On Dec. 7, 2009, the Storm announced it had signed an agreement to use the facility for five years. As part of the agreement, a new professional-length court was put in place in the lower level of the pavilion. The Storm is the primary user of the new court during the WNBA season. In the offseason, the court is used by SPU. The Storm and SPU also collaborate in putting on basketball clinics for kids and coaches.

Prior to the 2010 season, the Storm has used the Furtado Center as its practice facility for 10 years. The Center was purchased by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and is now used for the foundation's headquarters.

Storm President and CEO Karen Bryant

Results-oriented leader, business pioneer, and gifted connector of people and potential

For more than 14 years, Karen Bryant has been involved with professional women's sports. Currently the president and CEO of the Seattle Storm, the two-time WNBA champions, Bryant's leadership has helped guide the Storm to be recognized as one of the league's premier independently owned franchises. She has taken the Storm from an expansion team to an independent entity – an entrepreneurial feat.

The epitome of determination, on and off the court

As a businesswoman in the sports world, Bryant's past as a notable basketball player laid the foundation for her success. From Edmonds, Wash., Bryant graduated from Woodway High School in 1986. She left high school with a state championship as a part of the girls' basketball team.

Bryant attended Green River Community College, in Auburn, Wash.; Seattle University; and then earned a B.A. in Communications from the University of Washington in 1991.

Creating a successful business environment around women's sports

Bryant started her career in sports in 1996, as the director of operations for the American Basketball League's Seattle Reign, where she later served as general manager. In 1999, she was recruited by the Seattle SuperSonics to lead the organization's effort to secure a WNBA expansion franchise. In 2008, the Seattle Storm became an independent organization, upon the relocation of the SuperSonics. The same year, Bryant was named the Storm's chief executive officer. Bryant is responsible for overseeing business and basketball operations for the organization, including long-term growth strategies and developing partnerships and initiatives focused on support for women and girls. With her leadership, Storm revenue has increased 162%. Under her leadership and guidance, the Storm won the WNBA championship in 2004 and 2010.

A believer in business and community partnerships

Bryant has been widely acknowledged as a professional sports visionary and community leader, and her abundance of awards and affiliations speak for themselves. In 2005, the Puget Sound Business Journal recognized her as one of their Women of Influence; in March of 2010, she was awarded the prestigious Health and Dignity Award by the Americans for UNFPA for her continued efforts towards elevating the status of women and advocacy for equality. Most recently, Bryant and the owners of the Seattle Storm were named Girl Scouts of America's Women of Distinction. She was also honored as Seattle's 2010 Sports Executive of the Year by the Seattle Sports Commission. Previously affiliated with King County Sexual Assault Resource Center (KCSARC) and the Girl Scouts – Totem Council, Bryant is committed to giving back to the community and lending her skills as an entrepreneur and passionate individual. Bryant is currently serving on the boards of the Seattle Sports Commission, the Boys and Girls Clubs of King County, and the Special Olympics of Washington.

The Seattle Storm has a dominant presence in the community because of the services and programs it sponsors. The Go-Green Initiative, Take Your Health by Storm, and Read to Achieve programs exemplify the Storm's emphasis on community involvement and awareness. Programs like the Seattle Storm's "Woman of Inspiration", a yearly event, recognize women in the community who strive to go above and beyond.

A leader, in action and in work ethic

Bryant has been instrumental in bringing professional women's basketball to a diverse and rapidly-growing fan base, making the Storm a unique community asset that combines competition, sportsmanship, and world-class entertainment value.

2012 IN REVIEW

May (0-3)

The absence of Lauren Jackson for the first half of the season due to the Olympics left the Storm in unfamiliar territory without its star. However, with the additions of Ann Wauters and Tina Thompson, the Storm started the 2012 season with four No. 1 WNBA Draft picks, the most on any roster in the league.

The Storm opened up the 2012 season slowly, losing a double-digit lead to the Los Angeles Sparks in front of a sellout crowd on Opening Night (72-66). Just four nights later, the Storm visited L.A. and lost 74-61 despite new addition Ann Wauters' 15 points and eight rebounds. The final game of the month took the Storm to Minnesota to face the defending champion Lynx. The Storm set franchise records for both three point attempts and three pointers made in the 84-71 loss.

June (6-8)

With four home games and seven on the road, the Storm started June off with its first win (76-58) against Tulsa at KeyArena June 1. The win was head coach Brian Agler's 212th victory, setting the record for most wins by a professional women's basketball coach. Sue Bird also scored a season-high 27 points and Camille Little chipped in 19 with nine boards.

