WHAT! ARE THOSE GUYS BLIND

By Bill McPoil

We've all said it. A bad call, a called strike that should have been a ball, you name it. At least once during the season we will not only question an umpire's eye site, but his knowledge of the rules and whether or not he should even be allowed on the field. But what does it take to become an umpire in professional baseball? More than you might think.

First, you have to attend one of two schools approved by Minor League Baseball. The school is four or five weeks long depending on which one you attend. Combined, the two schools usually enroll about 300 aspiring umpires. Of those 300 or so, about 50 will be selected to enter the minor leagues as an umpire. At the school, a prospective umpire learns not only the rules of the game, but how to conduct himself both on the field and off. He'll learn how to signal the calls, respond to arguments from the players, and where to place himself on the field during a play – we've all seen the first base umpire head out to right field to cover a fly ball, so who covers first? Most often the home plate umpire.

Once graduated, the top 15% or 20% are invited to the advanced course where they are evaluated by the instructors who make recommendations to the Rookie and short-season Class-A league presidents for possible candidates for them to hire.

If a candidate is hired, their journey to the major leagues begins. As their skills improve they move through the minor leagues to Class A-Advanced, Double-A, and finally to Triple-A. On average it takes about 10 years to go from being hired to Triple-A. Yep, those umpiring our game all have about 10 years, or more, of experience.

Major league umpires fly first-class from game to game. Those in the minors drive, with the league now providing a rental car in the Advanced-A league (like the San Jose Giants) and a van for those in Double-A and Triple-A. They earn $2,700.00 (AA) and $3,500.00 (AAA) per month and a per diem of $56.00 per day for gas and meals; the league pays for their two to a room motels, compared to the MLB umpires who make $120,000.00 to $350,000.00 per year with a $350.00 per day per diem.

So, the next time you want to offer your glasses to the umpire, think again; they know more about the rules than we ever will, and everybody is entitled to a bad call once in a while.

RC PROSPECT REPORT

Logan WEBB

Right-handed power arm Logan Webb attended dozens of Sacramento River Cats games as a kid. He grew up in the Sacramento suburb of Rocklin with season-ticket members as parents. He's now one step closer to taking the mound with the River Cats nameplate across his chest.

Webb, just 22 after being selected by the Giants out of Rocklin High School back in 2014, was added to San Francisco's 40-man roster in the offseason. The move was to protect his talented arm from the Rule-5 draft. It gave him the opportunity to spend spring training with the big-league club for the first time in his career.

His sixth professional season should begin in Richmond, Va., according to the new Director of Player Development Kyle Haines. With the Flying Squirrels in 2018, Webb made six starts totaling 30.2 innings before year's end. He broke camp in San Jose where he made 20 starts while keeping his ERA below two before being promoted to Double-A.

Webb's development was halted in the early half of the 2016 season while playing for the Class-A Augusta GreenJackets of the South Atlantic League. He was shut down with elbow soreness after just nine starts, eventually leading to Tommy John surgery in June. But he returned healthy in 2017 with added life to his fastball.

Webb now features a mid-90s fastball, that occasionally ticks up to 98, and a "power" curveball as his plus pitches. In this context, power indicates his curveball hits velocities in the mid-80s, more in the range of a typical slider. As with most young starting pitchers in the minor-league system, it will be the grooming of a third pitch, in this case for Webb, a changeup, that will continue his success into the upper reaches of the minors as a starter or a bullpen threat.

RIVER CATS ROSTER

SHAUN ANDERSON

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'4" | Weight: 225 | DOB: 2/14/95

Was a third-round pick by the Boston Red Sox in 2016 and pitched in their minor-league system until he was traded to the Giants on July 26, 2017 as part of the Eduardo Nunez deal. He broke camp in 2018 with the Double-A Richmond Flying Squirrels, posting a 3.45 ERA with 93 strikeouts in 94 innings before being called up to make his Triple-A debut in Sacramento. After a non-roster invite to major-league spring training this season, he'll begin the year as the Giants' fifth-ranked prospect according to MLB Pipeline.

