MAKING OF THE NEW ORLEANS HORNETS

MAKING OF THE NEW ORLEANS HORNETS

OCTOBER 29, 1999 - The New Orleans Arena opens.
The building, constructed for only $112 million, is designed with the NBA in mind. A portion of its undeveloped space is allocated for NBA team use such as additional locker rooms, administrative and ticket office areas and additional executive suites.

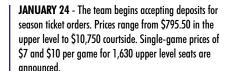

OCTOBER 11, 2000 - The Charlotte Hornets defeat the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers 103-90 before a sellout crowd in the first-ever NBA preseason game in the New Orleans Arena.

JUNE 5, 2001 - Voters in Charlotte defeat a referendum that includes the building of a new $190 million downtown arena.

JANUARY 7, 2002 - Hornets co-owner Ray Wooldridge visits New Orleans for a meeting with state, city and arena officials. The Hornets are also courted by Louisville, Ky., Norfolk, Va., St. Louis, Mo. and Anaheim, Calif., with all cities vying to become the Hornets' new home.

JANUARY 10 - After majority owner George Shinn joins Wooldridge in New Orleans, the two indicate the city is the frontrunner.

JANUARY 17 - Shinn and Wooldridge sign a memorandum of understanding with the state and officially file an application with the NBA to move the franchise to New Orleans. They announce their intentions at a press conference at the Arena. Also announced are self-imposed ticket goals of 8,000 general seating season tickets, 2,450 club seats and 54 luxury seats by March 15.

The words "New Orleans" appear above Hugo and "Hornets" appears below him -- both in teal. The basketball that appears in the logo and the "H" on Hugo's chest are both gold, a new color added to the Hornets' original color scheme of teal and purple.

THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS

The Mississippi River first defined her, carving out the crescent shape. The explorers and early settlers laid her foundation, and the artists, chefs, musicians, writers, politicians and others who followed built her into the Queen of the Mississippi.

New Orleans is the City of Mystery, an indefinable gem. She is more than jazz and Mardi Gras; her charm travels far beyond the boundaries of the French Quarter, and her history is not limited to cemeteries and books. She is a city cradled between the Mississippi River and Lake Ponchartrain, a source of adventure and promise for some and a protective mother to others. New Orleans is ever changing, and she welcomes you, each time just the same, as though you were one of her own.

With a carefree ambiance and take-things-as-they-come attitude, New Orleans is a city you can ease into. She stands as one of the most alluring of all cities, so much so, that each year visitors flock here in hopes of having just one taste of her brand of Southern hospitality.

In and of herself, New Orleans is a legend. The air is filled with the notes of brass bands leading a long history of jazz, rhythm and blues, rock and roll, gospel and ragtime through the streets. She has also played a role in the stories of William Faulkner. Anne Rice and John Kennedy Toole.

Within each story she is the heroine who proudly wears the badge of the Garden District's lush flowerbeds and emerald-colored lawns or the intricate iron balconies found throughout the French Quarter and juxtaposed against the Central Business District's skyline. She proudly fosters the forward-thinking attitude of the Arts and Warehouse District as well as its sister neighborhood, Bywater. Through some of these neighborhoods, you'll find her vagabond child, the streetcar, weaving its path along the Mississippi or beneath a canopy of old oak trees.

The people who comprise the city of New Orleans are as diverse and unique as the ingredients in gumbo, and each group has brought its own influences to the city, making it a mixture of Spanish architecture with French-influenced language and ecletic, worldly cuisine. Because of these varied influences, New Orleans is neither strictly an American city nor the result of one European inspiration.

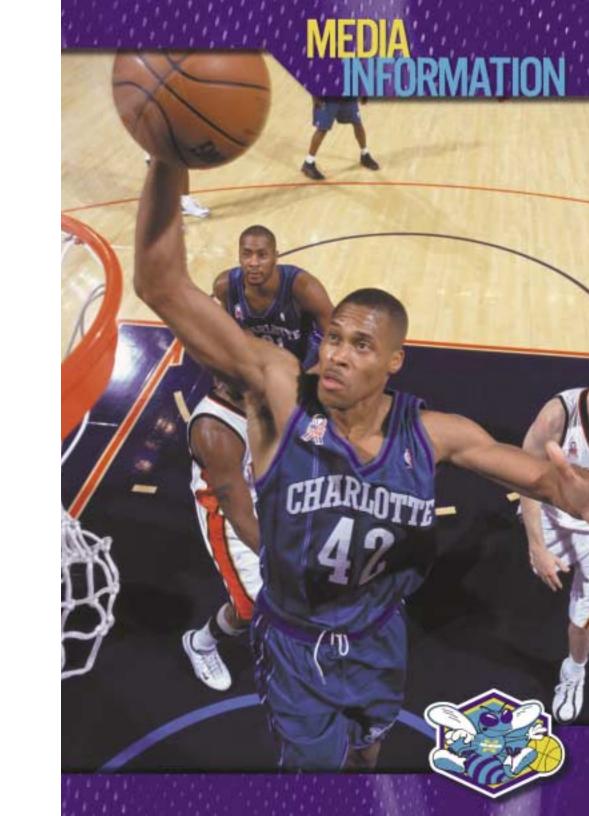

"Laissez les bon temps rouler," or "let the good times roll," is the New Orleans battle cry that echoes through the streets and travels upriver. From parades to festivals, New Orleans is not shy in the face of celebration. The most famous of the lot is Mardi Gras (Latin for Fat Tuesday), which takes place on the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday. This season of indulgence brims with private parties, masquerade balls and parades, where the streets fill with onlookers hoping to catch purple, green and gold doubloons (coins), beaded necklaces and the much-desired painted coconuts tossed by the Krewe of Zulu from colorful, decorated floats.