The Storm's momentum was snapped with a nail-biting loss at the buzzer in L.A. as top draft pick Nneka Ogwumike scored with 2.5 seconds left in the game to lift the Sparks over Seattle, 67-65. Three nights later, the Storm dropped to 1-4 with a 79-55 loss at Minnesota, registering season lows in points and field goal percentage. The Lynx improved to 8-0. Following the loss in Minnesota, the Storm fell to 1-6 with a pair of road losses - 80-67 to San Antonio and 74-58 at Chicago.

After six straight road losses and four straight overall, the Storm bounced back with an 86-73 win over the winless Shock in Tulsa. Sue Bird gave a commanding performance with 21 points, hitting her first nine shots and setting the tone for Seattle, which shot 55 percent from the field. Katie Smith also added 17 points to snap the Storm's losing streak.

After a long and demanding road trip, the Storm returned to Seattle for a matchup against Minnesota in front of a packed Father's Day crowd at KeyArena. The previously 10-0 Lynx were handed a huge upset as the 2-7 Storm took control of the game with a commanding 65-62 victory. Sue Bird once again stepped up for the Storm with 21 points, while Tina Thompson hung tough in the final seconds by grabbing a key offensive board off a missed Bird free throw and hitting two clutch free throws of her own.

The Storm continued its winning streak with a victory at home against San Antonio, 82-76. Tanisha Wright had a season-high 20 points, including eight fourth-quarter free throws. Two nights later, the Storm won its fourth straight game in commanding fashion over the Washington Mystics, 72-55, at KeyArena. Ann Wauters stepped up with 14 points and 7 rebounds as Sue Bird chipped in 14 points as well. Two nights later, the Storm traveled to Washington, D.C. and improved to 6-7 by sweeping the Mystics, 79-71, in the team's fifth straight victory. Sue Bird stepped up with 25 points.

After an impressive five-game win streak and the addition of 2010 Storm championship contributor Svetlana Abrosimova, the Storm fell to the New York Liberty, 77-59, in New York on June 30 in a game that featured the Storm's lowest numbers in scoring all season. Ann Wauters and Tina Thompson both scored 10 points for the team, which shot only 32% from the field.

July (9-10)

Turning it around one night after a loss in New York, the Storm beat the Connecticut Sun in overtime 89-83 with Camille Little scoring a game-high 27 points and grabbing nine rebounds. Little crossed the 1,500-point mark in the game. Tina Thompson also added in 20 points with seven rebounds and four blocks, while Ewelina Kobryn came off the bench to score a career-high 13 points.

After a six-day break, the Storm was on the road again to Los Angeles, where an 83-59 loss to the Sparks dropped the team to 7-9. The Storm finished the game with only seven healthy players after Tina Thompson left the game in the fourth quarter with a left knee sprain. A day later, the Storm was back in Seattle for Sue Bird Bobblehead Night and Svetlana Abrosimova's first night back in KeyArena, which highlighted an 83-68 win over Phoenix. Bird shined as she went on to score 26 points in the first half, reaching her season high of 31 points at the final buzzer.

After the win, the Storm had trouble staying energized with only seven healthy players in a 70-59 loss to the Atlanta Dream. Rookie Shekinna Stricklen scored a career-high 16 points as Tanisha Wright chipped in 12. After a tough home loss, Seattle bounced back with a commanding road victory against Phoenix, 83-64. Katie Smith scored 14 of her game-high 19 points in the first quarter while both Shekinna Stricklen and Camille Little added 15 apiece heading into the Olympic Break.

August (11-14)

After a long Olympic break, from July 17 to Aug. 15, the Storm was back in action with six home games in 15 days. Starting off the homestand with a 72-58 win over Phoenix, the Storm reached .500 thanks to an impressive 17-point performance by Camille Little.

Two nights later, without an ill Sue Bird, the Storm fell to Los Angeles, 71-82, giving the Sparks the season sweep despite Tanisha Wright's season-high 21 points. A few nights later, even a 20-point performance by Camille Little couldn't help the Storm's efforts in an 86-73 loss to league-leading Minnesota. On Aug. 23, the Storm welcomed Lauren Jackson back to the lineup against Indiana. The Storm led by double figures in the fourth quarter, but ultimately lost 68-66 on a made three-pointer by the Fever's Shavonte Zellous as time expired.

CONTINUED 2012 IN REVIEW

After a three-game losing streak, the Storm was back in action with a full roster against the New York Liberty, winning 84-66 with Sue Bird scoring 18 points and handing out 10 assists and Lauren Jackson adding 16 points. The celebration was short-lived as the Storm battled against the Phoenix Mercury and lost 75-68 with no Storm player scoring more than Camille Little's 11. August's six-game homestand ended with the Storm 2-4 and 11-14 on the season.