TYLER BEEDE

PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'2" | Weight: 210 | DOB: 5/23/93

Beede, drafted in 2014's first round out of Vanderbilt University, made more starts than any other River Cats pitcher during his Triple-A debut season in 2017 and is the No. 24-ranked prospect in the system according to MLB Pipeline. He pitched six or more innings in 11 of his 19 starts, posting a 3.47 ERA in those outings. He struggled during the 2018 season with the River Cats and was sent to the bullpen for the remainder of the year, but made some mechanical adjustments in the offseason and will be back in the rotation for 2019.

TY BLACH

PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: L | Height: 6'1" | Weight: 205 | DOB: 10/20/90

Blach is back in a River Cats uniform after spending all of 2017 and 2018 with the San Francisco Giants. There, he pitched the third most innings on the club in 2017 and followed that up with 118.2 a year later. He owns a 4.36 ERA in nearly 300 major-league innings pitched while making almost half of his 85 appearances as a starter. Blach was a three-year starter at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. and was selected by the Giants in the fifth round of the 2012 draft.

RAY BLACK

PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'3" | Weight: 230 | DOB: 6/26/90

After playing collegiately at the University of Pittsburgh, he was drafted by the Giants in the 7th round of 2011, though he missed the 2012 and 2013 seasons after undergoing shoulder surgery to repair a torn labrum. In 2014 while pitching for the San Jose Giants, he struck out nearly 45% of the batters he faced in 25 innings. In May of 2017 he had arthroscopic surgery on his throwing elbow, but returned healthy and made his major-league debut on July 8, 2018.

SAM COONROD*PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'2" | Weight: 215 | DOB: 9/22/92

Drafted in the fifth round in 2014, Coonrod hails from Carrollton, Ill. and played collegiately for Southern Illinois University. Following Tommy John surgery at the conclusion of 2017, Coonrod finished up his rehab in July of 2018 and returned to action pitching for the AZL Giants and the San Jose Giants, where during his brief time in San Jose he struck out 46.4% of the batters he faced in 6.1 innings. Prior to moving into the pen, Coonrod racked up more than 100 innings in three straight seasons from 2015 to 2017.

DEREK LAW*PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'3" | Weight: 225 | DOB: 9/14/90

Law split time in 2017 between San Francisco and Sacramento, enjoying a 2.48 ERA with 10 saves in 32.2 innings in Triple-A. But while in the majors, he struggled with a 5.06 ERA while averaging nearly three baserunners allowed per two innings. In 2016, however, Law pitched well for the Giants, posting a 2.13 ERA with 50 strikeouts and just nine walks in 55 innings. Law's 2018 campaign was again split between Sacramento and San Francisco, though 33 of his 40 games pitched were in Triple-A.

JOSE LOPEZ*PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'1" | Weight: 200 | DOB: 9/1/93

After pitching in the Cincinnati Reds' organization for four seasons, Lopez was designated for assignment on February 11, 2019 and claimed by the Giants a day later. Lopez, who played collegiately for Seton Hall and was drafted in the sixth round by the Reds in 2014, was born in the Dominican Republic but went to high school in Trenton, New Jersey. Lopez shined during the 2017 season, posting a 2.57 ERA in 147.0 innings split between Advanced-A Daytona and Double-A Pensacola.

TYLER ROGERS*PITCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'4" | Weight: 180 | DOB: 12/17/90

With 55 appearances, Rogers finished tied with San Jose Giants right-hander Dylan Rheault for most games by a pitcher in the Giants' system in 2017, then followed that up by leading the system with 51 in 2018. The right-handed submariner totalled 143.2 innings over that span, entirely with the Sacramento River Cats, while holding opposing hitters to a .236 average, just two home runs, and a 2.37 ERA in 2017. His 61.0% ground ball rate was one of the highest on the Giants' farm over these last two seasons.

