soccer National Team played in this summer's Intercontinental Beach Soccer Cup, its second-ever global competition, and Hall started all three matches. The forward bagged a brace against Brazil to give the U.S. an early 2-0 lead in its second game of the tournament.



FUTSAL PLAYER OF THE YEAR: DIEGO MORETTI

Captain and goalkeeper Diego Moretti is U.S. Soccer's first Futsal Player of the Year. The veteran presence backstopped the USA throughout its resurgent cycle after a 16-year professional career in Italy. The 38-year-old recently signed with Manfredonia in the Italian Serie A and was a massive part of the USA's runner-up finish at the Concacaf Futsal Championship, shutting out the Dominican Republic in the quarter finals to clinch a World Cup berth and helping the U.S. win a penalty kick shoot-out in the semis.

ONE NATION. SOCIAL IMPACT AWARD: IMANI DORSEY

Launched in October 2020, Dorsey was a founding board member of the BWPC, whose mission is to advance opportunities for Black girls in sport and beyond. The organization aims to elevate the image, value and representation of Black women as athletes and leaders across industries, striving to establish a support network that expands access to different career paths before and after playing.

The initial BWPC membership included all 43 Black players competing in NWSL's 2020 season. Dorsey helps lead the group as one of seven board members working to provide Black girls direct access to soccer at every level through education, mentorship and community development. During its first year of existence, BWPC projects included partnering with several other organizations in the construction of 12 mini soccer pitches in cities across the country and the Voice in Sport mentorship program to provide role models for young Black female athletes.

Dorsey was chosen as the One Nation Social Impact Award winner by this year's U.S. Soccer's Game Ambassadors, community members making a difference in the advancement of diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging in the cities where the U.S. Men's National Team and USWNT played this year. Nominees for the award were selected by the U.S. Soccer Athletes' Council.

2014 BEST OF U.S. SOCCER AWARDS

Ten of the best and most meaningful moments throughout 2014 were selected for special mention during U.S. Soccer's Best Of Week that ran from Dec. 15-19. The 10 best moments in U.S. Soccer over the course of 2014 included:

- The USMNT's thrilling 2-1 win against Ghana that secured a vital three points to begin the team's escape from the 'Group of Death' at the 2014 FIFA World Cup.
- Meghan Klingenberg's long-distance golazo against Haiti during Women's World Cup Qualifying was an audacious and timely way for the defender to score her first goal for the USWNT.
- Jermaine Jone's thunderous game-tying strike nearly 30 yards from goal against Portugal that sent the USA on its way to collecting the vital point it ultimately needed to advance to the knockout round at the 2014 FIFA World Cup.
- The USWNT booked its place at the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup by rolling through the Concacaf qualifying tournament with a 6-0-0 record, 21 goals scored, 0 conceded and a clean sweep of the competition's individual awards.
- Fabian Johnson's picturesque strike against Turkey in the USA's second Send-Off Series game was one of the USMNT's most well-crafted goals the team produced in a year of memorable tallies.
- A rarity among professional athletes across all sports, USWNT captain Christie Rampone was honored for her enduring professionalism and longevity at the highest level of soccer when she made her 300th appearance for her country against Mexico during Women's World Cup Qualifying, becoming just the second soccer player in history – man or woman – to achieve the feat.

- The torch was passed on to the next generation of the USMNT as three pillars of the team's unparalleled success over the last decade all announced their retirement: DaMarcus Beasley, Carlos Bocanegra and Landon Donovan.
- With his team approaching its final group game at the 2014 FIFA World Cup, USMNT head coach Jurgen Klinsmann wrote a letter asking that fans be released from work in order to cheer on the USA against Germany. His words went viral on the internet, spawning numerous positive responses from bosses, celebrities and politicians as well as more than a few copy cats.
- USMNT goalkeeper Tim Howard turned in a larger-than-life performance in the USA's Round of 16, overtime defeat to Belgium at the 2014 FIFA World Cup, making a tournament-record 16 saves and cementing his legacy among soccer fans as first goalkeeper to become the "Secretary of Defense."
- U.S. Soccer enjoyed a record year of fan support and interaction, from the thousands that followed the USMNT to Brazil for the 2014 FIFA World Cup to the ever-present USWNT fans that cheered on the team as it qualified for the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup. An assuredly giant leap was made by U.S. Soccer with the help of its fans and partners in 2014, one that has raised the bar higher than ever before in the United States.

BEST OF U.S. SOCCER #100YEARS EDITION WINNER

In 2013, U.S. Soccer provided fans with the opportunity to determine the top moment of the Federation's history. Set up as a bracket-style competition that pits the top moments across U.S. Soccer's 100-year history head-to-head, fans voted daily to determine their favorite moment of all-time.

Abby Wambach's dramatic and stunning goal against Brazil in the 2011 FIFA Women's World Cup quarterfinal defeated all challengers to win the Best of U.S. Soccer: #100Years Edition. More than 10,000 fans voted on the final matchup to crown Wambach the winner, while more than 210,000 votes were cast overall.

Wambach's stoppage-time score that pulled the USA even at 2-2 at the very end of overtime in a match that the USA eventually won in penalty kicks, triumphed in all six of its matchups during the 64-moment bracket-style competition. In the final round, Wambach's 122nd-minute header off a cross from Megan Rapinoe – which at the time was the latest goal ever scored in a FIFA competition – edged Landon Donovan's historic strike in the waning seconds of the USA's last match of group play against Algeria at the 2010 FIFA World Cup in South Africa.

At events where space allows, photographers may also shoot on the sideline opposite the benches between the end line and the 18-yard line. Shooting from the 18-yard line will be allowed on a match-by-match basis depending on space. The attacking direction of the teams is determined by a coin toss. Following the coin toss, photographers must pick one end of the field to shoot for the entire half. The ONLY time photographers may change ends is at halftime. At NO time are photographers allowed on the field of play.

Reporters/anchors will not be issued a bib. U.S. Soccer will not generally credential non-rights holder producers, editors, or technicians.

Following the coin toss, ENG cameras must pick one end of the field to shoot for the entire half. The ONLY time ENG crews may change ends is at halftime. At NO time are any media members allowed on the field of play.

Bibs: All ENG camera operators are required to wear a colored bib as provided by U.S. Soccer. The bib is lightweight and designed to be worn outside of outerwear and be visible at all times. Social Media Reporting: U.S. Soccer permits credentialed reporters to report on behalf of their media organizations through social media channels or personal accounts. U.S. Soccer permits pictures to be taken from the press box for social media reporting purposes but prohibits the collection of any type of video from the press box. Doing so may result in revocation of press credentials.

APPENDIX I: NON-RIGHTS HOLDER VIDEO GUIDELINES

In the local/regional markets, broadcasters should mention the time and location of the game along with their report. Outside of the local markets, broadcasters should mention the time and broadcast information.
