DIBELLA

Lou DiBella President & Managing General Partner

Lou DiBella currently serves as President & Managing General Partner of the Richmond Flying Squirrels, overseeing all aspects of the Flying Squirrels operations in Richmond. Over the past five years, that has included the creation of the Flying Squirrels' current ownership group, and formalizing the franchise's move to Richmond from Norwich, CT. Prior to the relocation of the franchise, DiBella served as President & Managing Partner of the Connecticut Defenders and the Norwich Navigators that preceded them. In that role, which he held from 2005-09, he fostered the relationship that continues presently between the Flying Squirrels and their parent-club, the San Francisco Giants.

Although he led baseball's return to Richmond, DiBella's name continues to be synonymous with world championship boxing. He enjoyed an outstanding 11-year run at HBO Sports, where he was the backbone of the division that vaulted HBO Boxing to signature programming status. HBO Pay Per View flourished under his leadership, televising many of the biggest prizefights in the history of the sport. DiBella recruited and signed a bevy of boxing stars for HBO, including such champions as Oscar De La Hoya, Roy Jones Jr., and Lennox Lewis. He also revolutionized the sport as creator of the critically acclaimed "Boxing After Dark" television series, providing underexposed fighters the opportunity to advance their careers on a national stage.

In May of 2000, he launched DiBella Entertainment (DBE), a full-service sports and entertainment company. DBE continues to be one of the most successful companies in boxing. DiBella has been lauded in the boxing community for fighting the contractual exploitation of boxers by promoters. DBE adheres to the following mission: to create a business model that shifts the balance of power from promoters to boxers; and establish a legacy of matchmaking excellence, both in an effort to improve the health of the boxing industry. Past and present boxers represented by DiBella Entertainment include current WBC Middleweight champion Sergio Gabriel Martinez, former middleweight world champions Jermain Taylor and Bernard Hopkins, former junior welterweight titleist Paulie Malignaggi and WBC Welterweight champion Andre Berto.

In January 2005, DBE launched DBE Productions. Through that outlet in 2007, DBE Productions produced the documentary, "Magic Man," which depicted the life of Paulie Malignaggi and his rise in the world of boxing. In 2006, DiBella made his acting debut, depicting himself as a boxing promoter in Rocky Balboa. In 2008, he added the credit of Executive Producer to his list of accomplishments with the 2009 film Love Ranch, starring Academy Award winners Helen Mirren and Joe Pesci. In 2010, he was credited as Associate Producer of the critically acclaimed film The Fighter, starring Mark Wahlberg and Christian Bale. The film centers around the early life of "Irish" Micky Ward, who cemented his legacy with three legendary fights against Arturo Gatti, while a fighter with DBE.

DiBella was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York, and attended Manhattan's prestigious Regis High School. He was a summa cum laude graduate of Tufts University, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. A 1985 graduate of Harvard Law School, DiBella spent four years as an attorney with the prestigious law firm Sullivan & Cromwell. A tireless advocate of boxing reform, DiBella has been a leader in the movement for federal regulation, uniform health and safety standards and a national boxing commission. He has lectured extensively on these subjects and has testified before Congress and numerous state and local bodies. In 1999, DiBella received the Thurman Munson Corporate Hero Award from the Association for the Help of Retarded Children for both his achievements at HBO and his charitable activities. Numerous civic organizations and retired boxer's associations have honored him, including Ring 8, Ring 34 and Latinos in Sports. DiBella resides in Huntington Bay, New York.

PARNEY

Todd "Parney" Parnell Vice President/COO/GM

Todd "Parney" Parnell serves as the Vice President and Chief Operating Officer for the Richmond Flying Squirrels. In that role, he oversees all aspects of the Flying Squirrels' day-to-day operations in Richmond.

In their fifth season in Richmond, the Squirrels once again led the Eastern League in both overall and average attendance. It was the third time the Squirrels topped the average attendance mark. Under Parney's leadership, the Squirrels have placed in the top-three among Double-A franchises, and top-25 among all minor league clubs, in average attendance in each of their five seasons.

Following the 2013 season, Parney was awarded his second Eastern League Executive of the Year Award. He had previously been honored in 2004 while the General Manager of the Altoona Curve. It marked the second EL Award for the Squirrels' front office (Chuck Domino - 2010).

After leading the Flying Squirrels to the 2010 Eastern League attendance title, "Parney" and the Squirrels saw an increase in average attendance during the 2011 regular season and were easily the top-draw during the 2011 EL postseason. For his efforts, and due to the team's success on the field and off, "Parney" was honored by Baseball America following the season with their top minor league award. He was named 2011 Baseball America Minor League Executive of the Year. The Flying Squirrels now boast the distinction of having two recipients of the award in their front office, as Chuck Domino was also recognized with the award in 2003 while with the Reading Phillies. Parney followed up his award-winning season by guiding the franchise to their second overall Eastern League attendance crown in 2012.

With his leadership, the franchise completed a 1.5 million dollar renovation of The Diamond, where they opened Eastern League play in 2010. During their inaugural season, the club quickly established itself as a leader in the community, while smashing corporate and ticket sales expectations. With "Parney" at the helm, the Flying Squirrels led the Eastern League in both overall and average attendance, welcoming 463,842 (6,626) fans to The Diamond. Through innovative marketing and branding initiatives, the club posted record-breaking merchandise sales, and was awarded Logo of the Year for 2010 by Ballpark Digest.

Upon the completion of their inaugural season, the franchise was recognized as the Richmond Business of the Year by the Greater Richmond Chamber of Commerce (GRCC). "Parney" also currently serves the Richmond Chapter of the Cal Ripken Sr. Foundation Board of Trustees, as well as the Richmond Police Athletic League Board of Directors. Due to his flamboyant nature and wealth of experience in professional sports, "Parney" has also become one of the most popular speakers and guest lecturers in the region.

Prior to joining the effort to return baseball to Richmond, "Parney" served as the President of the Greenberg Sports Group (GSG), which provides management, consulting and marketing services to the sports industry across the country. GSG also manages the overall operations of Minor League Baseball's State College (PA) Spikes (Short-A/New York-Penn League) and Myrtle Beach (SC) Pelicans (A/Carolina League). "Parney" held the title of President for both franchises.

2014 will mark Parnell's landmark 25th season in minor league baseball. In addition to his roles with both the State College and Myrtle Beach franchises, he spent seven seasons (2002-08) as the General Manager of the Double-A Eastern League's Altoona Curve, a position he relinquished in December, 2008, after the sale of the franchise from Curve Baseball LP to the family of Robert F. Lozinak.

During his time as the Curve's General Manager, the club set numerous single-game and season attendance records, continually re-invested private money into capital improvement projects at Blair County Ballpark, and helped the franchise gain national stature as one of the most creative and innovative teams in professional sports. The Curve won the prestigious Larry MacPhail Promotional Award in 2004, the 2006 Baseball America Freitas Award as the top Double-A franchise and added the highest honor bestowed annually upon a Minor League Baseball club, the John H. Johnson President's Trophy, in 2006. Altoona became only the 11th franchise to receive all three major awards, and was the first team to accomplish the feat in less than three years.

