Golden State Warriors Co-Executive Chairman & CEO

In his role as Co-Executive Chairman & CEO, Joe Lacob is the co-managing member of the Golden State Warriors' ownership group. He serves on the NBA Board of Governors and is a member of the league's Competition Committee.

Since making a record-setting bid to purchase his hometown NBA club – a longtime dream of the Atherton resident – and assuming control of the team on November 12, 2010, Lacob has been the driving force behind many of the creative changes that have transpired with the organization, including several major announcements, prominent personnel additions and an emphasis on transparency. This past season, Lacob's third as owner, the Warriors finished with a 47-35 record and returned to the NBA Playoffs for the first time in six years. As the sixth-seed in the Western Conference, Golden State upset the third-seeded Denver Nuggets in the First Round of the Playoffs before extending the San Antonio Spurs to six games in the Western Conference Semifinals.

On May 22, 2012, Lacob joined co-owner Peter Guber, NBA Commissioner David Stern and San Francisco Mayor Edwin Lee in announcing the team's intention to build a privately financed sports and entertainment complex on Piers 30-32 and Seawall Lot 330 along the waterfront in San Francisco. In addition to making monumental commitments to the team's future, Joe has taken an active role in connecting the current Warriors organization with its rich history. In 2012, Lacob saw to it that one of the most beloved players in franchise history, Chris Mullin, received the honor of having his #17 jersey raised to the rafters at Oracle Arena, becoming the sixth player in franchise history to have his number retired.

During his first full offseason as owner in the summer of 2011, Lacob recruited two of the most experienced, successful and respected individuals in NBA circles to join the organization, landing NBA Hall of Famer and basketball icon Jerry West as an executive board member, and hiring longtime league and team executive Rick Welts as president and chief operating officer. Additionally, Lacob played a significant role in the hiring of Mark Jackson as head coach, as well as the hiring of successful sports agent Bob Myers, who is now the club's general manager. In an effort to connect with the team's supporters and open the lines of communication, Lacob has engaged with fans via a wide variety of outlets, including in-studio visits to local radio and TV stations, season ticket holder conference calls, exclusive game-night events and direct one-on-one meetings. In September of 2011, he spoke directly to nearly 3,000 of the team's Season Ticket Holders at an exclusive event at Oracle Arena and has been a frequent guest speaker at various local and national sports seminars.

Lacob's NBA and professional sports experience dates back over two decades, including a five-year tenure as minority owner of the Boston Celtics, where he served on the basketball committee. He earned an NBA World Championship ring in 2008 with the storied franchise before selling his minority stake to purchase the Warriors.

Lacob has been a partner of Menlo Park, California, based Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers since 1987. Though still a partner in the firm, he has relinquished his managing partner role in order to pursue his lifelong goal of owning and operating an NBA team. In his role as a venture capitalist, he has led investments in over 50 start-up companies across multiple fields in life sciences and medical technologies, the internet and energy.

Lacob received a Bachelor's in Biological Sciences from the University of California-Irvine, a Master's in Public Health (Epidemiology) from UCLA and an M.B.A. from the Stanford Graduate School of Business. He credits his Master's degree in Epidemiology (biostatistics) with providing him a background in statistics that helped drive his passion for sports. It also played a role in his decision to invest in Sportsline – one of the first sports internet sites – and one of Lacob's earliest sports success stories. He was also a primary investor and pioneer of the American Basketball League, a professional women's basketball league that eventually lost out to the WNBA. Lacob also was and continues as one of the original partners in the Pebble Beach Company, an effort formed to bring the historic Pebble Beach resort and golf course back to long term American ownership. Additionally, Lacob has been involved with Stanford basketball for over 25 years and is a fixture in his courtside seats at Maples Pavilion. Lacob currently serves on the Board of Directors of one public company, Align Technology, as well as several other privately-held companies, including Autonomic Technologies, Neuropace, Therox, SunDrop Fuels and TransMedics.

In recent years, Lacob has been involved in industry organizations including the American Heart Association and the AHA Roundtable. He has also been very active at Stanford University, serving on advisory boards at the Medical Center, Business School and Athletic Department. Lacob's philanthropic interests focus on education, both in the community and with universities. He has also provided scholarships to a number of high potential academic and athletic high school and college students in need.