New Orleans' world-famous fare is enough to warrant a daily celebration. Here, meals are something to be savored, not rushed. It's not cooking; it's creating a masterpiece. Whatever your tastes, New Orleans will satisfy them and in most cases dazzle your taste buds. Whether the cooking is Cajun (spiced with hot pepper and signaled with a robust taste) or Creole (spicier than Cajun fare and known as "city cooking"), you will be sure to experience a bit of the Southern hospitality that seeps into every facet of the city. In most places, people eat to live. In New Orleans, people live to eat.

New Orleans has so many divine personalities that it is a challenge to know how to begin exploring her. Rich in culture and history. aifted in music and cuisine. immersed in art and architecture, lavished in celebration and beauty. New Orleans has so much to offer both visitors and residents. For those who live in this City of Mystery, she is the centerpiece of their stories. And to those who visit, she is a newfound treasure.

Any team may from time to time as appropriate, but for no more than two consecutive weeks at a time during the regular season, have 11 players on its Active List. No team may appear for any exhibition or regular season game unless at least eight players are dressed for and eligible and able to participate in such game.

INJURED LIST

Any player placed on the Injured List who is replaced on his team's Active List may not be restored to his team's Active List until at least five regular season games have been played by his team after he was transferred to the Injured List. For injuries occurring near the end of the season, the injured player must remain on the Injured List for five games or as many games as remain in the regular season, whichever is less. The maximum number of players that a team may carry on its Injured List is three, with the exception of the Special Hardship Rule.

TEN-DAY CONTRACT

Beginning on January 6 or the first business day after January 6, and solely for the purpose of replacing an injured player, a team may enter into a player contract limited to 10 days or a period encompassing three games played by the team, whichever is longer. No team may enter into such a contract with the same player more than twice during the course of any one season.

TRADING DEADLINE

From the start of the season until 3:00 p.m. (Eastern time) on Thursday, February 20, 2003, teams may make such changes in their playing rosters as they shall deem appropriate. GEORGE SHINNMAJORITY OWNER / MANAGING GENERAL PARTNER

Growing up in the small North Carolina town of Kannapolis, businessman George Shinn always dreamt of owning a professional sports franchise. Armed only with a lifelong love for sports, seasoned sales skills and his strong religious faith, he set out to accomplish this seemingly impossible task in 1985.

Shinn initiated his charge to obtain an NBA franchise and required just two years to see his dream realized. On April Fool's Day, 1987, NBA Commissioner David Stern called Shinn with the news -- he had been selected as the first to receive one of the new expansion franchises.

In the summer of 1999, Shinn brought in Ray Wooldridge as an ownership partner with the Hornets and Charlotte Sting of the WNBA by selling him 35 percent of the club. Upon the Hornets' move to New Orleans, the Sting remained in Charlotte for the 2002 season and are now operated by the WNBA.

Shinn owned the Charlotte Hornets for all 14 years of their existence prior to relocating the team to New Orleans for the 2002-03 season. On January 17, 2002, Shinn and Wooldridge officially filed an application with the NBA to move the franchise to New Orleans. The New Orleans Hornets were born approximately four months later on May 10, as the NBA Board of Governors endorsed the recommendation of the NBA Relocation Committee to approve the team's move.

"I will always have fond memories of Charlotte since that's the area where I was raised and spent most of my life," said Shinn.
"Over the past year, I have become enamored with the people and entire community of New Orleans and have discovered why this is such a great market for pro sports and especially an NBA franchise. I am proud to call New Orleans my new home."

Shinn plans to spend most of his time in New Orleans conducting speaking engagements and assisting in several community-related projects helping to make New Orleans a better place to live. This kind of dedication to the community has brought him the Humanitarian of the Year award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the Distinguished Community Service Award from the Anti-Defamation League. Children occupy a special place in his life, and he is especially active in several children's causes. He has given holiday parties for hundreds of underprivileged children and has also actively supported senior citizens and the handicapped.

As a young man in Kannapolis, Shinn worked in a textile mill, washed cars and was a janitor in a school he would later own. From this school, the Rutledge Education System began to grow, and the chain of proprietary schools was the building block to his fortune. As his business schools boomed, Shinn expanded his investment horizons to include real estate development, auto dealerships, publishing and a traffic reporting company. In addition to owning the Hornets, he was the owner of the Triple-A Charlotte Knights minor league baseball club before selling the franchise in 1997.

On May 14, 2001, Shinn entered into an agreement to bring professional hockey to Atlantic City's Historic Boardwalk Hall starting in the 2001-02 season. Shinn purchased the Birmingham team of the East Coast Hockey League, and the ECHL's Board of Governors approved the relocation of that club to Atlantic City.