Prior to joining the Curve, the North Carolina native was the Vice President and GM of the Single-A Kannapolis (NC) Intimidators (formerly the Piedmont Boll Weevils) in the South Atlantic League from 1997 to 2001. During his tenure in Kannapolis, the club set attendance records (either overall or average) in each of his first four seasons and made the playoffs in 1998 and 2000. For his efforts, Parnell was named the 1999 South Atlantic League General Manager of the Year.

The 45-year old graduated from Messiah College in 1988 with a degree in physical education and a minor in business. He has two daughters, Lindsay (19) and Samantha (16).

A craft beer aficionado, Burnham currently resides in Richmond with his wife Cheyenne.

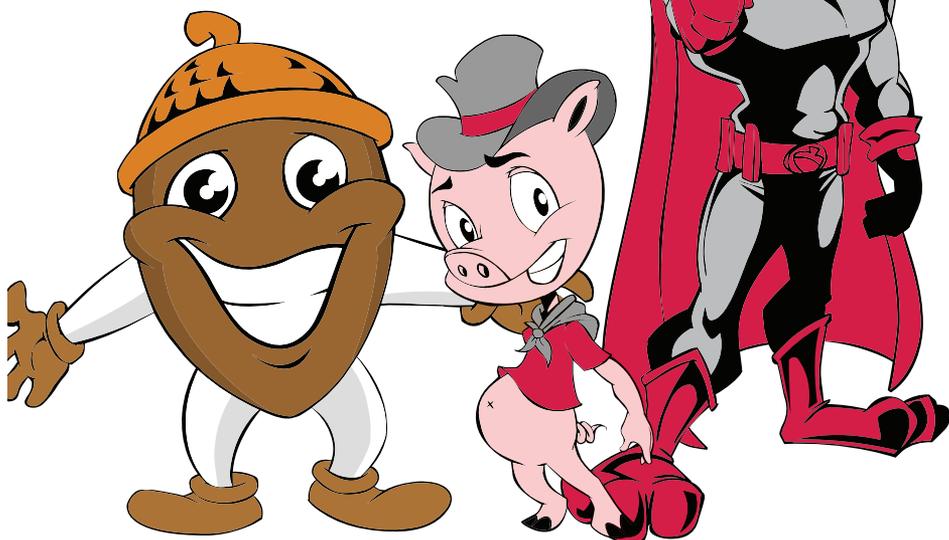

MASCOTS

Directors of Fun

After making a grand entrance into Richmond as the face of the Flying Squirrels in February, 2010, Nutzy has quickly become one of the most recognizable characters in the region. He participates in countless community events, and visits hundreds of schools each year. The rigors of his schedule were nearly too much even for the superhero, which is where his new friends have come in. As the franchise continued to grow its brand prior to their second season in the River City, they introduced Zinger the inflatable Acorn and Parker the Rally Pig. Each were introduced before the 2011 season with each name the result of a community-wide naming contest.

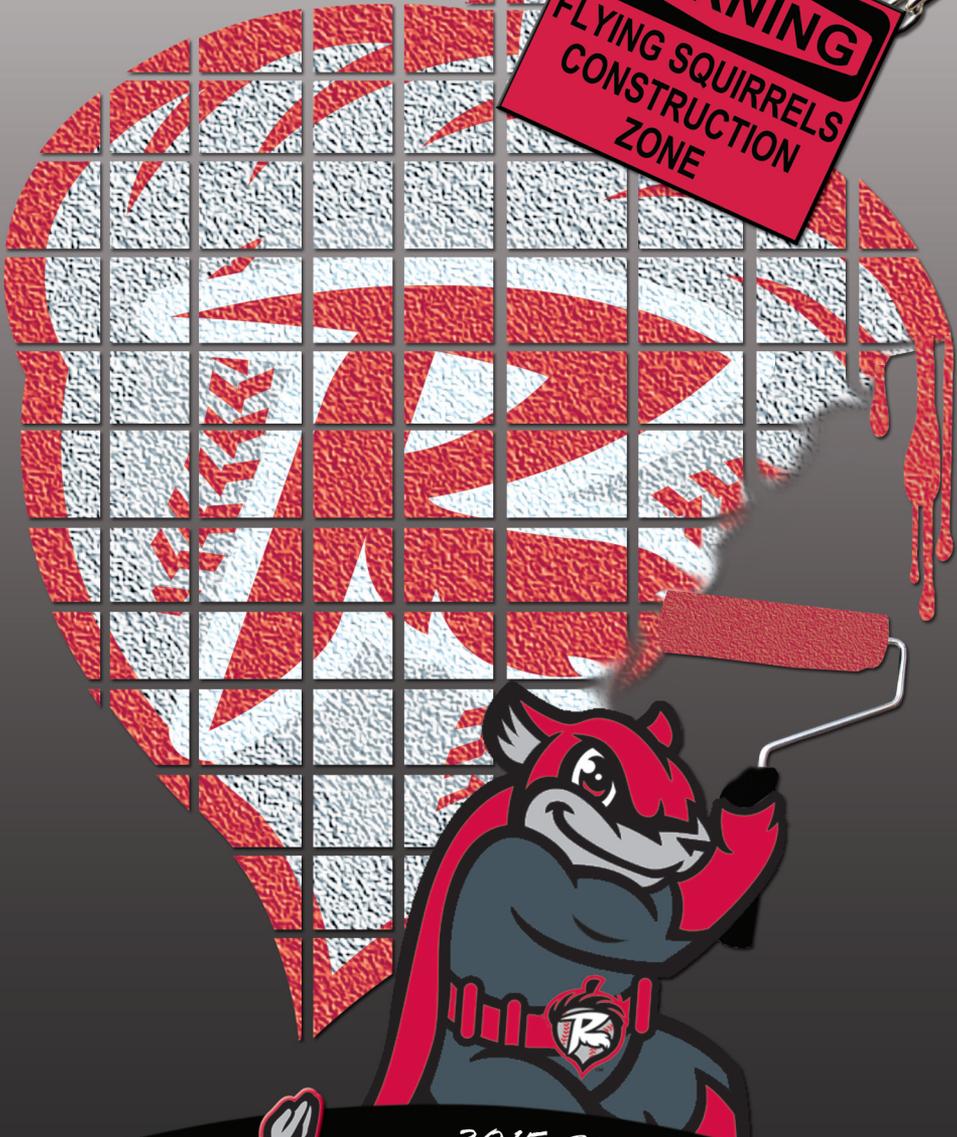

While Nutzy continues to keep the Diamond free of would-be-base-stealers, Zinger works to keep the energy up at the ballpark. Meanwhile, Parker, who enjoys the confines of three separate living pens on the Boulevard, appears upon the rare occurrence that the Flying Squirrels are trailing in a home ballgame. The trio serve as the main Flying Squirrels' mascots, but are also joined by secondary characters; Flingo "the Flamingo," the Molly Maid Dancing Drag Queens, the Racing Peanuts, Victor the Villain and Captain RRRVA.

