LA Galaxy Ring of Honor to be Unveiled Today

Cobi Jones, Mauricio Cienfuegos and Doug Hamilton will be honored today as first-ever Ring of Honor class

The LA Galaxy will unveil the LA Galaxy Ring of Honor today ahead of kickoff against D.C. United. Former LA Galaxy forwards Cobi Jones and Mauricio Cienfuegos, along with the late Doug Hamilton, the Galaxy's former President and General Manager, will be honored on the field as the first-ever class of the Ring of Honor.

The Galaxy will honor Jones, Cienfuegos and Hamilton at StubHub Center in a special ceremony prior to the Galaxy's match against D.C. United. During the ceremony, the Galaxy will unveil the Ring of Honor at StubHub Center, showing permanent recognition to each individual for their contributions to the club through dedicated signage inside the stadium.

Ring of Honor members have exemplified the winning tradition of the LA Galaxy, the club's commitment to the city of Los Angeles and the charge to grow the game of soccer in Los Angeles and Southern California. Each inductee will have been retired from MLS for at least three seasons. The LA Galaxy will add players into the club's Ring of Honor based on timing and merit, as to be determined by the President of the LA Galaxy and a small advisory council including former players, staff and supporters.

Jones is the Galaxy's all-time leader in games played (306), games started (281), and minutes (25,157). He scored 70 goals for the Galaxy, the second most in club history, in addition to leading the club to MLS Cup victories in 2002 and 2005.

Cienfuegos was a member of the Galaxy from 1996-2003, making 206 appearances (fourth-most in Galaxy history) with 80 assists (third-most in Galaxy history) and 35 goals (fifth-most in Galaxy history). He helped lead the club to the 2002 MLS Cup trophy.

Hamilton was the President and General Manager of the LA Galaxy during two MLS Cup championships (2002, 2005), and was named MLS Soccer Executive of the Year three-straight seasons (2003-2005). In 2006, the MLS renamed the award the Doug Hamilton Executive of the Year award to honor his success and commitment during his time with the Galaxy. Hamilton passed away in March of 2006.

Gyasi Zardes, the LA Galaxy and Chevrolet Open New Futsal Courts in the Striker's Hometown of Hawthorne

by LA Galaxy Insider Adam Serrano

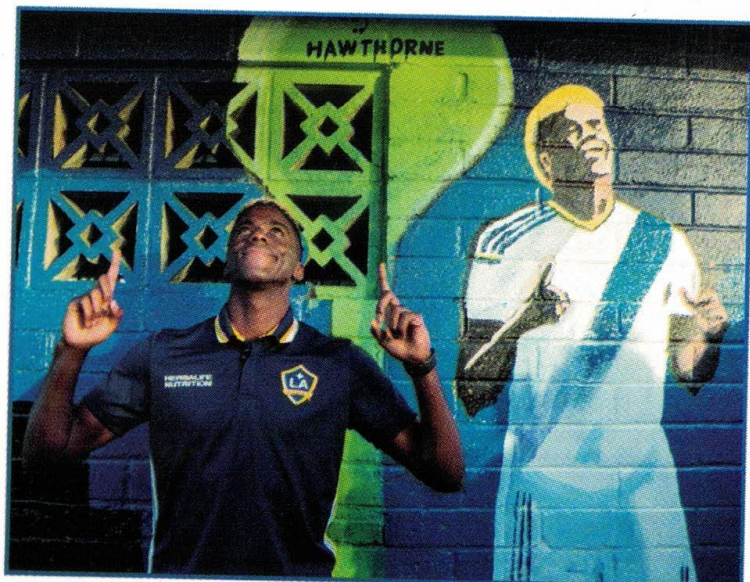

Last month, Gyasi Zardes had a unique opportunity to give back to his beloved hometown of Hawthorne on Friday thanks to the LA Galaxy Foundation.

In an event sponsored by the Galaxy and partners Chevrolet, three new futsal courts and two murals were installed at Hawthorne Memorial Park. The event kicked off the Galaxy Foundation's "Foundation Fridays" initiative, which will feature monthly community service events across Southern California throughout the 2016 season.