Shinn, 60, was awarded the Horatio Alger Award in 1975, which recognizes "rags-to-riches" business people who achieve success while maintaining values in patriotism, faith and civic involvement. One of 11 selected from 2,000 nominees, the then 34-year-old Shinn was the youngest person ever to win the coveted award at the time.

Shinn is the author of five books, including the 1977 autobiography "Good Morning, Lord!" (reprinted as "The American Dream Still Works") and "Leadership Development," a best-selling textbook. A biographical account of his life and his experiences as an NBA owner, "You Gotta Believe," is in bookstores. The concepts and experiences revealed in the books are the central subjects of the many motivational speeches he gives year-round throughout the country.

While in Charlotte, The Uptown Shelter/George Shinn Center was named in his honor in recognition of his efforts to raise more than $1 million for expansion of the building in 1989. Shinn donated $150,000 from a preseason Hornets game to the shelter. Later, he personally committed an additional $300,000 to help the shelter meet its goal. In addition to this involvement, the George Shinn Foundation has contributed over $100,000 in each of the last seven years to other charitable causes. This reflects Shinn's commitment to donate at least 10 percent of his annual income to charity. Shinn was one of 12 people to receive an American Success Award from President George Bush at the White House for his work in vocational-technical education.

Other donations while in Charlotte included $200,000 to the Princeville, N.C. mayor on April 9, 2000, to aid flood victims of Hurricane Floyd. In 1998, he donated $100,000 to the Charlotte Symphony to fulfill their budgetary needs and ensure their existence for another year.

Shinn has received five honorary degrees in the humanities and another for his support of higher education.

RAY WOOLDRIDGE CO-OWNER

On July 29, 1999, Ray Wooldridge bought 35 percent of the Hornets to become a partner with George Shinn in the team, with an option to increase his percentage of ownership. He has worked diligently over the past year to bring the NBA back to New Orleans and win a championship.

Until recently, the two were also ownership partners in the Charlotte Checkers of the East Coast Hockey League. The Checkers were owned and operated by Big Play Entertainment, a company owned solely by Wooldridge, until the Checkers were sold in May 2002. The WNBA

Sting was operated by the partnership through the 2001-2002 season and reached the 2001 WNBA Finals.

Wooldridge is president and chief executive officer of Atlanta-based Space Master Building Systems, a nationwide manufacturer and supplier of relocatable and permanent commercial building products. His investment interests have included publishing, travel planning, advertising, equipment leasing and residential and commercial real estate development.

In 1982, he founded and was sole owner of Space Master International, a manufacturer and supplier of relocatable commercial building products and expanded to 30 offices nationwide. He sold the leasing segment of that company in 1998. Additionally, Wooldridge is the president and sole owner of Big Play Entertainment, a developer of entertainment ventures.

Regarding Wooldridge's partnership, NBA Commissioner David Stern said: "This is a very positive day for the NBA. Mr. Wooldridge should be a good addition to our league." Stern noted that Wooldridge had been into his NBA office a few years earlier and "was interested in the Hornets before Shinn was interested in taking on a partner. Ray Wooldridge was focused on the Hornets then."

"We feel great about our philosophy and the direction our organization is heading," the 57-year-old Wooldridge said.

"We will allow our basketball people to put the best possible team on the court and expect all of our players to represent themselves and the team in a way that makes our city proud," the longtime NBA fan said.

For five years, Wooldridge was president of Gelco Space, a General Electric Company, and was executive vice president of its parent company, Transport International Pool. The companies, both worldwide leaders, specialized in relocatable and permanent commercial building products and transportation equipment leasing, respectively.

Wooldridge has demonstrated his commitment to community projects and charity organizations through the Wooldridge Family Foundation. Through his foundation, Wooldridge donated $1 million in May 2002 to help in the areas of education and recreation for young people throughout the city of New Orleans. Wooldridge has contributed $2.5 million to local schools in Atlanta, one of which named its library in his honor. Over the past five years, he has funded a position in the field of autism research and training at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Mr. Wooldridge is also a proud supporter of the Inner-City Games, a national program.

Wooldridge served as the Finance Chairman for the State Republican Party in Georgia and was a member of the transition team for former Atlanta Mayor Bill Campbell. In addition, he was elected to the Presidential Electoral College during Bob Dole's presidential candidacy.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., Wooldridge graduated from Mississippi State and is a Certified Public Accountant. Out of school, Wooldridge worked with Ernst and Ernst, CPA's; First Tennessee Bank; and the Hertz Corporation's New York City corporate office and other locations in the United States.

Wooldridge has five children, two grandchildren, and has been an active coach in children's youth basketball and baseball leagues for the past 13 years. He travels extensively and maintains a residence in Fisher Island, Fla. An active person out of the office, Wooldridge enjoys scuba diving, tennis, horseback riding, golf and boating.

SAM RUSSO EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF BUSINESS

Throughout the Hornets' entire existence, Sam Russo has been invaluable in the team's daily operations. Promoted to executive vice president of business during the summer of 1997, Russo has been able to put his experience into all aspects of the business operations for the franchise, including marketing, public relations, ticketing, publications, merchandising, game night operations and community relations. With the relocation of the club to New Orleans for the 2002-03 season, Russo has helped to ensure a smooth transition and will oversee the coordination and hiring of the staff in New Orleans while maintaining his role as executive vice president of business for the organization.