Below: As the Flying Squirrels worked to build the characters that provide the entertainment at the ballpark and throughout the community, they created cartoon animations of each of their three main characters. Richmond-based Eastwood Media created the characters, each of which debuted during the 2012 season in the park, and on merchandise and giveaways.

He then returned to his instructor duties for the 2005 season and briefly coached in the Major Leagues with the Nationals at the end of the year. The Nats sent Alguacil back to Vermont for the 2006 season after a late offseason shake-up in the coaching staff. A strong showing with San Jose in 2014 would have placed Agosta on track for Double-A by the age of 24. Instead a disastrous year in the California League has slowed the former second rounder's progression. The Giants weren't scared away by Agosta's diminutive stature during the 2012 draft, and felt they got a steal in the second round. That might have had something to do with the success of the wafer-thin Tim Lincecum, who Agosta cites as his idol. The St. Mary's product impressed in his first full season in 2013, spending the year with Augusta (A) as a 22-year old. A blister issue and a bout of dead-arm limited him throughout the season, but he showcased advanced pitchability for the level to retire hitters. The ailments did force a dip in his velocity, which reportedly returned during instructional league. Many see Agosta as a reliever down the road, but the Giants will treat him as a starter for now. Agosta will need to put up some heavy numbers to earn a shot at Richmond in 2015. His best bet to reach the RVA this year is through a bullpen role.

Alvarado made the jump out of nowhere from Augusta to Richmond last year during the Squirrels playoff push. A lack of available arms from San Jose as well as a strong 2014 in the South Atlantic League led to the then 24 year-old finally pitching against others of the same age. A bit of a reclamation project for the Giants, Alvarado was cast aside without much of a look beyond the rookie league's from Detroit. He mostly was used to give the Squirrels innings down the stretch but his low 90's fastball faded quickly past his first inning of work. Alvarado remains a bit of a question mark and if he makes it through Spring Training he could find himself back at Richmond at some point. The Giants may decide to challenge him and see if his breaking pitches can develop a little more bite to succeed here in the Eastern League. San Jose is most likely his starting point, especially with a potentially crowded bullpen for Richmond. Alvarado possess large, likeable frame that could generate some additional velocity with another year in the Giants organization. He is not much of a prospect at this point and needs to prove he belongs.

2014 turned out to be a lost season for Arnold after a devastating knee injury sustained on Opening Night in New Britain ended his season before it started. The Giants had high hopes for Arnold to help develop and handle the prospect-heavy 2014 Squirrels pitching and it looks as though he will receive that opportunity once again in 2015. Clearly the organization wants Arnold to work with their top tier pitchers and Arnold has built a solid relationship with the elite arms in the system. The Louisville-product advanced along with those pitchers to San Jose (A+) in 2013, and once again provided a steady foundation for a team that posted the best record in the California League. An excellent receiver, Giants' instructors have entrusted the future of their pitching staff to the 27 year-old. He certainly should have been the choice to replace Andrew Susac in Richmond in 2013 when the prospect went down to injury. However, San Francisco didn't want to disrupt the chemistry established in San Jose. Arnold should be given the everyday catching duties in Richmond for 2015 and he should be able to help Kyle Crick, Clayton Blackburn and Adalberto Mejia develop.

Began the year as the Squirrels starting catcher but was injured (knee) during the first game in New Britain and missed the rest of the 2014 season...

2013

Spent entire season with San Jose (A+) where he appeared in a career-high 97 games and hit .251 ... Appeared in 7-of-8 postseason games, all as a catcher ... Threw out 32% (35-of-108) of base stealers ... Batted .429 (6-14) with bases loaded ... Was selected as a mid-season California League All-Star and went 1-1 with a BB in Carolina vs. California All-Star Game

2012

Split season between Augusta (A) and San Jose (A+) ... Began season with San Jose and appeared in 11 games. Was transferred to Augusta on 5/7 ... Played in 75 games with the Greenjackets and hit .293 (17-58) in the month of June ... Returned to San Jose 9/3 for final regular season game ... Was on San Jose postseason roster and appeared in game one of playoffs (0-2) ... Threw out a combined 36% (35-97) of base runners for the season.

2011

Spent all year with Augusta and hit .213 with six (6) HRs and 23 RBIs in 80 games ... Caught 41-of-88 base stealers (47%) ... Batted .240 (46-192) against RHP and .145 (11-76) vs. LHP ... Hit .302 (13-43) in month of July

2010

Appeared in 36 games with Salem-Keizer (A-), all as a catcher ... Hit two (2) homeruns on 8/7 at Eugene ... Threw out 40% (21-52) of base stealers...

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected by the Giants in the 26th round of the 2010 draft from University of Louisville ... Graduated Louisville Male High School (KY) in 2006 ... Tied the Babe Ruth World Series record with four hits in a single game ... Played all four collegiate seasons at Louisville (2007-2010) ... Was a Johnny Bench Award semifinalist (top college catcher) as a senior in 2010.

Bandilla was given an early opportunity to earn a high-leverage spot in Russ Morman's 2014 bullpen but struggled with his command at times leading to trouble at the Double-A level. The Giants decided to give the hard-throwing lefty some more seasoning at High-A where he finished the season. Despite the Eastern League struggles last year, Bandilla is still lefty with a big arm and limitless potential. The Giants tried him as a starter at Augusta (A) in 2012, but injuries shortened his season. The Arizona Wildcat found a new home in the San Jose (A+) bullpen in 2013 and showcased what the future may hold. The Sacramento, CA, native has admitted using only a fastball in high school, and that developing a curveball in college didn't "work out." However, his changeup has advanced to the point that he struck out 197 batters in 152.1 innings. Continued improvement with the changeup and a better feel of his breaking pitches could easily put Bandilla back on track. Bandilla should hold down a spot at the backend of the Squirrels' bullpen on opening day.

Began season in the Richmond bullpen and made Double-A debut on 4/4 in New Britain...Appeared in 15 games for the Squirrels and went 0-2 with an 8.80 ERA...Was sent to San Jose on 5/28 and finished the year in the California League...Saved a career-high nine (9) games and made 36 appearances with the SJ Giants.

2013

Pitched entire season in San Jose (A+) ... Made 38 appearances, all out of the bullpen, logging 44.1 innings ... Successfully converted five of six save opportunities ... Posted a 3.65 ERA with 25 walks and 72 strikeouts on the season ... Collected a season-high six (6) strikeouts over 2.0 innings of work on 4/10 @ Stockton, with no runs and no hits ... Appeared in a combined four games in July and August, due to a lingering injury landing him on the disabled list.

2012

Made his first professional start in Augusta (A) on 4/8 ... Made 11 appearances with the GreenJackets, nine of which were starts, while posting a 3.05 ERA over 44.1 IP ... Collected a career-high 10 strikeouts on 5/11 ... Started four games for AZL (14.0 IP, 2 BB, 20 SO).