September (16-18)

After a week-long break, the Storm was back in full force in a 101-74 win over the Tulsa Shock at home on Sept. 6. With everyone playing, the Storm set records in assists (29) and field-goal percentage (59.7%) while also tying the franchise record for three-pointers with 14. Lauren Jackson finally found her rhythm with the team as she poured in a season-high 23 points with Shekinna Stricklen adding 15. Two nights later in Tulsa, the Storm again showed its dominance in an 89-66 rout of the Shock. Camille Little scored a career-high 28 points and tied her season high for rebounds with eight. Along with Little, Sue Bird, Lauren Jackson and Katie Smith, all scored double figures in a win that helped the Storm clinch a spot in the 2012 WNBA Playoffs, setting a league record for consecutive postseason appearances at nine.

With a playoff spot assured, the Storm lost to the Dream 77-61 in Atlanta with Atlanta's Angel McCoughtry scoring 23 and Erika DeSouza adding 20. One night later, the Storm traveled to Indiana to play the 20-9 Fever without the help of either starting guard, resulting in a 72-48 loss. Sue Bird sat out with a sprained left hip flexor while Tanisha Wright was sidelined by a groin strain. Svetlana Abrosimova scored 11 points with eight rebounds as the Storm committed 17 turnovers and was held to a season-low point total. Two nights later, San Antonio's Becky Hammon lit up the Storm with 25 points, resulting in a 90-66 Storm loss while Bird and Lauren Jackson (strained hamstring) sat out due to injuries. Tina Thompson and Ann Wauters scored 12 apiece with Svetlana Abrosimova adding in 11.

After the four-game road trip, the Storm came back to KeyArena to take on the East's top team, the Connecticut Sun, without Bird and Jackson. Shekinna Stricklen led the Storm in scoring with 12 but missed two shots in the final seconds of the game, resulting in a 60-58 Storm loss, the team's fourth in a row. With Bird back in action, the Storm snapped the losing streak at home against the Chicago Sky and former Storm player Swin Cash. Tina Thompson scored 10 points to become the first WNBA player to reach 7,000 career points and helped her team beat the Sky, 75-60. Ann Wauters scored 16 points, Katie Smith 13 and Ewelina Kobryn added 12 in the win. The next home game against San Antonio featured Lauren Jackson scoring 11 to hit her 6,000th career point, becoming only the fourth WNBA player to do so in the 84-75 Storm win. Katie Smith scored 16 points to lead Seattle with Ann Wauters adding 14 points and 13 rebounds. Camille Little and Sue Bird each chipped in 12 points. The Storm finished off the regular season with a 71-57 road win at Phoenix behind Sue Bird's 13 points, five rebounds and four assists. Camille Little added 14 points and eight rebounds while rookie Shekinna Stricklen had 10 points.

SEASON NOTES

LJ's Back!

Three-time WNBA MVP Lauren Jackson returns to the Storm roster after spending the first half of the 2012 season preparing for the Olympics in her native country of Australia. The Australian team took home the bronze medal in the London Games by defeating Russia, 83-74. Seattle is 40-46 all-time without their star forward/center in the lineup. Jackson served as her country's flag bearer and won her fourth Olympic medal, the second most by any basketball player male or female. In her 2012 WNBA debut against the Indiana Fever, Lauren Jackson had four points and six rebounds in 26 minutes.

Olympic Success:

The 2012 Olympic Games were a successful one for Seattle Storm Olympians. Sue Bird brought home her third gold medal for the USA while Lauren Jackson and Australia captured the bronze. These two medals bring the Storm roster's Olympic medal count to 13. Bird and Jackson's results were a product of stellar statistical performances. Bird led the tournament in assist-to-turnover ratio (3.3:1) and was second in assists (36) and assists per game (4.5). Jackson continued her dominance in the post, finishing third overall in points (15.9) and rebounds (7.9) at the London Games.

- Lauren Jackson became the fourth woman in WNBA history to score 6,000 points against San Antonio on Sept. 21. At 31 years, 133 days, she is the youngest player to the mark, and also the fastest at 316 games.

From Downtown!

The long-range efforts of Seattle's sharp shooters have kept the Storm in many games this year. Contributing to this onslaught from three was a record-setting performance against the Minnesota Lynx (5/27/12) in which the Storm tied a franchise record for three-pointers made (14) and set a record for three-pointers attempted (34). The Storm tied the record for three-pointers once again with 14 against the Tulsa Shock (9/6/12), making 70 percent of its three's on the night.

