Babies with CVI: Nurturing Visual Abilities and Development in Early Childhood
Anne McComiskey

While several texts address the needs of children with cortical visual impairment, Babies with CVI takes an in-depth look at approaches to working with children from birth through 36 months. Based on years of experience of working with infants and toddlers with CVI, the author presents techniques and interventions both professionals and families can use to prepare young children for success in school and in life.

Guidelines and Games for Teaching Efficient Braille Reading, 2nd Edition
Myrna R. Olson, Renae Bjorg

To celebrate the 40th anniversary of the first publication of the ever popular Guidelines and Games, this classic text is being updated to reflect current technology and devices, new methods and efficiencies, and braille instruction updates. This updated edition will be an invaluable resource for classroom teachers and anyone working with children who are blind or visually impaired.

Release date: Winter 2021

William R. Wiener, Richard L. Welch, and Bruce B. Blasch – Editors

Now in its fourth edition, Foundations of Orientation and Mobility remains the classic reference and textbook for O&M professionals and students alike. A comprehensive work spread across two volumes, Foundations of O&M, 4th edition, contains contributions from over 50 of the leading scholars, teachers, and practitioners in the field addressing topics such as teaching methodologies, sensorimotor functioning, working with both children and adults, and navigating complex intersections. There will also be an emphasis on the many new technologies and apps available to children and adults who are blind or visually impaired to help them better navigate their world.

The New Faces of APH Press

The American Printing House for the Blind assumed stewardship of AFB Press in 2018 because we felt the Press was an indispensable resource for people who are visually impaired, their families, and the professionals who work with them. The goal of APH Press is not only to maintain the publishing legacy of its predecessor, but to develop new tools and ideas that ensure the Press stays relevant in an age when customers are just as likely to read an eBook as they are a physical one. Digital technology may have changed the way information is disseminated and digested, but it has not diminished the craft and passion needed to produce quality products.

In order to meet the unique challenges of the contemporary publishing industry, APH Press welcomed two new staff members at the end of 2020. Heather Spence assumed the role of APH Press Director and Michael L. Jones moved into the role of Managing Editor. Both of them bring a unique combination of experience and skills to their new positions.

Heather actually started her career with the Press in 2010 when it was still at the American Foundation for the Blind (AFB). In the decade she was at AFB, Heather worked as a Business Systems Manager, Product Fulfillment and Customer Service Manager, and a Publishing Associate. She is thrilled to have the opportunity to work with the Press again. Heather will oversee the strategic and financial goals of APH Press, including the development of a 3–5 year publishing plan that meets the needs of educators and university programs.

Michael initially joined APH in July 2019 as a Product Specialist in the Educational Product Research department. Before joining APH, Michael spent more than 25 years as a journalist. He served as a staff writer for the Louisville Eccentric Observer (LEO), the Highlander newspaper, and the Louisville Courier-Journal. Michael also edited the quarterly magazine Black Scene Millennium. In addition to journalism, Michael is the author of two books, “Second-Hand Stories: 15 Portraits of Louisville” and “Louisville Jug Music: From Earl McDonald to the National Jubilee,” which won the Samuel Thomas Book Award in 2015 as best local history.

“I consider myself an eternal student,” Michael said. “The thing I loved most about journalism was the fact that I was always meeting new people and learning about new things. After I came to work for APH, I was pleasantly surprised to find the same opportunities to expand my knowledge and skills. I feel the things I’ve learned working as a Product Specialist have prepared me for this new role.”

Michael’s focus will be on managing the development and launch of new books. Because he is an author himself, Heather feels that Michael will bring a new perspective to the Press. She said, “I feel like he can relate to the authors and see things from their perspective. I’m lucky to have him on my team. Our focus right now is on putting together workflows and processes to ensure we have a streamlined approach for managing the Press.”

APH Press shares APH’s mission of empowering people who are blind or visually impaired by providing accessible and innovative products, materials and services for lifelong success. Heather and Michael have already proven their dedication to this mission. They also possess the energy and enthusiasm to take the Press in some exciting new directions.
Access Technology for Blind and Low Vision Accessibility
Second Edition

Yue-Ting Siu and Ike Presley

Today, people who are blind and visually impaired have more choices than ever in how to access information for school, business, or their personal lives. While smartphone apps, braille notetakers, 3D printers, portable digital recorders, and other technologies allow unprecedented access to information, which tool is right for a user’s particular needs?

Access Technology gives an overview of currently available technologies and tools. Rather than using pre-determined checklists to evaluate technology skills, authors Yue-Ting Siu and Ike Presley present an inquiry-based approach for identifying needs related to individual instruction, advocacy for accessible formats, and how to achieve equity in information-rich environments. This edition raises important questions of how to empower students who are blind or visually impaired when it comes to finding the right tools for their needs. Service providers must facilitate students’ mediation of accessibility challenges and foster the development of skills for technology proficiency and independence in physical and digital worlds.

This book contains chapters on the following topics:

• Technologies for Accessing Digital Text
• Technologies for Accessing Multimedia & Data
• Considerations When Conducting a Technology Evaluation
• Scaling Up Digital Literacy Skills

Foundations of Vision Rehabilitation Therapy

Dr. Helen Lee and Jennifer Ottowitz – Editors

Foundations of Vision Rehabilitation Therapy continues the legacy of Paul and Sue Ponchillia’s seminal work Foundations of Rehabilitation Teaching with Persons Who Are Blind or Visually Impaired. After it was published in 1996, that book quickly established itself as an essential reference for vision rehabilitation professionals.

Foundations of Vision Rehabilitation Therapy builds on that important work, reflecting changes in the field over the past two decades. One major development is a change in terminology. In 2004, The Academy or Certification for Vision Rehabilitation and Education Professionals (ACVREP), the certifying body for rehabilitation teachers, changed the professional designation from rehabilitation teacher to vision rehabilitation therapist. This new edition also benefits from the significant increase in technology resources as well as advances in research since 1996.

This book reflects the contemporary understanding of adult learning and skill building, providing proven techniques to help people with visual impairments develop skills and gain confidence that will equip them to lead independent, fulfilling lives.

A few topics include:

- The Evolution of Home Teaching to Vision Rehabilitation Therapy
- Braille and Other Tactile Forms of Communication
- Keyboarding and Access Technology
- Access to Information: Electronic Listening, Recording, and Reading Devices
- Skills for Independent Living
- Personal Management Skills
- Vision Rehabilitation Therapy: Challenges and Opportunities

FAQs: eBook Format Options and APH Press Online Learning Center

What is an EPUB file?
Short for electronic publication, an EPUB file is the most widely adopted eBook format on the market. It’s the industry standard, used by Apple, Kobo, Barnes & Noble, Sony, and Google e-readers.

What is a MOBI file?
MOBI files are the eBook files used exclusively by Amazon’s Kindle Store.

Are APH Press Books compatible with screen readers?
Yes! APH Press offers books in both EPUB and MOBI file formats to ensure accessibility to all users.

What format should I order?
Most screen readers use EPUB files. However, if you have an Amazon Kindle, you will want to order files in MOBI format.

How do I access the electronic Learning Center materials for my APH Press book?