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Was originally drafted by Cincinnati in the 28th round in 2008 out of Bella Vista High School (CA) but did not sign ... As a senior, turned in a 9-0 record with an exceptional 0.13 ERA, allowing a single earned run over 55 IP ... Was named league MVP as a senior ... Attended the University of Arizona ... Made a total of 55 appearances over two seasons, posting a 9-7 record in 126.2 IP (4.90 ERA) ... Received 2010 Pac-10 All-Conference Honorable Mention ... Was Giants' 4th round selection in 2011 ... Has said that he pitched in high school entirely with his fastball and that his fastball remains his primary pitch despite learning a changeup while at Arizona ... Grew up in Sacramento, but cites the Atlanta Braves as his childhood team of choice.

Bednar proved quickly he could hit against the younger competition during his first full season within the organization in Augusta. His arrival in San Jose last year was even more impressive, batting .300 in the month of July. The Florida Gulf Coast product may have run out of steam as his production waned towards the end of the year. Bednar appears to do a lot of things well and can play a variety of positions along the infield. With a penchant for playing the game, Bednar could fill a versatile roll for the Squirrels in 2015 if given the chance. The 23 year-old may arrive with a bit more fanfare than Squirrels 2014 utility man Myles Schroder, due to his top ten round selection. Most likely the Giants will send the 22 year-old back to the California League to see if he can consistently handle Advanced-A pitching. If things fall into place the right way, Bednar could make his way to Richmond after the All-Star break. While his overall MLB prospect ceiling may not be all that elevated at the moment, a standout 2015 could change that in an organization that has nurtured hard-nosed players who play the game the right way.

The durable Biagini turned in his more impressive season during the 2014 campaign. He led the San Jose Giants in innings pitched (128) and starts (23) while finishing 5th in the league in ERA (4.01). Armed with a upper 80's/low 90's fastball the UC Davis product was able to keep the ball on the ground in the hitter-friendly California League. Despite being a college level pitcher coming out of the draft in 2011, Biagini had appeared in only 20 game between UC Davis and the College of San Mateo. He did not pitch at all in 2010 due to Tommy John, perhaps leading to sub par results while in Augusta. There are some concerns that his success in 2014 came at the expense of also ran and lower level players. Top tier talent managed to hit Biagini well, but the transition to the spacious Diamond could play to the advantage of the 24 year-old. Barring a barrage of veteran MILB signings by the Giants, Biagini could easily start the year in the Richmond rotation, at least until Adalberto Mejia serves his 50 game suspension. That window could give the righty enough time to prove he belongs in the Eastern League.

Made California League debut on 4/7 in Lancaster and hurled six (6.0) shutout innings in a no decision...Led San Jose with 10 victories (career-high) and 128 innings pitched...Finished 5th in the league in ERA (4.01)...Held left-handed hitters to a .242 average....Right-handers hit .302 against him.

2013

Spent the entire season at Low-A Augusta and made 20 starts for the Greenjackets...Went 7-3 with a 5.03 ERA in 96.2 innings...Went 5-1 with a 3.81 ERA in the first half of the season but struggled down the stretch...Limited the opposition to a .186 batting average at Lake Olmstead Stadium...Opponents batted .316 against him on the road... Won six (6) of his first seven (7) decision.

2012

Split first professional season between Short Season Salem-Keizer and Augusta....Made pro debut on 4/9 and made nine starts for the Greenjackets...Was demoted to Salem-Keizer on 6/23 and finished the year with the Volcanoes...Went five or more innings in eight (8) of his 12 starts with the Volcanoes.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected by the Giants in the 26th round of the 2011 draft out of UC Davis...Played with UC Davis for one (1) season (2011) and went 3-1 with a 7.47 ERA...Also played two season at the College of San Mateo (2009 & 2010)... Born in Menlo Park, Calif.... Majoring in political science... Parents are Robert & Michele Biagini... Black is hoping to follow in the fast-track footsteps of fellow hard-throwing reliever Hunter Strickland. Black has had to battle a multitude of injuries during his career, including a torn labrum suffered while Spring Training in 2012. Even though he missed a full two years, the Giants believe Black can harness his upper 90's fastball and mid 80's slider to become a devastating late-inning reliever. He could be the most intriguing arm to arrive in Richmond during the 2015 season but there is a good chance he starts the year back with San Jose. The Giants will be as careful, if not more so, with Black then they were with Strickland upon his return from Tommy John last year so the progression could be slower than desired for the 24 year-old. If Black manages to make his Double-A debut this year, opposing Eastern League teams could find themselves looking at variety of hard-throwing relievers in the later innings. Black's biggest challenge will be staying healthy and making sure he throws enough strikes to keep more advanced hitters on their toes. Expect a post-All-Star break promotion if things go as planned.

Made professional debut on 4/3 with Augusta following two years of injuries... Did not appear again until 5/3 against GVL....Appeared in 33 games for the Greenjackets and struck out 64 batters in just 31.1 innings (18.4/9IP). A few injuries in 2014 slowed what was otherwise an uplifting season for one of the Giants top pitching prospects. Blackburn continued his ability to command his pitches but at times relied too much on his breaking stuff when in trouble. A pair of double-digit strikeout performance and nice solid finish to the year after the injuries (lat, fingernail) have upped Blackburn's status in a prospect-thin organization. The Giants seemed to have pulled off a coup of sorts, landing Blackburn in the 16th round of the 2011 draft. They paid him well above slot money, believing he was ready to turn professional. They were right, as he signed, rather than fulfill a commitment to Oklahoma. He dazzled as a 19-year old in the South Atlantic League in 2012, and showed an advanced feel for four pitches. He shot up Baseball America's list of Giants' prospects to #6 entering 2013. He had a descent enough 2013 with San Jose to earn the spot in the Richmond rotation last year. Now entering his age 22 season, Blackburn is primed to prove he can be a potential middle to back of the rotation starter.

2014

Made Double-A debut on 4/4 @ New Britain and allowed just one run in 5.0 innings pitched...Missed 44 games from 5/7-7/4 due to lat strain...Placed back on disabled list before next start on 7/17 (fingernail)...Struck out a career-high 11 batters on 8/16 @ POR...Induced 1.95 GO/AO and a team-high tying 17 double plays... Had four (4) double plays turned behind him on 5/1 and again on 5/13... Was 20 innings shy of qualifying for the league leaders in ERA...

2013

Spent entire season in San Jose (A+), where he compiled a 3.65 ERA over a team-high 133.0 IP ... Averaged 1.038 strikeouts per inning on the season while only walking 35 batters ... Named CAL Pitcher of the Week for the week ending 7/28, after striking out six in an eight-inning outing where he allowed just one run on three hits vs. LAN on 7/25 ... Threw a no decision in Game 4 of the CAL League Division Finals @ Visalia, where he gave up five (5) runs on seven (7) hits, striking out eight with one walk over 6.0 IP ... Rated as the #6 prospect in the San Francisco system prior to the season and the #10 prospect following it by Baseball America.