ANDREW SUAREZ*PITCHER

Bat: L | Throw: L | Height: 6'0" | Weight: 195 | DOB: 9/11/92

Suarez entered 2018 ranked the 10th best prospect on the Giants after posting a career-high 155.2 innings in 2017, 10.1 more innings than any other Giants' minor leaguer. After being the opening-day starter for the River Cats, Suarez was called up to San Francisco where he made his major-league debut on April 11. The University of Miami product was sent back down for a brief stint but was eventually called up for good, making 29 starts totaling 160.1 innings with a 4.49 ERA.

PAT VENDITTE*PITCHER

Bat: L | Throw: S | Height: 6'2" | Weight: 215 | DOB: 9/22/92

One of the most unique baseball players in the game, Venditte is a switch-pitcher. He throws with either arm and carries a special glove that allows him to switch hands while on the mound. He's a 33-year veteran who made his major-league debut for the Oakland A's in 2015, though it was the New York Yankees who signed him in the 20th round of the 2008 draft. Venditte spent 2018 in the Los Angeles Dodgers' system where he tossed 14 big-league innings while pitching most of his games with the Triple-A Oklahoma City Dodgers.

ARAMIS GARCIA*CATCHER

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'1" | Weight: 210 | DOB: 1/12/93

Drafted in the 2nd round of the 2014 draft out of Florida International University, Garcia was the top catching prospect in the Giants' farm system until they selected Georgia Tech's Joey Bart in 2018. Garcia, though, is certainly the closest to consistent major-league time as he's currently one of three backstops on San Francisco's 40-man roster. Garcia has been known mostly for his offensive prowess, but his skills behind the dish have improved from year to year, especially during the 2018 season in Double-A Richmond.

Bat: L | Throw: R | Height: 6'0" | Weight: 210 | DOB: 11/1/84

Vogt is back with the River Cats for the third time, but first as a member of the Giants' organization. The catcher drafted out of Azusa Pacific University slashed .324/.398/.547 in 75 games for the River Cats back in 2013 and went on to become an American League All-Star with the A's from 2015 to 2016. He was designated for assignment by the A's in 2017 but was quickly picked up by Milwaukee, though he hit the injured list in August after a hard collision at the plate. He then spent most of 2018 rehabbing from a shoulder surgery that stemmed from the incident.

On August 31, 2018, he was included in the trade that sent then Giants outfielder Andrew McCutchen to the Yankees. He enters the 2019 season on the Giants' 40-man roster and is ranked the No. 19 prospect in the organization by MLB Pipeline.

Bat: R | Throw: R | Height: 6'2" | Weight: 225 | DOB: 3/7/94

Drafted out of Sacramento's Jesuit High School in 2012, Green played in the Philadelphia Phillies' farm system before electing free agency at the conclusion of the 2018 season. He had Tommy John surgery in August of 2016 and missed the rest of that season plus half of 2017. In 2018, he OPS'd nearly 1.000 with 17 home runs and 23 doubles in Double-A before being promoted to Triple-A Lehigh Valley where he completed the season. He signed with the Giants over the offseason and will get to play roughly ten miles from where he grew up in Carmichael.

TACOMA RAINIERS (1-3) T-3rd Pacific Northern

- vs -

SACRAMENTO RIVER CATS (3-1) T-1st Pacific Northern

Rainiers: RHP Nabil Crismatt (0-0, No ERA) • River Cats: RHP Anderson Franco (0-0, No ERA)

Last Night's Game: The Sacramento River Cats (3-1) picked up their third win in the first four games of the 2019 campaign, defeating the Tacoma Rainiers (1-3) 10-3 behind a pair of long balls from Jesuit High School alum and Sacramento native INF Zach Green. The River Cats fell behind early 3-1, but a two-run homer off the bat of C Stephen Vogt in the fifth would give the River Cats a 4-3 lead. Sacramento would add five in sixth to increase the lead to 9-3. Green would add another run on a solo shot to left to push the lead to 10-3. The bullpen was fantastic in yesterday's victory throwing five innings while giving up just two hits. LHP Ty Blach went four innings giving up three runs and did not factor into the decision. P Pat Venditte was first out of the pen for the River Cats and picked up his first win of the season.