Hawthorne Memorial Park has particular importance for the Galaxy's star striker, as he was repeatedly chased off the park's tennis courts for playing soccer growing up. Now years later, Zardes had the opportunity to bring the beautiful game back to his hometown.

"Growing up here in Hawthorne, I remember playing on basketball courts, I remember playing on tennis courts, and now the community has a home to play soccer and enjoy it in the city of Hawthorne,” Zardes told an assembled crowd of several hundred. “I hope and pray that everyone enjoys this pitch. I know that it will make a positive impact in the community.”

Throughout the hour-long event, Zardes and his Galaxy teammates Steven Gerrard, A.J. DeLaGarza, and Baggio Husidic had an opportunity to interact with soccer players from across the city in a series of skill challenges at the new facility. But the highlight of the event was Zardes removing a “No Soccer Allowed” sign on the park gates, and replacing it with a new sign opening the courts for play.

The unveiling of the new futsal courts was only a portion of the event, however, as the Galaxy partnered with the City of Hawthorne and the DaVinci Schools to paint a pair of murals that depict civic pride and the beautiful game. One painting prominently featured Zardes in celebration alongside a launching rocket designed to signify Hawthorne-based aerospace company SpaceX.

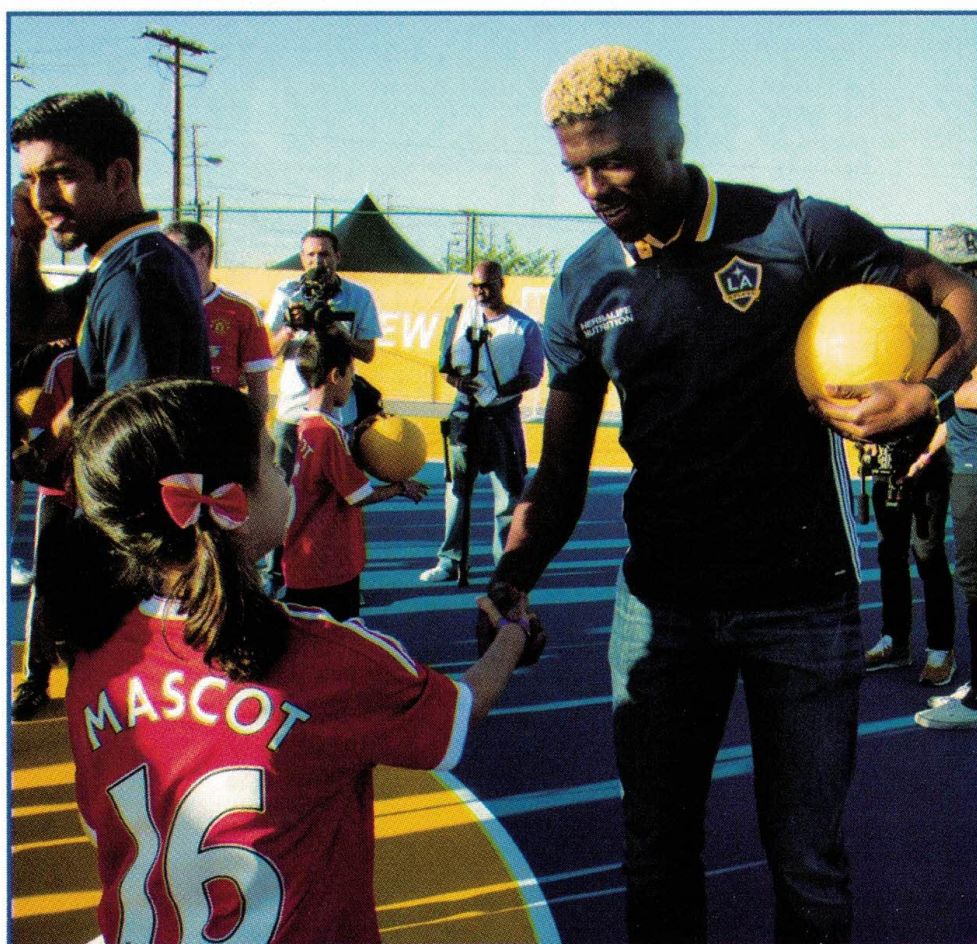

“We wanted to reenergize this park,” Hawthorne Police Officer Chris Cognac, who worked closely with the Galaxy Foundation and Chevrolet on the park’s creation, said. “These tennis courts were not being used, so we had a dream to turn them into futsal courts...this gives kids a place to go. It’s a safe space for the people of our city.”