Viva la Espana:

Though it may be the first time in the WNBA that the twin tower duo of Ann Wauters and Lauren Jackson are teaming up (upon Jackson's return following the Olympic break), the world has seen their dominance before. Last season in Spain, the two were part of Ros Casares Valencia. The team compiled a 49-3 record, winning the Liga Femenina and EuroLeague Women's Championships.

Oh The Places You'll Go:

When they aren't representing the Storm and the WNBA, Seattle players have established outposts playing basketball across the entire globe. Sue Bird plays her ball in Russia, most recently with UMMC Ekaterinburg; Ann Wauters recently signed a contract to play with Galatasaray Medical Park in Turkey; Lauren Jackson is returning to Australia to play in the WNBL in the off season; Camille Little plays in Shanghai, China; Ewelina Kobryn played in her home country of Poland and has signed to play in Russia with UMMC Ekaterinburg following the 2012 season; Alysha Clark and Tanisha Wright have spent time in Israel; Svetlana Abrosimova has spent the last two seasons in Russia with UMMC Ekaterinburg.

International Dominance:

Not only are Seattle players playing over seas, but they are dominating in true Storm fashion. Currently, the roster is represented by 13 EuroLeague Women's Championship rings (Abrosimova 1, Bird 4, Jackson 3, Thompson 1, Wauters 4), 9 EuroLeague Women's All Star Game appearances (Bird 2, Jackson 2, Kobryn 1, Wauters 4), 4 EuroLeague Final Four MVP awards (Jackson 1, Wauters 3), and 5 European Player of the Year Awards (Wauters).

Familiar Faces:

The 2012 WNBA season has served as a reunion for many of the Storm players and coaches. Katie Smith won two ABL Championships with Brian Agler at the helm and played for Agler with the Minnesota Lynx from 1999-2002. She also led Ohio State to a Big Ten Championship and appearance in the NCAA Championship game her freshman season (1993) under Buckeye Head Coach and current Storm Assistant Coach Nancy Darsch. Sue Bird, Tina Thompson and Katie Smith united to win gold at the 2004 Olympics for the U.S. Women's National Basketball Team in Athens and again at the 2008 Olympics in Beijing. Svetlana Abrosimova and Sue Bird were teammates at the University of Connecticut for three years, taking home the 2000 NCAA Women's Championship together.

Defense (clap, clap) Defense-

The Storm has made a conscious effort on the defensive end this year, ranking among the league's elite in the top defensive categories. The Storm holds opponents to the fewest points per game (71.6) and the lowest field-goal percentage (.391) in the WNBA. These efforts were bolstered by a stellar performance against the defending WNBA champion Minnesota Lynx on June 17, holding the Lynx to season lows in points (62) and field goal percentage (.375). They have held four opponents to season lows in field goal percentage this year (Tulsa, Minnesota, San Antonio, and Washington). The Storm held Phoenix to 28.6 percent shooting and finished the year allowing 39.1 percent shooting for the year. That led the league and was the best in franchise history. It was the lowest shooting percentage allowed since 38.4 percent by Los Angeles in 2008.

Playoff Record:

With the Phoenix Mercury's loss to the Indiana Fever Sept. 8, the Seattle Storm clinched a 2012 playoff berth and a WNBA-record ninth consecutive appearance in postseason play (2004-12). The Storm had shared the mark of eight playoff appearances in a row with Los Angeles (1999-06). The Indiana Fever has already clinched its eighth consecutive appearance (2005-12).

On the Huskies staff, Barnes was recently promoted to recruiting coordinator. She will handle all aspects of recruiting, including budget, compliance and planning. This work will be in addition to her roles in player development. During her first season in the collegiate coaching ranks, the "Dawgs" reversed a five year losing record and posted their first twenty win campaign in a decade.

Barnes has been a fixture in the Seattle area since 2002 through her Adia Barnes Foundation, which mentors under-served youth and conducts charitable events and community service projects such as school supply drives. In cooperation with the Huskies marketing department, the foundation also promotes ticket sales through efforts such as Barnes' Dawgs.

She formerly served as Director of Player and Coach Development at Seattle Academy and is widely known throughout the Puget Sound region as a broadcaster for NBA TV and Fox Sports Northwest. She recently completed her sixth season as the lead color commentator for the Seattle Storm radio broadcasts on AM 1090, KPTK radio. Adia is a native of San Diego, CA and resides in Seattle with her husband, Salvo Coppa.