Today's Starter: RHP Anderson Franco (0-0, No ERA) will take the hill for the River Cats in game five finale. Franco spent most of the season with the Double A Braves affiliate, Mississippi Braves. With the Braves, Franco compiled a 5-9 record with a 4.13 ERA. Franco was acquired by the Giants organization in the 2019 offseason during free agency. In 2017 Franco was selected to Venezuela's national team for the World Baseball Classic.

Offense is Rolling: The River Cats are among one of the top offensive teams in the PCL this year. Sacramento sports the second best team average at .301 as well as the second most runs scored at 31. The River Cats are ranked in the top five in every major hitting category, with the exception of stolen bases. They lead the league in triples with three through four games and have now scored 10 or more runs in back to back games, something Sacramento did not accomplish in 2018. The River Cats were 4-1 last season when scoring 10 or more runs and are 2-0 in 2019.

Home Grown Talent: INF Zach Green grew up in Carmichael, CA attending Jesuit High School and has paced the River Cats offense this year batting an incredible .500 through four games this season. Green is in the top two in all offensive categories for Sacramento and leads the team in batting average, total bases, runs, RBI, and hits. Green also achieved the River Cats first multi-home run game, hitting both homers over 400 feet. Green will look to continue his hot streak in the series finale against the Rainiers.

This Day in River Cats History: April 8, 2012: The River Cats rocked the Las Vegas 51s 10-3, punctuated by a five-run third inning. The scoring started with a grand slam off the bat of INF Daric Barton and closed on an RBI-double by INF Stephen Parker. RHP Tyson Ross made the start for Sacramento and tossed four innings of one-run ball. Eight River Cats starters recorded a hit and four of them were multi-hit games.

APRIL 8 IN MLB HISTORY

April 8, 1934: At Shibe Park, 15,000 fans witness the first legal baseball game between major league teams played on a Sunday in the city of Philadelphia. In a hometown exhibition game, the Phillies beat the A's, 8-1.

April 8, 1963: In his first major league plate appearance, Pete Rose works out a walk-off Earl Francis in the Reds' 5-2 victory over Pittsburgh at Crosley Field. The eventual all-time hit leader will be held hitless, going 0-for-3, but does score his first major league run when Frank Robinson homers in the bottom of the first inning.

April 8, 1986: Will Clark homers in his first major league at-bat, facing future Hall of Fame right-hander Nolan Ryan. The 22 year-old Giants rookie first baseman's first inning-solo round-tripper contributes to the team's Opening Day 8-3 victory at the Astrodome.

RIVER CATS FOUNDATION

Since the River Cats' inaugural season in Sacramento in 2000, involvement in the community is a priority. The management and employees of the River Cats focus their efforts on family and youth-based activities in the greater Sacramento area and spend countless hours in the community with schools, non-profit organizations and civic clubs. The River Cats are keenly aware of their responsibility to give back to the community with donations of time and available funds.

Fans have the opportunity to participate in our 50/50 raffle and win big prize money. One lucky fan will take home half of that game's total amount raised while the other half will be donated to the River Cats Foundation or other benefiting partner of the night.

The River Cats Foundation was created to serve and benefit children and families in need in our Sacramento area. Each year the foundation focuses on a specific area. For 2019, the Foundation is focusing art, drama and music-related programs.

ONE-ON-ONE with KYLE

Q&A with Kyle Haines, Farm Director with the San Francisco Giants, and Johnny Duskow, the radio broadcaster of the Sacramento River Cats.

Johnny: We are at Indian School Park talking with the farm director with the San Francisco Giants, Kyle Haines. Hainzy it has been an interesting year, and I tell you what it's going to be even more interesting the next couple weeks with the number of guys you have camp and all the decisions to be made. It has put some stress on you guys, but it is a good problem to have, right?

Kyle: Yeah, I mean this is probably the deepest the organization has been in a long time. A lot of quality players competing for a lot of opportunities for the Giants, at every level. I think our Major League roster is becoming deeper and deeper by the day, which then obviously pushes a lot of really good players into Sacramento that will be out there on the field for the River Cats this year.

