AMERICAN FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Bears Stadium

The all-purpose home of the Denver Broncos seats 34,657 persons in a four sided structure. The Stadium was constructed in 1948 for the Denver Bears baseball team, but long range plans were to utilize it for football as well. When Denver became a charter member of the American Football League, these plans which were in the files were pulled out and speedily put into practice. The south stands were constructed and a portable grandstand was purchased which is put into place on the eastern side of the playing field during the football season. The South Stands hold 8,100 persons while the east stands hold 9,616. Parking facilities owned by the Broncos accomodate over 3,000 automobiles and additional space in the area can park several thousand more. The Valley Highway, high-speed expressway which runs from northwest to southeast Denver, is located just one block east of the Stadium and Colfax Ave., the main east west thoroughfare of the Mile High City is three blocks south. These arteries enable parking areas to be cleared within minutes of the end of a game.

The Stadium is located in almost the geographical center of this metropolitan area of 1,000,000 persons and only three minutes from the downtown business district.

Concessions stands and rest rooms are in abundance at the Stadium which many describe as the most beautiful Stadium in America.

One other point is overlooked. The Broncos are the only professional football team in the United States which owns and operates its own Stadium, consequently, the Stadium is kept in tip-top shape at all times.

There are two press boxes: the football press box is located atop the west stands from the 30 to the 30 yard lines while the baseball press box is directly behind what is home plate during the diamond season.

There is a main scoreboard above the east stands which is one of the most modern in the nation. An auxiliary board is located beneath the football press box. The two boards cost nearly $175,000 and are operated electronically.

CALVIN W. KUNZ, JR.

President

The Denver Broncos

It's an axiom in Denver that everyone comes from somewhere else. But Calvin W. Kunz, Jr., the new and vital president of the Denver Broncos, proudly proclaims his nativity to the Mile High City.

Kunz, it was, along with Gerald H. Phipps, another lifelong resident of Denver, who stepped in, in May, 1961, and took over the Broncos, along with several other prominent Denver businessmen. They have now restored the fortunes of the Broncos and spurred them on to new and greater triumphs.

Kunz, 42, is a novice in the professional sports business, but has learned the various ramifications of the football operation in a minimum of time with a maximum of effort.

He attended the University of Denver and Harvard Business School. A Colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, Kunz served 39 months in the South Pacific during World War II. He was violently involved in the historic and bloody battles of Gaudalcanal, Bougainville, Guam and Iwo Jima.

After the war, Cal assumed the presidency of a farming business which involves corporate farming in Arizona and marketing in the eastern United States.

An ardent disciple of all sports, both from a spectator and a participating basis, Kunz' emergence as the number one man in the Denver Broncos is a natural follow-up to a lifetime of outdoor living and a zest for improving his native community, Denver.

DEAN GRIFFING

General Manager

Possibly the most experienced general manager in the American Football League, Dean Griffing brings a lifetime of football background, both administrative and coaching, to the Mile High City and America's newest major sports circuit. A native of Wichita, Kans., Griffing played collegiate ball at Kansas State from where he moved on to the professional ranks. The 45-year-old Griffing was a general manager just two years out of college. He coached and directed Canadian clubs for almost a quarter of a century, including teams in Calgary, Saskatchewan and Toronto.

A desire to retire after many years in the grid wars impelled the personable Griffing and his wife, Bea, to take their two children to Tuscon, Ariz., where he accepted the post of executive director of the Major-Minor College game, played each year in that city.

After two years in that capacity Griffing heeded the call back to arms and accepted his present post with the Denver Broncos where his acumen and experience have been invaluable in the building of Denver's first venture into professional football.

PAUL MANASSEH

Publicity Director

A versatile background in sports eminently qualifies Manasseh for his present duties. A native of Shreveport, La., Paul attended Louisiana State University where he majored in journalism. After that he joined the Shreveport Journal and then spent 3½ years in the army, mostly in the counter intelligence corps. Back to the newspaper work and then a stretch as sports director of KWKH Shreveport.

He became general manager of the Monroe Sports of the Cotton States League and then joined Shreveport of the Texas League. He came to Denver with the Bears in 1958 a public relations director and went to Dallas for one year before returning to Denver where he was in overall charge of press and public relations with the Bears and Broncos. On June 1, 1961 he was named general manager of the Bears, a post he still holds along with the Bronco job.