An avid golfer, Joe has been a longtime participant in the AT&T National Pro-Am at Pebble Beach. He has played in a regular pick-up basketball game, and still does, at least twice weekly for over 30 years at Stanford. Most importantly for Warriors fans, Lacob has been a passionate fan of the Bay Area club that he now owns – supporting his local franchise as a loyal and dedicated Season Ticket Holder since 1998.

Golden State Warriors Co-Executive Chairman

Peter Guber, a prominent figure in the entertainment industry for over 30 years, serves as the Co-Executive Chairman of the Golden State Warriors. As co-managing partner, he joined Joe Lacob as the driving forces behind the current ownership group's NBA record-setting bid to purchase the Warriors in 2010.

Guber brings lifelong experience in sports and location based entertainment, recognizing the importance of enhancing every aspect of fan experience. In May of 2012, Guber joined Lacob, NBA Commissioner David Stern and San Francisco Mayor Edwin Lee, in announcing the Warriors' intention to build a privately financed sports and entertainment complex on Piers 30-32 and Seawall Lot 330 on the waterfront in San Francisco.

Additionally, Guber together with Guggenheim Group and Magic Johnson, acquired the Los Angeles Dodgers. Guber is an owner and Chairman of Dick Clark Productions, a leading independent producer of television programming including such perennial hits as the American Music Awards, Golden Globe Awards, Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve, and So You Think You Can Dance.

Golden State Warriors President & Chief Operating Officer

One of the most respected business executives in the NBA, with over 39 years of experience in the league, Rick Welts is currently in his fourth season as President and Chief Operating Officer of the Golden State Warriors. In this role, he oversees all business-related operations for the Warriors, including the team's proposed development of a privately financed sports and entertainment center in San Francisco's Mission Bay neighborhood, reporting to the organization's Co-Managing Partners, Joe Lacob and Peter Guber.

Under Welts' direction, the organization has established several franchise benchmarks from a business standpoint in recent years as the Warriors brand continues to grow in stature, not only in the Bay Area, but also within the NBA community and beyond. The organization has won numerous awards across all facets of the business in recent years, including last May when the Warriors were named "Sports Team of the Year" by the Sports Business Journal/Daily, with Welts accepting the award on behalf of the organization at the Seventh Annual Sports Business Awards in New York City.

Welts, 61, owns an impressive and all-encompassing résumé that includes a myriad of different capacities spanning virtually every level of an NBA operation. Prior to joining the Warriors in October 2011, he spent nine years with the Phoenix Suns, serving the organization as president and chief executive officer for the last two seasons. Welts' responsibilities in Phoenix included the supervision of all business operations for the Suns, while also overseeing the team's interest in the management of the US Airways Center and the WNBA's Phoenix Mercury. The Mercury won the WNBA Championship in 2007 and 2009.

Prior to joining the Suns, Welts enjoyed a successful 17-year (1982-1999) stint at the NBA league office in New York, where he ascended through the ranks to eventually become the league's third-in-command as the executive vice president, chief marketing officer and president of NBA Properties. In addition to his overall contributions to the revitalization of the league's image and popularity, his notable accomplishments at the NBA include the creation of NBA All-Star Weekend in 1984 – a model that subsequently became a fixture in both MLB and the NHL – along with the creation of the marketing program for USA Basketball for the 1992 Olympic "Dream Team." Along with Val Ackerman, Welts was named "Marketer of the Year" by Brandweek in 1998 for his role in launching the WNBA. During his time at the NBA office, he supervised a wide-range of departments, including corporate sponsorship and media sales, consumer products, international business activities, media relations, community relations, team services, special events and creative services. Welts also played a prominent role in the organization of preseason games in foreign countries and the eventual opening of international NBA offices in Australia, Asia, Europe, Mexico and Canada.