Russo added another facet to his impressive resume as general manager of the Charlotte Checkers of the East Coast Hockey League from 2000-2002. With Russo at the helm, the Checkers enjoyed their highest attendance total since the early '90s and returned to the playoffs for the first time since the 1997-98 season.

While in Charlotte, Russo was also responsible for developing the staff and overseeing the operation of the Charlotte Sting of the WNBA. The Sting made the playoffs during their inaugural season of 1997 and continued to accomplish that feat in four of the next five seasons including advancing to the WNBA Finals in 2001.

Russo's ticket-scanning system, implemented four years ago to monitor which season-ticket holders attend games regularly, and his year-round assembling of fan focus groups are just two of his innovative ideas. Teams throughout the NBA regularly call Russo to inquire about these and other ideas.

Russo, 58, began his extensive career in professional athletics while still in high school, joining the Pittsburgh Pirates in the capacity of "gofer" in 1959. He spent eight years in the Pirates organizations, including the 1960 World Championship season, before heading West.

In the early 70's, Russo served as ticket/operations manager for both the two-time World Champion Oakland Athletics (1972, 1973) and the expansion Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League. His experience in ticketing also includes terms as district manager of Ticketron, Inc. for Northern California, and as the general manager of Select-A-Seat of Minnesota. He spent seven years in Denver as vice president of operations for HITECH Enterprises before joining the Denver Nuggets as their ticket/operations manager in 1984. Russo came to the Hornets prior to their inaugural season in 1988 and has been with the club ever since. Until the summer of 1997, Russo also oversaw all operations for George Shinn's Triple-A baseball team, the Charlotte Knights, before it was sold. He also supervised the facility management of the Hornets Training Center in Fort Mill, S.C.

BOB BASS EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF BASKETBALL OPERATIONS

The New Orleans Hornets can credit Executive Vice President of Basketball Operations Bob Bass with consistently putting a winning team on the basketball floor. He joined the Hornets as vice president of basketball operations on June 12, 1995, and was later promoted to executive vice president during the summer of 1997. He oversees all of the team's basketball-related affairs, including player personnel decisions and the franchise's extensive scouting network. Bass received the 1997 NBA Executive of the Year Award from The Sporting News (for the second time in his illustrious career) in just his second season with the Hornets. He has been responsible for acquiring NBA All-Star Baron Davis, Jamal Mashburn, P.J. Brown, David Wesley and Elden Campbell, as well as many other transactions. In his seven-season tenure with Charlotte, the Hornets have posted a .574 winning percentage (311-231) and qualified for the NBA Playoffs five times.

In 1995, Bass brought more than three decades of professional basketball experience with him to the Hornets. He spent 20 years with the San Antonio Spurs, both in the NBA and ABA, serving the organization in a variety of capacities, most recently as vice president of basketball operations (1990-94). He also spent eight years in the ABA, primarily as a head coach and general manager for the Denver, Miami, and Memphis franchises.

Bass began his association with the Spurs in December of 1974 when he was named the team's head coach. That season, the Spurs finished with a 51-33 record, including a 34-23 mark under Bass. The next season, Bass led the Spurs to a 50-34 record and their second straight trip to the ABA playoffs. In May of 1976, Bass made his move to the front office, serving as the assistant to Spurs President Angelo Drossos. But just a year later, for the 1977-78 season, Bass found himself as both assistant to the president and back on the sidelines as an assistant coach for Doug Moe. The next season, 1978-79, Bass filled both jobs as well.

In August of 1979, Bass was named the Spurs' general manager. However, he didn't remain in the front office for long. On March 1, 1980, the Spurs fired Doug Moe and Bass was once again the Spurs' headman for the final 16 games of the season. Following the season, Bass returned to the front office as general manager in the summer of 1980. He spent the next three seasons in that role until the 1983-84 season. On December 28, 1983, he replaced Head Coach Morris McHone and took over a team with an 11-20 mark. Under Bass, the Spurs went 26-25 and were able to salvage a 37-45 overall record. At the end of the season, Bass returned to his role of general manager. He remained the Spurs' GM for the next three seasons. In the summer of 1987, he was named vice president/general manager.

In June of 1988, after Red McCombs purchased the team, Bass again had his title changed as he was named the assistant to the chairman. He remained in that position during the 1989-90 season, when he was named the NBA Executive of the Year after the Spurs posted a franchise-best 56-26 record. In September of 1990, Bass was named the Spurs' vice president of basketball operations, where he stayed for four seasons. He also made his fourth trip to the sidelines during the 1991-92 season. On January 21, 1992, he replaced Larry Brown and led the Spurs to a 26-18 mark. In all, Bass posted a 144-108 record as the Spurs' head coach. His 20-year stay with the Spurs ended following the 1993-94 season.

Bass started his coaching career in the high school ranks, spending two seasons at Cromwell High School. Then in 1952, he was named the head coach at Oklahoma Baptist University. He spent the next 15 years at the school, and during that time his teams were 275-143, winning six conference titles and making six trips to the NAIA Tournament. In 1966, the Bisons won the NAIA Championship, and Bass was named the NAIA Coach of the Year.

