

Project Impact:

- 78% of student participants gained confidence in finances
- 77% of student participants increased financial knowledge
- 75% of student participants completed a budget
- 37% of student participants indicated an intent to save money
- 11 School Districts
- 3,198 participating students

Project Highlights:

Financial Literacy for Low-Income Students (Brevard Schools Foundation)

Utilizing the Wells Fargo Hands-on Banking® curriculum, students learned to build a strong financial future by creating a spending plan, budgeting, building credit, and managing student loans.

Critical Thinking In Finances Beyond The Classroom (Polk Education Foundation)

Students were tasked with staying within a budget and given the scenario of moving into an apartment, house or dorm. They simulated a shopping experience at IKEA and visited a bank to open accounts.

Turning Dollars into Sense (Pasco Education Foundation)

Financial education was gamified for students at a “game of life” event where they played “The Price is Right” and other interactive games and went through a “College Edition” boot camp.

"That was wonderful, I always thought that learning this stuff would be extremely boring and dull, but the multitude of presentations and activities made it exceedingly delightful!"

Today, Bay Ed hosted "From Allowance To Investment" a financial literacy workshop for 8th graders, and sponsored by Wells Fargo. Thanks to Hancock Whitney, Innovations Financial Credit Union, Merrill Lynch, and Tyndall Federal Credit Union, for leading our workshops. Participants learned how to complete a W9, write a check, balance a budget, and so much more! And, a special thanks to Jill Bailey and all of our 8th grade MathCounts club leaders & our volunteers.