2012

Pitched entire regular season with Augusta, was promoted to San Jose for the playoffs ... At age 19, led the South Atlantic League in strikeouts (143), K-BB ratio (7.9) and WHIP (1.02) ... Struck out six (6) or more batters in 16-of-22 starts ... Had a pair of 10-strikeout performances (5/17, 8/20) ... Earned the victory in game one of the California League Playoffs over Modesto (7IP, ER, 3H, 9K) ... Rated the #21 prospect entering the season ... Former Flying Squirrels' First Baseman Wes Hodges, after spending two weeks with the GreenJackets, proclaimed that he felt Blackburn could pitch effectively in the big leagues now.

2011

Made professional debut with AZL Giants on 7/1 ... Appeared in 12 games with six starts and a combined 33.1 innings pitched ... Earned win in first round of the AZL playoffs (6IP, 2ER).

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Drafted by the Giants in the 16th round of 2011 out of Edmond Santa Fe High School (Edmond) ... Was committed to Oklahoma before signing an over-slot $150,000 bonus with San Francisco.

Blair, 27, emerged from the shadows after a slow beginning to his career. The former 46th round selection out of the University of Oklahoma hit a career-best .316 in 94 games with San Jose last year. It was a dramatic improvement from the .229 he hit in the California League the year prior. He fit a need for the Giants organization last year and made his way to Richmond for the final month of the season. Blair's reckless abandon style of outfield play resulted in several scintillating catches in centerfield at The Diamond. The former Sooner team captain managed to hit .240 in just under 100 at bats with the Squirrels and could once again find himself in the fourth outfielder mix to start 2015. His late round draft status and lack of prospect power could hurt when conceding time to some of the other young talent rising in the system. Still, he turned some heads last year and is the type of player a manager loves to have on his team. A lack of burner speed on the bases limits Blair in the tools department but he still has the ability to swipe a base and keep the defense honest.

Began season with Advanced-A San Jose...Hit .316 in 94 games for San Jose and was 8th in the California League in hitting prior to promotion...Made Double-A debut on 8/3 to replace Jarrett Parker but appeared in the box score for 5/22 while competing in the completion of a suspended game...Appeared in five playoff games and went 2-8 in the post season for the Squirrels...

2013

Spilt time between Salem-Keizer (A-) and San Jose (A+)... Appeared in 11 games for the Volcanos before being promoted to San Jose... Hit 18-58 (.310) against left handed hitters... Had a seven game hit streak between 4/14/13 and 4/20/13.

2012

Earned a promotion to Augusta (A)... Struggled at the A level, only hitting 10-55 (.182) against left handed hitters... Had 12 multi-hit games, including a three hit game on 4/26/12

Like 2012 Flying Squirrels' closer Brett Bochy, Ryan Bradley has an influential father in the San Francisco system. His father, Bert, is the Coordinator of Minor League Pitching Instruction for the Giants. In that role he oversees the development of all Giants' minor league pitching prospects. That includes Ryan, who has made a steady incremental climb through the system. Originally a reliever as a pro, Bradley made the move to the rotation while with Augusta (A) in 2011 and had markedly more success than he had in relief. He continued as a starter as he advanced to San Jose (A+) in 2012 where he proved durable, making 28 starts. Bradley was a member of the Squirrels' opening day rotation in 2013, but conceded an opponent average of .414 through his first seven starts and was placed on the disabled to work through some issues. He returned as a reliever after a month absence and had more success in a relief role. Innings will be much tougher to come by in the River City in 2014 than they were last year, and Bradley's placement at the outset of the season will largely depend on his performance in Spring Training.

Made three stops in the 2014 season, splitting time in San Jose (A+), Richmond (AA), and Fresno (AAA)... Spent the majority of the 2014 season in San Jose, where he made four starts and appeared in 17 games in relief... Pitched in 65 innings in 2014... Pitched a season high six innings against Modesto (A+) on 6/6/14.

2013

Continued annual climb through the system, spending the entire season in Richmond (AA), both as a starter and out of the bullpen ... Placed sixth on the team with 65.0 IP ... Successfully converted only SVO on 8/22 vs. Altoona ... Only allowed two of 11 inherited runners to score ... Opponents went 100-for-277 (.361 AVG).

2012

Spent entire season in San Jose and led the league in starts (28) ... Placed 5th in innings pitched (152.1) and 4th in walks allowed (58) ... Set a career-high in strikeouts with seven on 6/24 at Visalia ... Matched seven strikeouts on 8/28 at Lake Elsinore ... Opponents had a .296 batting average against. (183 hits).

2011

Spent the entire season with Augusta (Low-A), working as both a starter and a reliever with 28 total appearances ... Joined the starting rotation in July and final nine outings were as a starter ... Pitched to a 3.59 ERA in rotation (52.2IP, 2IER) and a 5.74 ERA out of bullpen (26.2IP, 17ER).

2010

Appeared in 18 games pitching entirely in relief for AZL.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Drafted in the 30th round of 2010 by giants out of Southern Illinois University ... Was originally drafted by the giants out of Mattoon High School (IL) in 50th round of 2006, did not sign ... Pitched two seasons at Kaskaskia College from 2007-08 ... Pitched two seasons 2009 and 2010 at SIU ... Was used exclusively as a reliever in his first season at SIU in 2009 ... Father, Bert, is the San Francisco Giants Coordinator of Minor League Pitching and was the San Jose pitching coach in 2000 and 2001.

The Giants signed Carbonell, 24, to a four-year, 3.1 million dollar deal after he defected from Cuba in 2013. He signed in mid-June and by September was a member of the Flying Squirrels postseason roster. The Giants did not hesitate in moving the swift center fielder along, especially after his hit .344 with seven stolen bases in just 21 games with San Jose. He immediately dazzled with his defense in a handful of high-pressure games in Richmond and should have no problem controlling The Diamond outfield. To make up for lost time, San Francisco opted to send Carbonell to the prestigious Arizona Fall League but he batted just .190 in 58 at bats with Scottsdale. Carbonell was a member of the Cuban National for four years but was used primarily as a backup. He registers as a member of the Giants 40 man roster and could move quickly if his talents allow. Carbonell is an athletic prospect that some scouts project as more of a fourth outfielder. There is a good chance he hits atop the order all year for Jose Alguacil and the Flying Squirrels.

First year in Giants organization.... Started the season with the AZL Giants (RK) and finished the regular season in San Jose (A+).... Saw playoff action with Richmond (AA)... Went 32-93 (.344) with San Jose and an OBP of .369... Played in 7 playoff games for the Squirrels, going 7-28 (.250) with two triples and two RBIs. Reported for the Arizona Fall League after the playoffs, hitting .190.

2013

Defected from Cuba, trained in the Dominican Republic.