In 1967, Bass made his move to the professional ranks as he was named the head coach of the Denver Rockets. He spent the next two seasons with the Rockets, compiling an 89-67 record. He returned to the college ranks in 1969, spending a season and a half with Texas Tech. After that stop, Bass returned to the ABA serving as a head coach with Memphis, Miami and San Antonio. During the 1973-74 season, Bass served as the director of referees for the ABA before ioining the Spurs in 1974.

Bass and his wife, Pat, have two sons, Kelly and Kip.

Paul Silas completed his fourth season as the team's head coach in 2001-02 and led the Hornets to their third straight playoff appearance. Under Silas in 2000-01, the Hornets advanced further into the playoffs than any other team in franchise history, falling just one game short of the Eastern Conference Finals. His 161 career victories with the Hornets and .573 winning percentage both rank second among all-time Hornets head coaches.

On March 7, 1999, Silas became the Hornets' fifth head coach on an interim basis. After his appointment during that 1998-99 season, the Hornets turned a dismal 4-11 start into a strong finish to become a playoff contender in the Eastern Conference. The Hornets were rejuvenated with Silas at the helm, and on May 11, 1999, the word "interim" was removed from his title. In his first full season as head coach in 1999-2000, Silas led the team to the fourth-best record in the Eastern Conference at 49-33.

Silas joined the club in 1997 when he was named an assistant coach on July 18. His coaching résumé before coming to the Hornets was a long and impressive list that included two seasons as the top assistant with the Phoenix Suns from 1995 through 1997. Prior to the 1995-96 season, Silas worked for the New Jersey Nets for four seasons (1988-89, 1992-95), including one season under Hall-of-Famer Chuck Daly. From 1989-92, he was an assistant for the New York Knicks, including one season under Pat Riley. Following his illustrious playing career in the NBA, Silas was the head coach of the San Diego Clippers (the franchise's ninth head coach) for three seasons from 1980-83.

During his 16-year NBA career, the 6-7 forward won three NBA Championships (two with Boston and one with Seattle in 1979) and was a two-time NBA All-Star. Considered one of the best rebounders in the history of the NBA, Silas ranks 16th on the all-time list with 12,357 career boards and 14th in games played with 1,254 (at the start of the 2002-2003 season). At the time of his retirement in 1980, Silas was the ninth-most prolific rebounder in NBA history and fifth-highest in NBA Playoff history. He also ranked eighth in games played and 160th in scoring (11,782).

His accolades include two NBA All-Defensive First Team selections (1975, 1976) and three consecutive All-Defensive Second Team selections (1971, 1972, 1973). Over his career, he averaged 9.4 points and 9.9 rebounds in 1,254 games.

Silas, 58, was originally a second round pick by the St. Louis Hawks in the 1964 NBA Draft (12th overall). He played for the Hawks franchise for five seasons and was then traded to Phoenix, where he completed three seasons. Silas was then traded to Boston and won two championships in four years. After playing one season with the Denver Nuggets, he finished his career by playing in Seattle for three seasons, including the Sonics' 1979 NBA Championship season. Silas, a former president of the NBA Players Association, had his best season during the 1971-72 campaign when he averaged 17.5 points and 11.9 rebounds for Phoenix.

Silas' collegiate career was just as impressive. While at Creighton University (1964), he led the NCAA with a 20.6 rebound average in 1963. He also holds the NCAA record for most rebounds in a three-year career with 1,751 and currently ranks sixth overall on the NCAA's all-time rebounds list. He is one of six players to average 20 points and 20 rebounds in a single season, joining Walt Dukes, Bill Russell, Julius Erving, Artis Gilmore and Kermit Washington and still holds the eighth-highest rebounding performance in a single game with 38 caroms on Feb. 19, 1962. He earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Creighton.

Born in Prescott, Ark., Silas was a prep standout at McClymonds High in Oakland, which also produced the likes of Bill Russell, baseball's Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson. He and his wife, Carolyn, have three children, Donna, Paula and Stephen. Silas hosts an annual corporate basketball tournament in New York featuring former NBA greats to raise funds for the Boys and Girls Club of Northern Westchester.

BRIAN HILL ASSISTANT COACH

Seasons As Hornets' Assistant Coach: Second Record As NBA Head Coach: 222-227 (.494) Birthdate: September 19, 1947 (East Orange, NJ) High School: Our Lady Of The Valley (Orange, NJ)

College: Kennedy College '69

NBA coaching veteran Brian Hill added 14 years of NBA coaching experience (including a trip to the NBA Finals) to the Hornets' bench, as he joined the club as an assistant coach in 2001-02.

Hill's coaching career has spanned over 30 years, including head coaching positions with Orlando and Vancouver. Under Hill's direction, Orlando made their only appearance in the NBA Finals in 1995. His NBA coaching career began in 1986, serving as an assistant to Mike Fratello in Atlanta. After four seasons in Atlanta (during which the Hawks were 200-128, .609), Hill joined the Orlando Magic as an assistant to Matt Guokas in 1990. After three seasons with the Magic, he was promoted to head coach prior to the 1993-94 season.