A native of Seattle, Washington, Welts began his NBA career in 1969, at the age of 16, as a ball boy with the Seattle SuperSonics. He spent 10 years with his hometown team serving a number of roles, including as the team's director of public relations during back-to-back appearances in the NBA Finals (1978 and 1979) and the SuperSonics lone NBA Championship in 1979. In 2006, he was the recipient of the annual Splaver/McHugh "Tribute to Excellence Award," which is given annually by the NBA Public Relations Directors' Association to a current or former member of the NBA PR family who has demonstrated an outstanding level of performance and service during their NBA career.

After leaving the SuperSonics, the University of Washington product spent the following three years (1980-1982) at Bob Walsh & Associates, a sports marketing firm in the Seattle area. His non-NBA résumé also includes serving as president of Fox Sports Enterprises (1999-2000).

In May of 2011, in a front page story in the New York Times, Welts became the highest ranking executive in men's professional team sports to publicly acknowledge he is gay. He was presented with a United States Tennis Association 2011 ICON Award at the US Open in New York City, an award that recognizes and celebrates those who have had a positive impact on diversity and inclusion in the sports industry and society. In October 2011, he was honored with GLSEN's (Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network) Respect Award, which honors those who have made a difference in the areas of diversity and inclusion. In September, he was honored by GLAAD, the nation's LGBT media advocacy organization, with the Davidson/Valentini Award, which is presented to an LGBT media professional who has made a significant difference in promoting equality for the LGBT community.

THE LOGO

The Santa Cruz Warriors trident logo is instantly recognizable around town as the signature image of the home team. It is the brainchild of Santa Cruz Warriors General Manager Kirk Lacob, who wanted a visual depiction that evoked the strong connection Santa Cruz residents feel with the water and the environment. The trident is an ode to Poseidon, the god of the sea in Greek mythology, and it is a symbol of power – a proper representation for warriors who take to the basketball court steps away from the Monterey Bay. In Warriors Royal Blue and California Golden Yellow, the trident serves as a visual link to the D-League affiliate's NBA parent team, the Golden State Warriors, both in color scheme and its "W" shape.

Santa Cruz Warriors History

On December 23, 2012, the Warriors tipped off the Santa Cruz basketball era with a 93-88 victory against the Bakersfield Jam in front of a sellout crowd at the Kaiser Permanente Arena. It was the culmination of months of work and collaboration with the City of Santa Cruz, which began with the team's move from Bismarck, North Dakota, at the end of the 2011-12 season. Two seasons and two consecutive NBA D-League Finals appearances later, the Warriors are poised for their third campaign in Surf City in front of the most passionate fans in the league.

The move to Santa Cruz made sense in so many ways. At the time of the acquisition of the Dakota Wizards in June 2011, Golden State Warriors co-owner Joe Lacob called it a "critical step and another plus for our organization." Operationally, the NBA D-League team is now closer to the Golden State Warriors, adding another layer of integration between the two clubs and further encouraging the development of talent. The recipient of the 2013-14 NBA D-League Development Champion award, the Warriors franchise is highly motivated to leverage its D-League team to maximize the potential of its players, coaches and staff.

The City of Santa Cruz has a tremendous fan base and vibrant basketball culture, and it offers the Warriors the opportunity to partner with local schools and non-profits. As has already been demonstrated in its first two years in operation, Kaiser Permanente Arena presents the city with its largest venue and the ability to attract conventions and events that would otherwise bypass the area.

Santa Cruz Warriors History

The Warriors have long known everything Santa Cruz has to offer. Back in the 1960s, Warriors owner Franklin Mieuli lived in the Santa Cruz area, and the Santa Cruz Sentinel has records of the San Francisco Warriors practicing at Cabrillo College. When not pounding the hardwood, Warrior great Wilt Chamberlain played volleyball at Main Beach and even took some time out to ride the Giant Dipper!

The Santa Cruz Warriors play their home games at Kaiser Permanente Arena, located at 140 Front Street in Downtown Santa Cruz. It is the largest Green Certified venue in the Monterey Bay area, boasting a comprehensive recycling program, environmentally friendly cleaning practices and efficient water fixtures. The Green Business program calculates that Kaiser Permanente Arena saves more than 15,000 pounds of carbon dioxide and more than 82,000 gallons of water per year.