HAINES

FARM DIRECTOR

Johnny: Okay, some exciting things happening in the minor leagues and of course those guys will be big leaguers. One guy we've been talking about is Tyler Beede. The talk of camp has been Tyler Beede, and I know you've been instrumental in just talking with the coaches about his development. What do you see from him?

Kyle: Yeah, I mean he has been absolutely fantastic, it's the guy I think that everybody has envisioned him growing into and he's grown into that. Everybody develops in their own timeline and I think now we are seeing Tyler take that massive step forward. He is still fairly young and I think being a first round pick we put a lot of expectations on him to be really good right away, but Tyler has really found his niche. I think last year, when he looks back on it, it's going to be one of the biggest development years of his entire life, and how much he grew to be able to handle some of the adversity, but more importantly bounce up and get up off the ground after he'd been knocked down, it has been really exciting to see.

"This is probably the deepest the organization has been in a long time."

Johnny: That's great! I know with Farhan coming in everybody is trying to get their rhythm with Farhan. He obviously works very closely with the minor leagues and very closely with you. What have been your impressions of Farhan?

Kyle: Well, incredibly intelligent guy. I don't think there is anything that he does not miss. It is exciting to see him every single day just kind of have this relentless attitude of how he can improve anything he can in the organization with a huge emphasis on the major league roster. We see him every day active anyway he can to find value to the Giants to bring good players here and try to create the deepest organization and the deepest major league roster in all of baseball. I think that has been evident in how he has gone about his business here. He has stayed patient, but at the same time really jumped on some really nice claims on the waiver wire that really increases the depth of our 40 man roster. He really targeted guys with on base ability and then the multi-position athleticism to them

"...create that atmosphere where we can create mentally strong major league players so it's not just talented major league players, as far as their physical ability, but also their mental ability."

that could maybe help us in a variety of ways at the major league level.

Johnny: In the last 5 or 6 years, like many teams in baseball, the Giants have looked into the approach of the mental side of the game. You see it in baseball, what have you noticed about the change in baseball and specifically with the Giants as far as the mental side of the game?

Kyle: Yeah, I think it's an area everybody always talks about growing physically but in some regards these are young kids that are growing up into men, and a big part of that is the mental game and their ability to handle struggles on and off the field. They are going through a lot of emotions, their going through a lot of things. When someone was broken physically we do whatever we can to fix them, but when they are broken mentally we kind of just turn a blind eye and say they are weak, you know? I think in all of us, in some degree, we have been knocked down and we have to pick ourselves up and move along. I think a big part of us is trying to create that atmosphere where we can create mentally strong major league players so it's not just talented major league players, as far as their physical ability, but also their mental ability.

Johnny: It is exciting that you get to see this thing from the ground up. Your first year as farm director, what has surprised you about this job? What, going in came unexpected to you with this job?

Kyle: It encompasses so many people, you look at 8 minor league teams, when you include the DSL that is 8 teams worth of staff members and 8 teams worth of players. Every one of them needs you fully focused on their careers as best as you can, but at the same time seeing an overview of the entire organization and what is best for the organization. You're trying to teach every one of them as individuals, because if we treat them as the same we are doing them a disservice. You're dealing with 16 year old kids all the way up to 36 year old adults and their all in various degrees and everyone's their unique individual and fingerprint and then when you talk about the staff the same regards they all come from different backgrounds, education backgrounds, etc. and just trying to figure out how they all tick and how I can be a resource to help make them, I don't want to say make them, but just help enable them to become the best person they can be.

Johnny: Well we are looking forward to seeing you in Sacramento this year, we will see you early on.

Kyle: I will be in an out all year. I am excited to catch up with each and every one of you. I never got the chance to play in Sacramento, so now I get to make up for lost time by trying to stop in as much as I can and say hi and build relationships there. I got a lot of friends in the Sacramento area that I always catch up with that always want to talk River Cats baseball. It's going to be an exciting time for me coming in and out of there all year.

Johnny: Well we are looking forward to it, thanks.

Kyle: I am looking forward to it as well, thanks.
