

BIZARRE and UNUSUAL

NUMBER 3

Published monthly by the Popular Fiction Publishing Company, 2457 E. Washington Street, Indianapolis, Ind. Entered as second-class matter March 20, 1923, at the post office at Indianapolis, Ind., under the act of March 3, 1879. Single copies, 25 cents. Subscription, $2.50 a year in the United States; $3.00 a year in Canada. English office: Charles Lavell, 13. Serjeant's Inn. Fleet Street, E. C. 4, London. The publishers are not responsible for the loss of unsolicited manuscripts, although every care will be taken of such material while in their possession. The contents of this magazine are fully protected by copyright and must not be reproduced either wholly or in part without permission from the publishers.

NOTE—All manuscripts and communications should be addressed to the publishers' Chicago office at 840 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
FARNSWORTH WRIGHT. Editor.

Copyright, 1929, by the Popular Fiction Publishing Company

Contents for March, 1929

Cover Design C. C.  Illustrating a scene in "The People of Pan"	Senf
The People of PanHenry S. Whitehead  Under the surface of a West Indian island Canevin found a strange people who worshiped Pan—then the catastrophe	292
The City of Iron Cubes (Part 1)H. F. Arnold  A two-part weird-scientific serial story by the author of "The Night Wire"—strange invaders from space land in Peru	306
The Immortal HandArlton Eadie  A ghost-story of Shakespeare and Stratford-on-Avon—three tourists make a startling discovery	325
Visions in SmokeRufus W. Landon Verse	332
The Deserted Garden August W. Derleth  He investigated the mysterious death of his predecessor— and himself fell a victim to an elemental spirit	333

[CONTINUED ON NEXT PAGE]

[CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING PAGE]

The Sea Horror Edmond Hamilton 351  In their cities in the ocean depths the slug-people launched their war against the civilization of man  The Hounds of Tindalos Frank Belknap Long, Jr. 373  A tale of unutterable horror—of a pursuit by loathsome entities through the ages and through the dimensions  Ballade of Wandering Ghosts Hanna Baird Campbell Verse  The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion) Eli Colter 383  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon Vase John Murray Reynolds 397  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew Alvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421  A chat with the readers	The Rat S. Fowler Wright	337
In their cities in the ocean depths the slug-people launched their war against the civilization of man  The Hounds of Tindalos Frank Belknap Long, Jr. 373  A tale of unutterable horror—of a pursuit by loathsome entities through the ages and through the dimensions  Ballade of Wandering Ghosts Hanna Baird Campbell Verse  The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion) Eli Colter 383  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon Vase John Murray Reynolds  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew Alvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	The surgeon experimented on a blind rat, then committed a strange murder—a story by the author of "The Deluge"
The Hounds of Tindalos Frank Belknap Long, Jr. 373  A tale of unutterable horror—of a pursuit by loathsome entities through the ages and through the dimensions  Ballade of Wandering Ghosts Hanna Baird Campbell Verse  The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion) Eli Colter 383  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon Vase John Murray Reynolds  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew Alvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin	The Sea HorrorEdmond Hamilton	351
A tale of unutterable horror—of a pursuit by loathsome entities through the ages and through the dimensions  Ballade of Wandering Ghosts	In their cities in the ocean depths the slug-people launched their war against the civilization of man
Ballade of Wandering Ghosts Hanna Baird Campbell 382  Verse  The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion) Eli Colter 383  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon Vase John Murray Reynolds 397  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew Alvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	The Hounds of TindalosFrank Belknap Long, Jr.	373
The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion)Eli Colter 383  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon VaseJohn Murray Reynolds 397  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May DewAlvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	A tale of unutterable horror—of a pursuit by loathsome entities through the ages and through the dimensions
The Vengeance of the Dead (Conclusion)Eli Colter  A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon VaseJohn Murray Reynolds  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May DewAlvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	Ballade of Wandering GhostsHanna Baird Campbell	382
A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds  The Celadon Vase	, ,,,,,
The Celadon Vase John Murray Reynolds  The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew Alvin F. Harlow 403  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff 404  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421		383
The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness  Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew	A two-part serial story of a strange monstrosity whose ghastly depredations terrified the guests at Waggener Wilds
Folks Used to Believe:  May Dew	The Celadon VaseJohn Murray Reynolds	397
May Dew	The alchemist devised an ingenious trap in which to catch his lady and test her faithfulness
One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	TI-11 Yr. 1 / TI-12 .
Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint: The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421
A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse		403
with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the FutureDonald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors
The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn 406  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the FutureDonald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff
A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the FutureDonald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle
Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie 421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:	404
12. A Vision of the FutureDonald Wandrei 420  Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn	404
Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin  The Eyrie421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the TideEdward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom FarmhouseSeabury Quinn  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf	404
The Eyrie 421	May DewAlvin F. Harlow One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint: The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:	404 406
•	May DewAlvin F. Harlow One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint: The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:	404 406
A chat with the readers	May Dew Alvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin	404 406
	May Dew Alvin F. Harlow  One of the strange superstitions of our ancestors  Left by the Tide Edward E. Schiff  A bizarre tale of the sea—the story of a gruesome struggle with a monstrosity out of the deeps  Weird Story Reprint:  The Phantom Farmhouse Seabury Quinn  A reprint from Weird Tales of six years ago—a werewolf story of unusual pathos and beauty  Sonnets of the Midnight Hours:  12. A Vision of the Future Donald Wandrei Verse; decoration by Hugh Rankin	404 406 420

For Advertising Rates in WEIRD TALES Apply Direct to WEIRD TALES

Western Advertising Office: YOUNG & WARD, Mgrs. 360 N. Michigan Ave. Chicago, Ill. Phone, Central 6269

Eastern Advertising Office: GEORGE W. STEARNS, Mgr. Flatiron Building New York, N. Y. Phone, Algonquin 8328

Left by the Tide

By EDWARD E. SCHIFF

ERE it not for that four-inch scar upon my forehead, I would have thought it a nightmare—some ghastly hallucination, even though it happened in broad daylight. But there is that scar, which mars my features for life, tangible and terrible evidence to prove that I did not dream it.