Kaiser Permanente Arena, which measures 29,928 square feet plus modular buildings housing locker rooms and public restrooms, is the largest indoor sports venue in the City of Santa Cruz. In addition to serving as the home of the Santa Cruz Warriors, Kaiser Permanente Arena hosted more than 60 outside events during the 2013-14 season, including the Santa Cruz Derby Girls, University of California Santa Cruz men's and women's basketball, American Red Cross blood drive, high school basketball, Zumba for Autism Awareness and more.

Entering its third year in the City of Santa Cruz, it is the Warriors' hope that Kaiser Permanente Arena becomes a positive force in the community and serves as the top youth sports center in the region.

GET FIT

Get Fit™ presented by Kaiser Permanente, is a year-round community platform focusing on fitness, wellness, and nutrition education to build a healthier community. The Warriors will host several events at Central Coast schools, community gathering places, and at Kaiser Permanente Arena during the inaugural year of the team's Get Fit community program. The Warriors are partnering with Kaiser Permanente to impact over 10,000 Central Coast youth during this year, hosting events in Santa Cruz and Monterey Counties. Warriors players, along with members of the Warriors coaching staff, will join members of the team's front office, partners and media personalities to participate in events.

READ TO ACHIEVE

For the third season, the Santa Cruz Warriors are partnering with the Santa Cruz City School District to help develop a life-long love of reading and literacy in every elementary and middle school child in the district. In partnership with Bookshop Santa Cruz and the Santa Cruz Sentinel, the seven-week Read to Achieve program encouraged local school children to read nearly a billion words in its first two seasons.

Read to Achieve is the most extensive educational outreach initiative in the history of professional sports. By providing resources, the NBA continues to aid schools, libraries and community-based organizations so that children have the necessary tools to succeed in life.

COMMUNITY JERSEYS

The Santa Cruz Warriors highlight select nonprofits by literally weaving them into the fabric of the game through the “community jersey” initiative. For a select home game, the Santa Cruz Warriors jersey features the logo of a nonprofit and a corporate partner, amplifying awareness in front of 2,500 passionate basketball fans. By auctioning off the game-worn jerseys, the Warriors helped raise more than $15,000 for the Salvation Army, Grind Out Hunger, Hope Services and the American Red Cross during the 2013-14 season.

Below are examples of community jerseys benefiting nonprofits from the previous season:

APTOS HIGH SCHOOL WARRIORS NORCAL INVITATIONAL

The Santa Cruz Warriors have teamed up with Aptos High School to host the Aptos High School Warriors NorCal Invitational at Kaiser Permanente Arena. In its first year, the tournament featured eight high school teams – Aptos, Gilroy, Gunn, Milpitas, Palma, Soquel, St. Mary’s (Stockton) and Watsonville, with St. Mary’s capturing the inaugural championship trophy.

A three-day event, the tournament is the signature piece of the team’s attempt to bring

NBA D-LEAGUE GREEN WEEK

The Santa Cruz Warriors are committed to practices that protect the environment and preserve the Monterey Bay’s natural resources. Last season, the Warriors teamed up with environmental nonprofit Save Our Shores to host a public cleanup event where, together with 250 fans, they cleaned 135 pounds of trash from Seabright Beach.

During the 2014-15 season, the NBA D-League and its teams will host events and activities to generate awareness and raise funds to help support environmental protection. The Santa Cruz Warriors have partnered with Allterra Solar, which will be the presenting sponsor of 2015 NBA D-League Green Week.

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the NBA Development League?

The NBA Development League (D-League) is the official minor league of the NBA. Founded in 2001, the league now features 18 teams with direct affiliations to NBA franchises. It offers professional basketball at an affordable price in a fun, family-friendly atmosphere. The 2013-14 season was a record-breaking year for the league, with one-third of players on NBA end-of-season rosters (149) boasting NBA D-League experience. In addition, the league set a record with 36 players earning 49 GATORADE Call-Ups during a full NBA regular season. Attendance grew during the league's 13th season as it surpassed the million total attendance mark for a fifth straight year.