As he watched children play on the brand-new courts, Zardes admitted to being genuinely humbled by the experience.

“I can’t put this all into words. I spent most of my life here,” Zardes said. “To be able to participate in this is amazing. It’s a blessing and an honor.”

Steven Gerrard Eager to Make a Lasting Connection with His New Home On and Off the Pitch | #ThisIsLA

by LA Galaxy Insider Adam Serrano

Steven Gerrard's heart will always beat for his hometown of Liverpool, but the English midfielder is eager to form a new connection with the city that he now fondly refers to as his "second home."

Raised on a council estate in the Merseyside suburb of Huyton, Gerrard shared a bond with the supporters of his boyhood club Liverpool FC that was unlike any other player that came before him. After 17 seasons with his hometown club with countless memories along the way, Gerrard made the move stateside to the LA Galaxy last summer.

The move sparked many firsts for the 35-year-old:

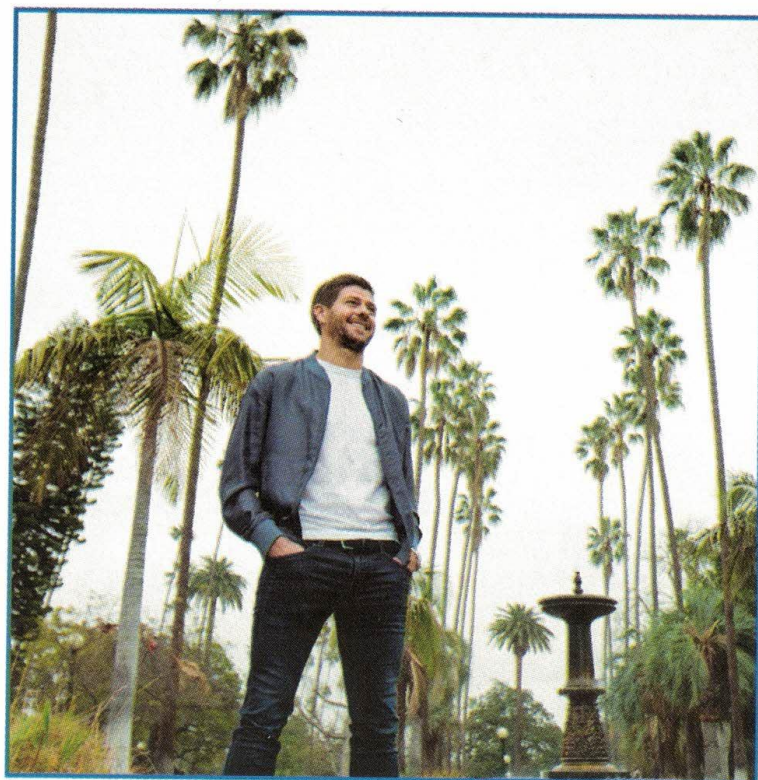

The first time he and his family had lived outside of Liverpool

The first time that he donned another club shirt other than LFC's signature red kit

The first time that he dealt with playing in heat, turf and altitude.

For any person, let alone a professional athlete, the move to a new country can be a bit "hectic" at first, but after seven months in Los Angeles, Gerrard believes that he is finally coming into his own in Sunny SoCal.