2012

Made the switch to center field, his primary position in the organization currently... Spent half the year as a center fielder, appearing in 27 games in the outfield.... Committed four errors in 27 games.... Posted his best batting average as a pro as he went 59-198 (.298), and hit in 28 runs.

2011

In his second full season in the Cuban National Series, he saw a dip in his batting average, as he hit 53-195 (.272)... Stole 9 bases and knocked in 23 RBIs for Camaguey. Served as a designated hitter for Camaguey, only saw 3 games in the field as a first baseman.

2010

Appeared in 60 games as a 19 year old for Camaguey... Went 51-174 (.293) with 19 RBIs... Primarily a designated hitter, Carbonell played 3 games as a first baseman for Camaguey.

2009

Went pro in Cuba at age 18... Appeared in three games as an 18 year old for Ganaderos de Camaguey in the Cuban National Series.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

The younger brother of Giants' reliever Santiago Casilla, Jose Casilla was finally able to make his Double-A debut in Richmond after an elbow injury had kept him off of one for nearly two full seasons. Casilla did manage a few stints on the DL in 2014 but was still able to prove he could be an effective reliever in the Eastern League. He showed good command of his breaking ball that lead to his fair share of swing-and-misses. At times he was needed to pitch in extended outings and for the most part was able muddle through even as the fastball velocity decreased into his third inning of work. The pedigree and the stuff have always been there, and had it not been for Tommy John Surgery, both Casilla brothers may have been pitching out of the San Francisco pen by now. As it is, Casilla will open the 2015 season at the age of 25. Time has not passed him by, but he certainly has lost some. He pitched well enough in the Eastern League to earn a return visit to Richmond with a potential rise to Sacramento if things go well. He still profiles as a bullpen arm suitable for middle innings work. If he returns to the RVA to start the season, expect to see Casilla as one of the first options out of the pen when the starters are a shorter pitch-count.

Crick ranked as the top-prospect in the Giants organization according to Baseball America heading into his first Double-A campaign last year, but took a slight step back with control issues. He still checks in as the Giants #3 prospect and should once again be given every opportunity to display his plus fastball to Eastern League hitters. Despite some wildness and an inconsistent breaking ball, Crick was still able to turn in some jaw-dropping strikeout performances to build upon for 2015. At 22 years-old, Crick will once again be considered one of the top pitching prospects in the league and is still very much in the Giants future plans. He was raw when San Francisco drafted him in 2010, having spent most of his high school career as a first baseman. Which is one of the reasons the excitement surrounding Crick intensified after his first full season - spent with Augusta (A). As he matured in 2012, he allowed no runs during four June starts and just 11 total earned runs over his final 13 starts of the season. His fastball is still his calling-card, but BA also gives him credit for having the best breaking ball in the San Francisco system, and the Giants believe his best secondary pitch is his changeup. He has drawn comparisons, both inside and outside the organization, to Giants' ace Matt Cain. An oblique injury cost him two months of the 2013 season. Crick, along with Clayton Blackburn and Chris Stratton will once again provide another prospect-laden starting staff, hopefully with more direct results.

Played entire season with Richmond (AA)... Saw action in 23 games, starting 22 of them... Was the pitched on record for 13 games, going 6-7 with a 3.79 ERA....Went a season high six innings four times last year, going 2-1 in those four games... Right handed and left handed hitters were pretty even against Crick, hitting .232 and .235 respectively.

2013

Pitched entire season with San Jose (A+) ... Was selected to represent San Francisco in the prestigious MLB All-Star Futures game ... Led starting staff with 1.57 ERA over 14 starts ... Threw a season-high seven shutout innings, allowing two hits with 11 strikeouts vs. Visalia on 8/29 ... Allowed a single home run in 68.2IP ... Named California League Pitcher of the Week for week ending 9/1 after allowing only 11 earned runs in 11 starts upon activation from DL ... Had a 2.44:1 strikeout-to-walk ratio ... Picked up the win in game two of the CAL Division Finals vs. Visalia on 9/8 (7.0 IP, 0 ER, 8 SO).

2012

Spent entire season in Augusta (A) ... Allowed just one (1) HR in 111.1 innings pitched ... Was South Atlantic Pitcher of the Week for week ending 6/10 ... Started 22 games, made one (1) relief appearance on 9/2 ... Tossed a career-high seven shutout innings, allowing one hit with 10 strikeouts vs. Greensboro on 6/7 ... Almost repeated that performance nearly two months later on 8/1 vs. Rome (7IP, 0R, 1H, 7K.) ... Finished 5th in SAL in strikeouts (128) and 4th in walks allowed (67) ... Rated as having the best breaking ball in the South Atlantic League following the season

2011

Made seven relief appearances with the AZL Giants ... Professional debut 7/20 ... Earned first career win on 7/23 with 1.2 scoreless innings... did not allow a run in five of seven outings...

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected in the 1st round (supplemental) in the 2011 draft out of Sherman High School (Texas) ... Supplemental pick for loss of Juan Uribe ... Rated by BA as having the best fastball in Giants' organization entering 2013 ... Rated best breaking pitch in South Atlantic League following 2012 season ... Enters 2014 as the #1 ranked prospect in organization according to BA for the second consecutive season ... Played mostly first base in high school ... Was committed to Texas Christian University (TCU), but signed with the Giants for $900,000.

A solid season in San Jose earned Delfino a promotion to Richmond just in time for the playoffs. Delfino was thrown right into the fire for six postseason contests and almost certainly will return to the River City as the team's starting third baseman in 2015. The California native gives the Giants a consistent approach at the plate and impressed with 28 doubles and 12 home runs in the California League last year. He was recognized as a South Atlantic League Mid-season All-Star while in Augusta back in 2012 and has shown a knack to play a tough position. Even though he still isn't what you would consider a marquee prospect, he has handled the bat thus far would indicate that the Giants may have got 'ten a steal when they landed him in the 20th round. He may not hit double digit home runs in the Eastern League, especially at The Diamond, but he could easily hit towards the middle of the order as an important offensive piece. Delfino did not exactly dazzle in his pressure-filled playoff cameo last year, but that surely won't affect the 24 year-olds approach. Another sturdy season for Delfino, this time at Double-A, could vault Delfino into prospect territory.

Spent the entire regular season with San Jose (A+)... Appeared in 131 games with San Jose... Went 154 for 533 (.289)... Was 4th in at bats in the California League with 533... Finished 2nd on the team in RBIs with 77... Hit 13 home runs with San Jose, making him 3rd on the team... Was promoted to Richmond (AA) for the Eastern League playoffs... Appeared in 4 games at third base in the playoffs

2013

Played in 122 games for Low-A Augusta ... Named a South Atlantic League Mid-Season All-Star ... Led team in hits (129), doubles (25), home runs (13) and RBI (76) ... Hit grand slam on 4/26 @ Lexington, collecting a career-high six (6) RBI ... Strung together 11-game hitting streak from 8/19-8/30, six (6) of which were multi-hit games ... Was added to San Jose's playoff roster.