In addition to fostering talent, the NBA D-League continues to develop coaches, referees and front office staff for the NBA and its teams. In fostering the league's connection to the community, its teams, players and staff promote health and wellness, support local needs and interests, and assist in educational development through NBA D-League Cares programs.

The NBA D-League also advances the game of basketball as the research and development arm of the NBA. Throughout the season, fans can watch all NBA D-League games on YouTube at www.youtube.com/nbadleague or the NBA D-League website at www.nba.com/dleague.

For more information on the league, including the latest GATORADE Call-Ups to the NBA and the top prospects to watch, head to www.nba.com/dleague.

How do NBA D-League contracts work?

NBA D-League players sign standard contracts with the league, not individual teams. The standard contract is one year in duration, but players are relieved of their contract obligations if they sign a contract with an NBA team at any point during the season.

How do the Golden State Warriors assign players to the NBA D-League?

NBA teams can assign players within their first three years of service to their D-League affiliate. In addition, players who have more experience in the NBA can be assigned to the NBA D-League with their consent.

Players can stay with the NBA D-League team for as long as the NBA team wishes, and be recalled back to the NBA at any time. There is no cap on how many times a player can be assigned to their NBA D-League affiliate.

Frequently Asked Questions

Who can call up a Santa Cruz Warrior to the NBA?

Since players sign a contract with the league, any NBA team can call up any NBA D-League player. For example, last season the Cleveland Cavaliers and Memphis Grizzlies called up Seth Curry, a guard for the Santa Cruz Warriors.

For a complete list of this season's GATORADE Call-Ups, head to http://www.nba.com/dleague/201415_gatorade_callups.html

What happens once a player gets called up?

An NBA team will sign a player to a contract depending on his years of service in the NBA. Typically, NBA teams will sign an NBA D-League player to a 10-day contract and assess their contribution to the team during that time.

A player can be signed to two 10-day contracts with an individual NBA team before that team must either sign him for the rest of the season or release him.

With call-ups and assignment players, how does a team set its roster?

An NBA D-League team's roster can be fluid. There are many ways a team can acquire players: returning players, the affiliate rule, the NBA D-League Draft, assignments, trades and the available player pool.

An NBA D-League team's roster must be 10 players, with up to 2 additional spots for players placed on the inactive/injury list. If its NBA parent assigns players, the team's active roster may be expanded to 13.

Once the season starts, teams are limited to 14 roster moves each year. There are exemptions to that limit if a team loses a player to a buyout, call-up, or season-ending injury.

How does a player return to the NBA D-League?

An NBA D-League team has returning player rights on any players on its roster for two consecutive seasons.

What is the affiliate rule?

An "affiliate player" is claimed by an NBA D-League team via the affiliate rule. When a player goes to NBA training camp and is waived, the NBA team's D-League affiliate can select up to three players whose rights are not owned by another NBA D-League team.

What does it mean when a player is "waived"?

When a player is waived in the NBA D-League, the team has given up their rights to him. After 48 hours, he clears waivers and any team can claim him from the available player pool.

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the NBA D-League Showcase?

The NBA D-League Showcase is the premier event for D-League players to show off their skills in front of NBA scouts and personnel. It is a four-day event, where all 18 D-League teams play two games against predetermined opponents. This year, it takes place from January 5-9 in Reno, Nevada – the third straight year that Reno is playing host to this event.

During its history, more than 30 NBA D-League players have earned GATORADE Call-Ups to the NBA during or immediately after the NBA D-League Showcase, while an even larger number benefited from the exposure of the showcase.

Is there an NBA D-League All-Star Game?

Yes. The NBA D-League All-Star Game is scheduled for Saturday, February 15, 2014 in New Orleans in conjunction with NBA All-Star activities.

How do playoffs in the NBA D-League work?

The top eight teams in the NBA D-League qualify for the playoffs. Seeding is based on record. However, the three division winners select their opponent, with the team with the best record picking first from the pool of seeds five through eight.

The playoffs are made up of three best-of-three series. The top seed plays away for the first game, and the remaining two games (if needed) are played at home. There is no re-seeding in the NBA D-League.