The impact of Hill's promotion was immediate. The Magic improved their record by 11 games in his first season, finishing at 50-32 (.610, then a franchise record for most wins), and reached the playoffs for the first time in franchise history. The following season, Hill guided the Magic to a 57-25 (.695) record, the Atlantic Division title and a trip to the 1995 NBA Finals against the Houston Rockets. The team's success also translated into individual accolades for Hill, as he was named head coach of the 1995 Eastern Conference All-Star team.

Hill followed up his record-setting 1994-95 season by leading the Magic to a 60-22 (.732) mark the following year, a franchise record that still stands. He also led the Magic to their second consecutive Atlantic Division crown, as the team advanced to the Eastern Conference Finals before losing to the eventual NBA Champion Chicago Bulls. During his three and a half seasons with the Magic, Hill's teams posted a 191-104 (.647) record. His home record while in Orlando was 122-26 (.824) including 40 consecutive wins spanning from March 12, 1995 through March 19, 1996. Hill's record over his first three seasons (167-79, .679) is third in NBA history behind Pat Riley and Phil Jackson. He also ranks as the ninth-fastest head coach to reach 100 victories, accomplishing the feat in 149 games.

Hill was named head coach of the Vancouver Grizzlies prior to the 1997-98 season. As the third head coach in franchise history, he took over a team that had won just 14 games in 1996-97. The Grizzlies improved by five games under the first year of Hill's leadership, as they finished 19-63 (.232) for the 1997-98 season. The team managed just eight wins during the shortened 1998-99 NBA season, posting an 8-42 (.160) mark. Hill's career with the Grizzlies came to an end 22 games into the 1999-00 season. The Grizzlies were 4-18 at the time of his departure.

Hill's coaching career also includes 17 years at the high school and collegiate level. He began his college coaching career as an assistant at Montclair State (New Jersey) in 1972, and held assistant coaching positions at Lehigh University and Penn State. He was the head coach at Lehigh for eight seasons.

Hill, 53, was born in East Orange, N.J., and attended high school at Our Lady of the Valley before attending Kennedy College in Nebraska. He graduated from Kennedy in 1969, earning a bachelor's degree in physical education while becoming a three-year starter on the basketball team and lettering in track.

In addition to his coaching experience, Hill served as the co-host of "NBA Match-Up" on ESPN during the 2000-01 season.

Hill is also active in fundraising for Cystic Fibrosis research and was honored with the Breath of Life award from the National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in 2002. He received the award after breaking the $2 million mark in money raised for research since 1997. Hill continued his work in the summer of 2002, raising over $250,000 with Brian Hill's Drive For a Cure and the Brian Hill Invitational acid tournaments.

Hill and his wife, Kay, have two children, Kimberly, 31, and Christopher, 28.

MEMORABLE MOMENTS FROM 2001-02

November 2: The Hornets start the season with a 2-0 record after consecutive home victories over Cleveland and New York. The Hornets would not be two games over the .500 mark again until March 22.

November 20: Jamal Mashburn is placed on the Injured List with a lower abdominal strain. Mashburn missed 42 games as a result of the injury. Despite playing without Mashburn and starter David Wesley (strained right arch), the Hornets defeat the Washington Wizards 95-88 in a nationally televised game at the MCI Center.

November 28: Baron Davis shoots 15-20 from the field (including 4-5 from three-point range) to score a career-high 38 points and lead the Hornets to a 104-96 win against the Pistons in Detroit. In the same game, P.J. Brown pulls down 20 rebounds and outrebounds the entire Pistons team 20-18. The Pistons' 18 rebounds are an NBA record for fewest rebounds in a game.

December 26: The Hornets host Michael Jordan and the Washington Wizards in front of a national television audience and a sellout crowd of 23,799 at the Hive. The game marks Jordan's first return to North Carolina since February 11, 1998, but the Hornets spoil the homecoming with a 99-93 victory.

January 3: Baron Davis records the third triple-double of his career with 28 points, 10 rebounds and 11 assists in a 114-102 home win over the Golden State Warriors. Only 7.770 attend the game after the city of Charlotte is hit with a severe snow storm.

January 7: P.J. Brown grabs a career-high 22 rebounds in a 94-80 home win over the Denver Nuggets. The 22 boards are the second-most ever by a Hornets player.

January 11: The Hornets beat the Clippers 92-91 in overtime at the Hive after coming back from a 17-point deficit. The Hornets score 14 points in the final 1:07 of the fourth quarter, including Bryce Drew's three-pointer with 7.7 seconds remaining to send the game into overtime. Baron Davis ties his career high with 15 assists and the Hornets win their third straight at home and third straight overall, both season highs.

January 21: The Hornets hand the New York Knicks their worst loss ever in Madison Square Garden when they beat them 111-68 in a Monday afternoon game on Martin Luther King Day. The 43-point margin of victory is the second-largest all-time in Hornets history and the win snaps a streak of eight straight losses in New York.

February 3: The Hornets wrap up a perfect 3-0 road trip with a 97-79 win in Memphis to run their road record to 14-11. The trip also includes the Hornets' first win in San Antonio since the 1997-98 season, and a one-point victory in Houston courtesy of Lee Nailon's 20-footer at the buzzer.

February 10: Baron Davis makes his first All-Star appearance, tying for team-high honors with five assists in 12 minutes of action. Davis was named as a replacement to the team after Toronto's Vince Carter went down with an injury.