2012

Split first professional season between the AZL Giants and Salem-Keizer ... Batted .208 with seven runs before being assigned to the Volcanoes roster ... Had a .358 average at home, compared to .186 on the road ... Was second on the team with 12 doubles ... Went 3-for-4 with two (2) RBI on 7/13 vs. Yakima.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected by Giants in the 20th round of the 2012 June Draft ... Was teammates with current Giants' prospect Joe Kurasch at the University of California-Berkeley ... Hit first career grand slam as college sophomore vs. Utah ... Attended Cloverdale High School (CA) ... Was Cal Hi Sports Division V Male Athlete of the Year in 2009 after batting .591 with 10 doubles, five triples, five home runs and 35 RBI.

Forjet will hope to get another crack at San Jose in 2015 before making his way to Richmond. The 31st round selection out of Florida Gulf Coast took a step back to Salem-Keizer last year and stepped into the rotation after being used as both a starter and reliever in 2013 with San Jose. At 24-years old, Forjet had expected success against younger competition in the Northwest League and should take another run at the California League maybe this time sticking in the rotation. Forjet was both a starter and reliever in college and how the Giants decide to use him could go a long way in determining his arrival in Richmond. Forjet regained his command last year (1.66BB/9IP) after struggling to thrown strikes in 2013 (3.53 BB/9IP). The late-round selection does not resonated on any prospect rankings, but may find himself in Richmond if needed to fill in. His strikeout numbers have been above average throughout his career and it remains to be seen if he can limit enough contact to succeed at the next level.

Pitched the entire season with Salem-Keizer (A-)... Led the Northwest League in wins with seven.... Led the Northwest League in strikeouts with 87...His 2.70 ERA was the lowest among qualifying starters... Gave up a season low three hits in six innings of work on 8/9/14 against Boise (A-)

2013

Skipped two levels to spend season with Advanced-A San Jose ... Threw 63.2 innings, both as a starter and out of the bullpen ... Struck out a career-high eight (8) batters on 6/3 @ Modesto, allowing no runs on two (2) hits ... Compiled a pre-All Star break 2.42 ERA, compared to 5.66 during the second half of the season.

2012

Pitched in seven (7) games for the AZL Giants, including one (1) start.

Galindo faces a potentially crowded Richmond outfield and most likely will enter the season as the odd man out. Primarily a centerfielder, Galindo should return to San Jose to start the season until Daniel Carbonell is ready to move on. The 23 year-old has never been considered a top tier prospect but did represent the Giants in the 2013 Futures Game after a stellar start in Augusta. The 23 year-old has never really faltered at any of his stops along the way and managed another decent season last year in San Jose. Galindo has plus speed that has already translated into 231 career stolen bases despite never playing more than 101 games in a season. In 2011 he led the Northwest League in runs (49) and steals (47) and has not stolen fewer than 31 bases in full season play. The switch-hitter does not bring much power to the plate but can turn a base hit into a double and has also displayed the ability to get on base at the top of the order. At the moment he is blocked by Carbonell, however an injury or promotion could place him in Richmond by the All-Star break

Harris impressed in his first season with Richmond last year as he slugged 13 homers and 26 doubles in just over 100 games. The most impressive feat for Harris was his ability to adjust to Eastern League pitching quickly while making solid contact on off speed offerings. He missed the first month of the season nursing an injury at extended spring but proved to be a key part of the Squirrels Eastern League Eastern Division title. Harris will be 26 years-old soon after the opening Day and may have hurt his draft stock by returning to college for a final season in 2010. The Giants selected him near the end of the draft with his power being his primary calling card. His first two seasons in professional baseball didn't do much to draw attention, as he struggled mightily in his first crack at the California League at the advanced age of 24. However, Harris acclimated himself well in his second CAL league go-around, earning an All-Star nod and leading the league with 40 doubles. He also found his power stroke, placing fifth in the circuit with 23 home runs. His season wouldn't fall into the astonishing category, and it also didn't vault the North Carolina-native up prospect rankings, but it certainly did turn Harris into a viable home run threat. Defensively he still has some work to do on taking routes on balls to the alley and the vast space at The Diamond has proven to be challenging at times. Expect him to drive in runs while hitting in the middle of the Squirrels order in 2015..

Harris played his first season in the Eastern League with Richmond (AA)... Harris appeared in 108 games where he went 101-394 (.256)... 4th on the team in hits with 101... Led the team in doubles with 26... Was 2nd on the team in total bases with 172.

Johnson, a lanky, hard-throwing right-hander mixed his eye-popping strikeout rates with bouts of command issues during his time in San Jose last year. Despite his upper-90s fastball and 10K/BB ratio in the California League, he managed to fall out of the vaunted Baseball America Top 30 prospect ranking. Still he possesses the ability to become a dominant late inning threat and could fit in nicely with the Squirrels bullpen. The 6th round selection in 2012 out of St. Edward's College (Austin, TX, Division II) has always been able to limit contact, holding hitters to a career .232 batting average. He battled some injuries early on in his career but has been able to hold up over the past three seasons since turning pro. Johnson spent the majority of the 2014 season in the eighth inning but was rarely given the chance to close due to the presence of fellow hard-throwing relievers such as Steven Okert Tyler Mizenko and Bryce Bandilla. Entering the 2015 campaign, Johnson has a n excellent shot to join the Flying Squirrels' bullpen and may get into the mix of finishing games. If new Pitching Coach Steve Kline can reign in Johnson's control issues, then the sky is the limit. His biggest challenge will be dealing with more advanced hitters with better pitch selection.

Spent the 2014 season with the San Jose Giants (A+)... 2nd on the team in relief apperances with 49... pitched 69.0 innings with a 3.65 era... Left handed hitters had a .235 batting average against while right handed hitters had a .241 batting average against.

2013

Spent first full professional season with Augusta (A) ... Successfully converted all eight (8) save opportunities ... Had 2.37 K/BB ratio ... Had a pre All-Star break of 1-1-4, compared to going 4-0-4 after the break ... Pitched a 2.1 inning win vs. Rome on 7/31 with no runs on no hits, striking out six (6) ... Tabled as the #28 prospect in the SF system by BA.

2012

Began season with the AZL Giants (2 games) ... Made 17 relief appearances for short-season Salem-Keizer ... Posted 4.66 ERA ... Opponents batted .257 against.

Named to second-team All-Heartland Conference after posting 7-5 record with 3.56 ERA in 2011 ... Ended 2012 season just two saves shy of a national record (18/20) ... Struck out 74 batters in 43.1 innings of relief ... Named the 2012 Daktronics DII All-American, closer ... Selected by Giants in the 6th round of the 2012 June Draft.

