Players to Watch

#24 • GK • Matt Glaeser - Glaeser has only one goal against in the playoffs thus far. Glaeser's job this game is going to be crucial. The Islanders are going to leave everything on the field, so it is going to be a tough match for the back line and Glaeser.

#23 • M • Martin Nuñez - The Uruguayan midfielder scored the first goal against the Islanders in Puerto Rico just four minutes after he entered the field at halftime.

#17 • M • Bryan Arguez - Powerful midfielder who does not give up the ball. His dribbling and passing led to several scoring chances this post season. The South Florida native will play an important role in tonight's game.

Quick Facts

- The Puerto Rico Islanders suffered their first home loss all season last week in Leg 1 of the semifinals.
- With a win, tie, or a one goal loss tonight, the Strikers will advance to the NASL Championship Series.
- The Strikers have scored eight goals in their two playoff matches, and allowed only one.

Tonight's Matchup

The Fort Lauderdale Strikers take on the Puerto Rico Islanders in the second leg of the NASL Semifinal to decide which team advances to the NASL Championship Series beginning on Saturday, Oct. 22. The Strikers will try to remain unbeaten against the Islanders this season at Lockhart stadium (1-1-0).

Last Match • 10/8 vs. Puerto Rico Islanders

The Fort Lauderdale Strikers defeated the Puerto Rico Islanders at Juan Ramon Loubriel Stadium, 3-1, continuing their scoring streak after beating FC Edmonton 5-0 the week before.

After a first half without many chances the Strikers opened the scoring in the 49th minute when halftime substitution Martin Nunez buried a Lance Laing cross to make it 1-0. Nunez had come on for captain Abe Thompson at halftime after Thompson received an injury in the first half.

Fort Lauderdale extended their lead in the 82nd minute when Walter Restrepo took a pass near midfield and dribbled to the top of the Islanders 18-yard box and fired a perfectly placed shot into the top corner of the net. Puerto Rico goalkeeper Ray Burse dove to try to deflect the ball, but it was out of reach.

The Islanders answered right back in the 84th minute to make it 2-1 when Gregory Richardson found Jonathan Fana in the small penalty area where Fana shot far post for the goal. Richardson and Fana were both second half substitutions for the Islanders.

The Strikers added their final goal in second half stoppage time when a Puerto Rico turnover left Mike Palacio alone in the penalty area. Palacio sent a cross to the far side of the net where Brian Shriver was waiting to pocket his third goal of the playoffs.

Next Match • 10/22 vs. NSC Minnesota Stars/Carolina Railhawks

Should the Strikers advance, the next match will be the first game of the NASL Championship Series against either NSC Minnesota Stars or Carolina Railhawks. With a win, tie or loss by one goal tonight against Puerto Rico, the Strikers will qualify to the NASL Championship Series. The NSC Minnesota Stars, who won the first leg at home, have an opportunity to advance with a victory or draw against the RailHawks. If Minnesota keeps the lead and wins against Carolina, the Championship Series will be hosted on Oct. 29 at Lockhart Stadium. If Carolina advances, the home game against Carolina will be on Oct. 22.

Head Coach • Daryl Shore

Shore, 41, is a New York native who graduated from South Plantation High School, in Plantation, Florida. He played in college as a goalkeeper for Birmingham-Southern College and went on to play professionally for the Birmingham Grasshoppers and the New Orleans Riverboat Gamblers. After managing professional organizations all over the country such as the New Orleans Storm and the Lehigh Valley Steam, he began a ten-year tenure for the Chicago Fire as an assistant coach. Shore served as an assistant to four head coaches with Chicago, including Bob Bradley, Juan Carlos Osorio and former Striker Dennis Hamlett. He also played a significant role in the growth of the Fire's player development program. He was hired last July as the head coach for the Blues.

Assistant Coach • Jim Rooney

Rooney began his professional career in South Florida with the Miami Fusion in the MLS. The American midfielder made 67 appearances for the club from 1999 – 2001 scoring 12 goals in the process. Rooney also spent time with the New York MetroStars (now the New York Red Bulls) and the New England Revolution. Rooney served as team captain of the Fusion during the 2000 and 2001 seasons.

1 • Nic Platter • Goalkeeper • 6'1 • 185 lbs • 11/22/1981

Platter is a California native that began his college career at the University of California at Davis. He had a stellar career where he became the all time shutout and saves leader, for the school. Platter signed with Minnesota in 2005 and spent the first five years of his professional career making 85 appearances for the club. He signed with the Carolina Railhawks in 2010, appearing in 10 matches

2 • Cristian Quinones • Defender • 6'3 • 172 lbs • 12/31/1990

Quiñones, a native of Colombia, has spent time playing at the professional and youth international levels. The 6-foot-3 center back most recently played for Independiente Sante Fe in the Colombian first division. The three seasons he spent with the club were his first as a member of a senior professional team. Before playing for Independiente Santa Fe, Quiñones spent time with the reserve teams of first-division Colombian clubs Deportivo Cali and Independiente Medellín in 2006. A year earlier, he was a member of the youth academy at another one of the nation's bigger clubs, Once Caldas. Quiñones has represented Colombia at the U-15 and U-17 international levels, participating in several South American international tournaments. He also took part in a pair of U-20 national team training camps, but never made an appearance for the team.