February 18: Jamal Mashburn returns to the Hornets lineup after missing 42 games with a lower abdominal strain, scoring 22 points to go along with five assists, three rebounds and three steals in 44 minutes to lead the Hornets to a 101-92 win at Milwaukee.

March 1: David Wesley returns to the Hornets lineup after missing 13 games with a cracked bone in his left foot in a 100-87 win at Boston. Wesley comes off the bench for the first time as a Hornet, ending his team record streak of 337 games started.

March 27: The Hornets defeat the Magic 111-104 at the Hive for their season-high seventh straight win overall and fifth straight win at home.

April 2: Jamal Mashburn is named Eastern Conference Player of the Month for March after averaging 21.7 points, 6.5 rebounds and 3.9 assists while leading the Hornets to a 10-5 record. Mashburn is the first Hornet to be named Player of the Month since Glen Rice in 1997.

April 17: The Hornets wrap up the regular season with a 112-106 home win over the Chicago Bulls. After winning three of their last four games and getting help from other teams, the Hornets secure the fourth seed in the Eastern Conference, giving them homecourt advantage in their first round series with Orlando.

April 20: The Hornets win Game One of the first round series with the Magic when Baron Davis strips Tracy McGrady in the game's closing seconds. Jamal Mashburn leaves the game in the first quarter and is taken to the hospital at halftime. Mashburn would not play again in the playoffs after being diagnosed with a viral illness, mild anemia and B-12 deficiency.

April 27: Baron Davis' apparent game-winning shot is waved off, forcing the Hornets to go to overtime to beat the Magic 110-100 in Orlando in Game Three and take a 2-1 lead in the series. Davis puts on one of the greatest performances in Hornets' playoff history, recording the team's first-ever postseason triple-double with 33 points, 14 rebounds, and 10 assists. He also plays 52 minutes without committing a turnover.

April 30: The Hornets advance to the second round for the second straight season with their 102-85 win at Orlando. Baron Davis makes history by chalking up 28 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists to become just the fifth player in NBA history to record back-to-back triple-doubles in the playoffs.

May 9: The Hornets get their first win in their Eastern Conference Semifinal series with New Jersey, beating the Nets 115-97 at the Hive in Game Three. Baron Davis leads the way with 26 points, eight assists, seven rebounds and a team playoff record seven steals.

May 15: The Hornets' 14-year run in Charlotte comes to an end in New Jersey when they lose to the Nets 103-95 in Game Five. The Hornets lead by three with 5:21 remaining when Baron Davis picks up his sixth foul. The Nets would take over from that point, using a 13-3 run to break the aame open and cruise to the win.

^{* -} Led NBA in attendance

The Hornets have led the NBA in attendance eight times in the franchise's 14-year history, including seven straight attendance championships between the 1990-91 and 1996-97 seasons. On December 23, 1988 in an improbable 103-101 win over the Chicago Bulls, the fans of the Queen City packed the Charlotte Coliseum for the seventh sellout in only their 12th home game. That game marked the beginning of a 364 regular season sell-out streak spanning 10 seasons. From the 1988-89 season through 1996-97, 364 of the 369 home dates were sold out. On November 25, 1997 in a 90-85 win over the Detroit Pistons, the attendance total came 1,425 people short of a sellout, ending the streak.

WHAT'S CREOLE?

Creole in its broadest sense can refer to a variety of combinations of French, Spanish, African and Caribbean cultures in colonial Louisiana. In early 19th-century New Orleans, the term Creole was a way that these "born in the colony" cultural groups differentiated themselves from the many Americans who settled in the city after the Louisiana Purchase, and from the waves of German and other immigrants arriving in the area.

WHAT'S CAJUN?

The Cajun culture sprang from the Acadians who settled in South Louisiana following their expulsion from Acadia, or Nova Scotia, in the 1700's. This French colonial culture melded with mainland French immigrant cultures and with Haitian, Spanish, English, German and Native American cultures as it evolved to form the distinctive and unique Cajun culture found today in South Lousiana.

NBA PLAYOFF FORMAT

A total of 16 teams qualify for the NBA Playoffs — the four division winners and the next six teams in each conference according to their won-lost records, regardless of division. Round One of the NBA Playoffs is best-of-five and each succeeding round, including the NBA Finals, is best-of-seven.

In every series, the home-court advantage in the extra game goes to the team with the better record during the regular season, regardless of its standing in the division race. For example, if a division winner plays a second-place team from another division that had a better record, the second-place team would get the home-court advantage.

In determining the playoff matchups, the eight qualifiers in each conference must first be ranked. The division winner with the better record becomes Team 1, the other division winner becomes Team 2, and the remaining six qualifiers are ranked Teams 3 through 8 according to their records. The playoff pairings for the First Round are Teams 1-8, 2-7, 3-6 and 4-5 in each conference. In the Conference Semifinals, the winner of Teams 1-8 plays the winner of Teams 4-5 and the winner of Teams 2-7 plays the winner of Teams 3-6.

The NBA Finals will be played on a 2-3-2 basis, the team with the better regular-season record getting the home-court advantage for the first two and last two games. The other best-of-seven playoff series, the Conference Semifinals and the Conference Finals, are played in a 2-2-1-1-1 format, while the best-of-five First Round is 2-2-1.