FRANK FILCHOCK

Head Coach

The 43-year-old Filchock brings with him an outstanding offensive background. Developed thru years in football. Using a variation of the Winged-T, commonly referred to as the double fullback system, Filchock finished in the Canadian League playoffs eight of his nine years. A former quarterback in both the National Football and Canadian Leagues, Filchock builds his offense around the forward pass. A native of Grindstone Gulch, Pa., Frank was a brilliant passer for the late Bo McMillin at Indiana U., from 1935-1937, before joining the Washington Redskins in 1938. Teaming with Sammy Baugh, currently major domo of the New York Titans, they led the Skins to glorious seasons in the early 1940's. Filchock still holds the NFL record for the longest pass play: a 99-yard touchdown pass in association with Andy Farkas against Pittsburgh in 1939. He quarterbacked the New York Giants to the Eastern Division title in 1946 before going to Canada. He was named Canadian Athlete of the Year in 1949 after leading Montreal to the Grey Cup title. Later he teamed with Dean Griffing, present general manager of the Broncos at Regina to build one of the league's top clubs beginning with 1953.

DALE DODRILL

Line Coach

A former Colorado State University and Pittsburgh Steeler great, Dodrill, 33, is serving his second year as a coach. Dodrill was one of the top middle guards and linebackers in the National Football League for the past nine years. An All-Pro defensive choice from 1953-55, he spent his entire playing career with the Steelers and holds the Pittsburgh record for the longest blocked kick return . . . an 83-yard run against the Los Angeles Rams in 1952. Dodrill makes his home in the Lakewood section of Denver where he is an insurance salesman in the off-season.

KEN CARPENTER

Assistant Coach

When they start talking about great football players produced by the state of Oregon Ken Carpenter's name tops the list. The big man hails from Seaside, Ore., and played his college ball at Oregon State College where he was all-everything. He joined the Cleveland Browns as an offensive halfback, but after a couple of years he pleaded with Coach Paul Brown to let him play both ways as he was tired of getting hit and wanted to do some hitting himself. Brown turned a deaf ear to the entreaties and Ken decided he'd go to Canada where he could go both ways. There he became a standout player with Regina and last year assumed the head coaching reins of the club. The urge to play reasserted itself and Kenneth joined the Broncos about mid-season where he played halfback and end and did a magnificent job. Now he's assisting Frank Filchock, but don't bet, if the going gets rough he won't suit up and be in the lineup.

33-6-2-205—quarterback—Bloomfield, New Jersey
University of Notre Dame . . . adjectives are superfluous in describing this cagey veteran of the football wars . . . holds more records in passing than any other contemporary . . . (See statistical record, 1949-1960 on page 9) . . . starred under Frank Leahy 1946, 1947, 1948, quarterbacking unbeaten Irish of 1948 . . . ability to decipher enemy defenses makes him virtual coach on field . . . married (Randy) . . . six children . . . born Dec. 8, 1927, at Bloomfield, N. J.

JERRY FRANCIS TRAYNHAM

22-5-10-190—offensive halfback—Inglewood, Cal.
Overlooked by pro scouts in college . . . played in alumni game alongside Broncos halfback Al Carmichael who was impressed and recommended him to General Manager, Dean Griffing . . . has been an outstanding performer in pre-season drills and games . . . runs 100 in 10.1 . . . married . . . born January 23, 1939.

JAMES EDWARD STINETTE

23-6-1-230—fullback—Corvallis, Oregon
Oregon State . . . nicknamed "Buffalo" because his size compares with the great American Plains beast . . . a rock-'em, sock-'em type who could set the AFL on its collective ears this season . . . powerful, fast, ability to think . . . All-Coast selection . . . greatest thrill was being named to first team High School All-America . . . attends Oregon State in off-season, working toward degree . . . does logging work for expenses . . . born March 12, 1938, at Corvallis, Oregon.

BOB McNAMARA

27-6-0-190—halfback—Minneapolis, Minn.
University of Minnesota . . . a churning, elusive runner who is an excellent pass receiver and, unusually enough in this day of specialization, outstanding on defense . . . paired with Carmichael on punt and kickoff returns . . . one of Golden Gophers' all-time greats . . . Consensus All-America in 1954 . . . top rusher in Canadian League in 1956 with 1,157 yards . . . operates restaurant and cocktail lounge in Minneapolis in off-season . . . married.