I had gone down to the beach with the rising sun, but I was the only one there. None of the other guests from the hotel had yet come down to take their early morning plunge. A charity affair that did not break up till 3 o'clock that morning kept them abed. So I was alone upon that sundrenched stretch of sand.

The tide was low and I had to walk some hundred yards before I was waist-deep and breasting the invigorating waters of old ocean. swam out at once to a pile of rocks, a good quarter of a mile from the shore, and climbed out upon them. Now, at low tide, they formed a nearly circular, barnacle- and weedcovered island, about fifty feet in diameter and rising only a few feet above the waters. After resting a few minutes I clambered over the jagged stones toward the center, where there was a depression about six or seven feet deep and about the same width, and where the retreating waters sometimes left strange denizers of the deep, which could be observed under ideal conditions.

Just before I reached the little pool, I thrilled to the sound of a splash of a heavy body. The tide had left something there with a vengeance, I thought gleefully, and I hastened forward to see what it was.

I stared, sickened by what I saw-a dead man, with shriveled, shrunken skin, hollow cheeks, and hideous in apparently the last stages of putrefaction. There he was floating on his back a bare few inches below the sur-His hands were under him, and at first I thought he was naked. Then, as I overcame my first horror, I noted that he had a sort of apron about his loins—an apron made of what appeared to be the scales of a large fish. It was a curious garment and covered with green algæ or sea moss. The man must have been dead a long time to have allowed for the formation of that slime. I puzzled over this, wondering how it was he remained whole and not half devoured by the scavengers of the sea. suddenly I remembered the splash I had heard. Who had made it? Not the dead man. Closely I searched the pool for some other sign of life, but except for a sea crab or two there was none.

Turning my attention to the body again, I scrutinized it closely and felt my scalp twitch when I thought I detected a barely perceptible rising and falling of the chest. The more I stared the more certain I was that I was not mistaken. But drowned men do not breathe, I told myself; I must be laboring under a hallucination. I turned my eyes away and gazed out over the sea and sky to rest them, and when I turned them back again I was shocked into an exclamation. The body had moved toward me. I could still see the faint traces of the eddy it had made to reach me. But dead men can not move and there was no wave or tide or any breath of wind that could propel it within that enclosed space.

404

Now I was certain it was breathing. The slight but definitely regular expansion and contraction of the chest were caused by respiration. I could not be mistaken.

Then suddenly the lids flashed open and I was staring into its eyes. And they were the eyes of a living creature, sea-green and evil, that probed through mine into the very recesses of my brain with satanic curiosity. Then, still holding me with its baleful gaze, the thing reached for the brink with huge hands that were webbed like those of some aquatic bird, and started to pull itself up.

Somehow I broke the spell by which the thing held me, and, half mad with loathing and horror, I kicked him with my bare foot back into the pool.

I think I stumbled half back to the open water before I recovered my courage and paused to look back. It had come out of the pool and was dragging its slimy length over the rocks toward me. I realized at once it could not walk upright and that I would have no difficulty in evading it. With unmitigated loathing I watched it crawl until it approached to within a few feet of me. Then I backed away from it, taking care to avoid being crowded into the sea where it could easily outmaneuver me with its finlike appendages.

Again it tried to hold me with its hypnotic stare, but I avoided its eyes, and, stooping down, picked up a fragment of rock and tried to threaten it back. Suddenly it, too, reached out and picked up a stone, and we both threw at the same moment. But I was completely beside myself with horror and missed him by inches, while he caught me fairly on the chest —a blow that knocked the breath out of me and dropped me to my knees. The next moment he was upon me, his powerful hands closing about my throat, his cold, slimy body against my cringing, warm flesh, his fetid breath in my nostrils.

But I fought, fought in a stark, frenzied madness that promised to rid me of his clinging, hateful weight, when suddenly he released one of his hands from my throat, and I could feel him fumble around his waist. The next moment I would have been free of him, but his hand came up again wielding a stone or coral knife.

I screamed and tried to evade the blow, but while I spoiled his aim for my throat he managed to inflict that awful gash on my forehead.

When I came back to consciousness it was with a cry of terror, in the arms of two men who were lifting me into a skiff; and for some minutes I struggled with them, before I realized they were my rescuers.

Their story is briefly told. They had observed me from the beach apparently trying to avoid some creature which they thought was a seal. They quickly got into a skiff and rowed to the rocks, shouting to frighten off the creature when they saw me struggling with it. Then for a minute or two I was out of their sight, hidden by a projecting rock, and when they again saw me I was alone and lying flat on my back, though a moment before they had heard the thing splash into the sea.

That is their story. Mine they would not believe. In fact, they tried to stop me in the telling of it, and attempted to soothe me as if I were a terror-stricken child, or crazy. They said I had injured my forehead by falling on a jagged stone.

But that day two bathers were pulled down to their death by some creature of the sea. Sharks, they all said. But I know better.