

Laptime and Lullabies

With a little “thinking out of the book,” you and your little one can discover literacy activities that are both enjoyable and meaningful. This combination of parent handbooks and children’s storybooks will help you share the joys of literacy with your toddler who is blind or visually impaired.

Parent Handbooks

These 18 Parent Handbooks help facilitate the skills necessary to build an understanding of language before beginning to read the written word, including: evaluating one’s environment; understanding reciprocal communication; developing listening skills; and more.

Storybooks

For parents and teachers of children up to three years of age; use Butterflies and Where’s Little Fuzzy? storybooks (both with tactile, braille, and print components) as the perfect companions to your Laptime and Lullabies: Parent Handbooks (sold separately).