"I've always been excited since the first moment that I came to Los Angeles. That excitement hasn't changed, but being here for a full season away from the game, I'll be able to see a lot more of LA and see a lot of other places outside the city as well," Gerrard told LA Galaxy Insider. "When I first came, it was really hectic because I wanted to settle and get used to my new surroundings, but with more time on my hands for the first time, I'll certainly want to get more involved in the city and mix with the people here. This is my second home, and it's important to do those things."

Gerrard's excitement about his new adventure has not precluded the veteran from encountering a few hurdles, however.

"It was quite intimidating at the beginning. When I'm alone over here, and I have to drive about, and I don't know where I'm going, the traffic is brutal. Driving on a different side of the road, you have to adapt very quickly to become comfortable," he said. "I feel that I'm a lot more settled in the city, and I've come to terms with living in a big city, so I feel like it took me four or five months to settle in a new city. But since I arrived off the plane on day one, I've had an incredible reception with my teammates and supporters around town."

"I appreciate it very much; I'd love nothing more than to award that with honors this season. It's not just about turning up for work, it's about what happens on the pitch, and it's about putting smiles on the supporters' faces."

Dealing with a new climate, a new league or the infamous Los Angeles traffic are not the only challenges that the Englishman has faced. In his first half season with the Galaxy, the team floundered in the month of October, which ultimately culminated in the team's early postseason exit at the hands of Seattle Sounders FC.

Moments after that defeat, Gerrard was frank about demanding more from himself in year two. Now with a Galaxy side that has been transformed on the field with the acquisitions of Ashley Cole, Nigel de Jong and Jelle Van Damme, Gerrard is looking to make a bigger impression in the locker room, as well as those in the stands.

"I want my teammates to open up more with me. I want the staff to open up more with me. I'm certainly trying. I'm not the most outgoing person, but I'm always there for people to talk to, and I want people to open up to me more," he said. "I've come here to make friends, and I want to be part of the team, and have success just like anyone else. That goes for the fans as well. I've got no ego; I'm no star name or anything like that. I don't see myself as that type of person. People who get to know me and break down my barriers will find a connection."

Perhaps no word is more synonymous with Gerrard's career than "connection."

At Liverpool, Gerrard reached iconic status with his ability to deliver in the biggest moments for his hometown club. Like few other players in leagues across the world, Gerrard's history with the club gave him the unique ability to embody the very spirit of the supporters' who cheered him on.

Whether Gerrard can achieve that type of status with Galaxy supporters' remains to be seen, but creating that connection with the city of Los Angeles is imperative for the midfielder heading into the 2016 campaign.

"For me the most important thing is to have some experiences and memories with the people of LA. I'd like nothing more than to have some success here," Gerrard said. "Some of the highlights of my career and my life have been when I've shared moments with the people of Liverpool back home. I'd like nothing better than to come here whether it be for 18 months or longer than to share success and good times with the people of Los Angeles. That's the most important thing for me.

"Football clubs are nothing without supporters.