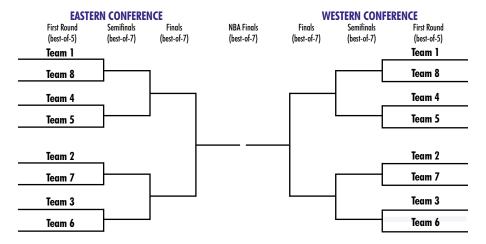

TWO-TEAM TIEBREAKING PROCEDURE

- 1. Results head-to-head.
- 2. Winning percentage within conference.
- 3. Winning percentage within division (only if teams tied are in same division).
- 4. Winning percentage against playoff teams in own conference.
- 5. Point differential in games between the two teams.
- 6. Point differential between offense and defense.

MULTIPLE-TEAM TIEBREAKING PROCEDURE

- 1. Winning percentage among all teams tied.
- 2. Winning percentage within conference.
- 3. Winning percentage within division (only if teams tied are in same division).
- 4. Winning percentage against playoff teams in own conference.
- 5. Point differential between offense and defense.

If a multiple-team tie is reduced to a two-team tie at any point using the above criteria, the two-team tie will be resolved in accordance with the existing two-team tie procedure. For the NBA Finals, involving ties between teams in different conferences, the first tiebreaker is head-to-head results. The second tiebreaker is the record of the Eastern Conference club against all West teams vs. the record of the Western Conference club against all East teams.

NBA COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

The NBA is strongly committed to creating programs that improve the quality of life for all people, with a special emphasis on reading and youth programs. Each year the league, its players and its teams donate millions of dollars and hundreds of hours to charities and community outreach programs. Through its extensive outreach programs, team foundations, and public service announcements, the NBA is deeply involved in addressing a variety of important social issues in its communities.

Read to Achieve is a year-round program designed to help young people develop a life-long love for reading that reaches an estimated 50 million children a year. It is the most extensive educational outreach initiative in the history of professional sports. In addition to a year-round promotional campaign, the effort includes the annual donation of more than 300,000 books through a variety of reading events and book fairs, as well as the creation of locally based Reading and Learning Centers.

With the support of long-time national partners such as RIF and Scholastic Inc., the NBA has created more than 30 Reading and Learning Centers throughout North America in an effort to provide access to reading materials and technology to young people everywhere.

Integral components of the program are national and local All-Star Reading Teams comprised of current and former NBA and WNBA players and other members of the NBA family, who promote reading efforts through in-arena events, Public Service Announcements, and community appearances throughout the year.

In recognition of the community outreach and commitment to service of our players, the league has established the Community Assist Award, which honors players whose efforts in the community are truly outstanding. To honor the NBA Player that reflects the passion that the league and its players have for their communities, all 29 NBA teams nominate a player for the Community Assist Award which is presented monthly throughout the year.

Awarded annually at the conclusion of each league's regular season, the NBA and WNBA Sportsmanship Awards recognize players who embody the spirit of sportsmanship. The NBA makes a $25,000 donation on behalf of the NBA Sportsmanship Award honoree, and a $10,000 donation on behalf of each of the three divisional awardees, to the charitable organization of their choice.

The NBA also supports the efforts of Prevent Child Abuse America, honors the Martin Luther King Holiday, Black History Month, Gallaudet University, the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund and the National Wheelchair Basketball Association.

BOBBY PHILLS FOUNDATION

Hornets Phills Dies in Crash. That's what the headlines read. The city of Charlotte was deeply saddened to lose one of its own, Charlotte Hornets player Bobby Phills. In June of 2000, Kendall Phills, wife of the late Bobby Phills, established a scholarship fund in honor of her husband. Bobby Phills life epitomized high academic achievement, dedication to family and commitment to community. He was a respected leader both on and off the court.

The BPSF is designed to continue his legacy and make a positive difference in the lives of youth for years to come. The fund partners with a variety of organizations who serve youth in our community, including athletic and mentoring programs and programs designed to benefit youth infected or affected by AIDS/HIV.

The BPSF and the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Foundation have established a partnership. Together, the organizations will offer a four-year scholarship to Southern University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, the alma mater of both Kendall and Bobby. The BPSF also offered five $5,000 scholarships to Charlotte area seniors for the 2001-2002 school year.

The BPSF awarded $8,000 to the African-American Cultural Center to establish the Kendall and Bobby Phills Artist in Residence Program. The first presentation allowed renowned jazz artist Michael Porter to introduce youth who are interested in the arts.

The BPSF awarded $2,000 to the Metrolina Aids Project to support the Agape Family Center. The center is a respite care center for children and their families.

Kendall Phills has made numerous contributions of time and funding to various organizations, including a $5,000 contribution to the Miles McPhearson Crusade, a Christian youth crusade.

The Second Annual Celebrity Dinner & Silent Auction, "An Unforgettable All-Star Gala" was held on September 7, 2002 at Founder's Hall in Charlotte, NC. This event helped to support the BPSF in continuing to assist area students in their pursuit of a higher education.

The will event featured several celebrity quests and special honorees as well as live national entertainment.