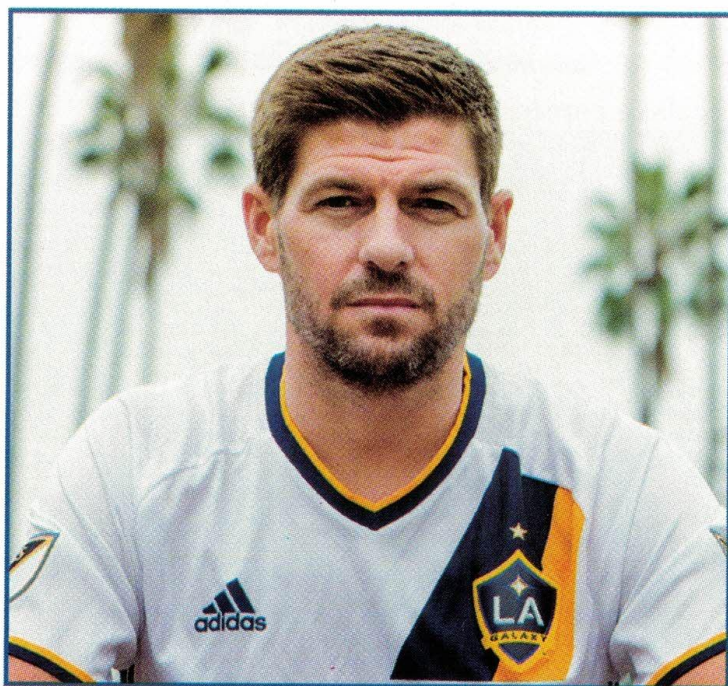

That's what it is all about. All my memories and top nights on a football pitch have always been about the fans. It is a family, and we have to become one. We have to share all the experiences together. There's no way in the world that we can achieve what we want to achieve without the people of LA."

At 35 years of age, the veteran midfielder understands that his window of time to form that connection is coming to a close. With just one remaining year on his contract, Gerrard has yet to decide whether he'll call time on his career at season's end.

Gerrard is sure to keep his options open as the season progresses, but if 2016 is his final campaign, the midfielder is determined to bring a championship to his adopted home.

"I'm running out of time in my career, and it's very important that I try and finish a very long career on a high. Not just from a selfish point of view, but I think that everyone in LA wants to get that sixth MLS Cup," Gerrard said. "Although last year was disappointing, we have to use it as a positive. That's gone, and we can't change it. Everyone has to get back on the train and pull it in the right direction to get it successful. It would be a special ending to my career if I decide to call it a day, but it's not just for me, it's for everyone from the fans to the staff. I want to finish this long year with some success."

LA Galaxy II Kick Off USL Season March 26

*The future stars of LA Galaxy less than a month away from
season debut*

LA Galaxy II will open the USL season later this month at StubHub Center, facing Arizona United SC on Saturday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. PT. Tickets can be purchased on Galaxy II's website, www.lagalaxy.com/2, for just $10.

With a 4-0-0 preseason record, Los Dos extended its preseason win streak last week with a 3-0 rout of Loyola Marymount University at StubHub Center. A first half hat-trick from Ariel Lassiter, the team's leading scorer in 2015, gave Galaxy II the easy win. Lassiter scored at the 1', 24' and 36' minutes.

Last week, LA Galaxy II single-game tickets went on sale to the public. Fans can go to www.lagalaxy.com/schedule/2 or call 1-877-3GALAXY to purchase single-game tickets for the 2016 USL Regular Season. Los Dos tickets to each of the team's 2016 home matches can be purchased for just $10. Home matches at StubHub Center feature free parking for attending fans on non-StubHub Center event days.

2016 LA Galaxy II Season Ticket Memberships starting at $75 ($5 per game, 50% off face value) are also on sale. Group discounts start at 10+ tickets. Full Season Ticket Memberships and group tickets can be purchased at <http://www.lagalaxy.com/Tickets/LAGalaxyII>.

For more information, visit www.lagalaxy.com/2 or follow Los Dos on Twitter (@LAGalaxyII), Instagram (@lagalaxyii), and Facebook (LA Galaxy II).

LA Galaxy Unveil New Primary Jersey for 2016

Galaxy introduce new-look primary kits that will be worn across all competitions

The LA Galaxy will sport a new primary jersey for the 2016 season, which will be worn throughout all official club competitions.

Galaxy fans can purchase the new 2016 primary jersey now by visiting www.teamlastore.com/collections/galaxy-new-arrivals or by visiting the LA Galaxy Team Store at StubHub Center.

The new Galaxy primary kit will continue the traditional sash featured in previous years while providing a classic update in two contrasting bars of the Galaxy's primary colors. The bars highlight the team's new crest, which will be the only team in MLS to feature a single Gold Star, signifying the Galaxy's record five MLS Cup Championships.

The new Herbalife Nutrition logo will appear prominently on the front of the club's jersey. Herbalife Nutrition will now also be featured on all LA Galaxy training gear for staff and players. In addition, Herbalife will remain the Galaxy's official and exclusive nutrition partner, with the entire line of the Herbalife products available to the club's players and coaching staff.