Kurrasch went from not having a job to arguably being the most reliable arm in the San Jose rotation last year. He began the season in extended spring training and was bumped into the SJ rotation following an injury to Joan Gregorio. The 23 year-old posted a team-best 3.05 ERA in 91 innings pitched despite subpar strikeout and walk rates. The Penn State product is not known for his velocity but can locate his upper 80's fastball consistently enough to get outs at the lower levels. With Adalberto Mejia serving a 50-game suspension to begin the season, Kurrasch could slide into a spot start role with Richmond at some point. An 8th round selection in 202, Kurrasch struggled against younger competition during his first professional season in 2013 when posted an unenviable 5.03 ERA with Salem-Keizer. He was able to drastically turn things around for the final seven outings with Augusta and parlayed that strong 2013 finish into a solid 2014 with San Jose. Kurrasch may have to prove last year was no fluke before taking on the Eastern League.

Law was on the fast track to join the Giants in September after a stellar start in Richmond until he was removed from a game on June 8th in Reading. The initial diagnosis was "forearm tightness" but eventually that led to a torn UCL and Tommy John Surgery. That forced Law to miss the remainder of the season and the beginning of this one as he works his way back. As law recovers his plus fastball and devastating curveball it will most likely be in a similar fashion as Hunter Strickland's return a year ago. The Giants seem to have a proven method of working their hard-throwing relievers back from Tommy John (Strickland and Black) and Law could find his way back to the RVA during his return this year. The Giants selected Law in the 9th-rounder of the 2012 draft out of Miami Dade JC and did not attempt to change his quirky delivery. His only real weakness last year was the 14 walks he issued in 28 innings pitched. Throughout his career he has displayed the ability to command his pitches and walked only one batter in 25.2 innings pitched with San Jose in 2013. He posted a 45-1 K/BB ratio in the California League and jumped up the prospect rankings with an impressive 11 appearances in the prestigious Arizona Fall League in 2013. Giants' skipper Bruce Bochy has taken notice of the Pittsburgh, PA, native during big league spring training last year and Law still ranks as a top-rated prospect (#23) and he should easily work his way back into the Giants bullpen conversation as he rehabs.

Law spent the entire 2014 season with Richmond (AA)... Led the team in saves with 13... Saved 13 out of 14 save opportunities... Started the year with five straight appearances (4/05/14-4/16/14) without giving up a hit... Left game on 6/8 @REA with forearm tightness... Had Tommy John surgery on 6/26/14.

2013

Split season between the AZL Giants (rookie), Augusta (A), and San Jose (A+) ... Pitched a total of 66.1 innings with a 2.31 ERA and .206 average against ... Led team with 21 games finished ... Struck out four (4) or more batters in 10 games ... Earned win after allowing no runs on only one (1) hit in a 2.0 inning outing on 8/30, striking out six of seven batters faced ... Invited to Arizona Fall League following season, holding opponents to a .186 average with a 0.00 ERA in eleven appearances ... Rated #12 prospect in the Giants' system by BA.

2012

Spent entire season in Augusta (A) bullpen ... Struck out a career-high seven (7) batters on 6/10 vs. Rome ... Saved two games in six chances ... Held opponents to a .216 average ... Struck out 67 in 55.2 IP (10.9 SO/9) ... Allowed just one run at home all season long (27.1 IP) versus 19 runs on the road (28.1 IP).

2011

Opened professional career on 7/13 for the AZL giants ... Appeared in 15 games out of the bullpen and converted all four save opportunities ... Tossed 12 scoreless outings.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Drafted in the 9th round of 2011 out of Miami Dade Junior College ... Graduated Seton LaSalle Catholic High School (Pittsburgh) ... Selected in same draft as Miami Dade teammate Brian Goodwin (Washington, 1st RD Sup.) ... Was drafted by the Rangers in the 28th round of 2009 but did not sign ... His father Joe Law pitched in the minor leagues for a decade, including parts of four seasons at Triple-A. He was 64-49 overall ... Joe Law (father) was on the major league roster of the Oakland Athletics for four days once but never appeared in the show.

OF Chris Lofton

Height/Weight: 6-1/175
 Bats/Throws: Left/Right
 Born: May 20, 1990 in Jackson, MS
 Resides: Raleigh, MS
 Acquired: Selected by the Giants in the 9th Round
 2010 MLB June Draft

Lofton, a three-sport star in high school, is a speedy centerfielder who took a step back last year after a difficult start in San Jose. He spent all of 2012 and 2013 in the California League and was able to have success getting on base despite strikeout woes. A ninth round pick out of Jones County Junior College in Mississippi, where he also starred on the football field, Lofton's primary weapon remains his speed. He notched 11 triples in 2013 and stole 21 bases in just 96 games last year. He plays solidly defensively in the outfield but hasn't had enough success to gain prospect status thus far in his career and may be running out of time to show development steps at his 25 years-old season. Still, he has stolen 20 or more bases in each of his full seasons as a professional and has the tools that scouts love. The Giants should give Lofton another crack at San Jose and the clock is ticking for him to turn his talent into results on the field. The Squirrels will have a crowded outfield in 2015 and Lofton will try to step up and not allow any more of the younger prospects to pass him by. A sighting in Richmond may only occur this year if injuries and promotions break the right way for him.

Lollis, 27, has become a Richmond mainstay over the past several years and has developed into more of an organizational role for the Giants, having played from San Jose to Fresno the last three seasons. He may not be the fastest outfielder available on the roster but makes up for any potential shortcomings with a gritty style of play as well as the ability to make solid contact. He has hit at every level he has played in his career, including being the most consistent Flying Squirrel offensively in 2013. He didn't boast staggering numbers, but then again, that has always been the Texans game. Last year Lollis struggled with inconsistent playing time and hit a career-low .217 in 70 games with the Squirrels. He finished out the year in San Jose and rebounded nicely against the younger competition. There is a good chance Lollis finds himself in a similar reserve role in 2015 with Richmond and if so he could be better equipped to produce on the field. Having a versatile player like Lollis on the roster will give new Squirrels Manager Jose Alguacil enough flexibility to rotate his power bats into the DH slot against American League affiliates.

Split season with Richmond and San Jose...Began year with the Squirrels and appeared in 70 games while hitting .217 with 21 runs scored... transferred to San Jose on 8/5 and finished season with the SJ Giants...Hit .275 with three (3) homers down the stretch.

Lujan played four years of collegiate baseball at the University of San Francisco and hopes to return to the Bay Area one day wearing a Giants uniform. At 25 years-old he more than handled the younger competition in Augusta last year and was rewarded as the starting pitcher in the All-Star game and a mid-season bump to San Jose. Lujan has only really known a starting role and should find himself towards the top of the rotation in San Jose to begin the 2015 season. He does not blow away the competition with a mid-90's fastball but can locate his pitches well and get hitters to chase on the breaking ball. There is a good chance he heads back to the hitter-friendly California League in an attempt to duplicate his success through 12 starts there last season. His strikeout and walk rates have remained consistent at each stop since being selected by the Giants in the 7th round of the 2012 draft. The lefty has the frame and durability to remain a starter if his stuff will play at the higher levels. He may get the opportunity to prove just that at some point in Richmond during the 2015 season.

Started the year in Augusta and posted a 2.19 ERA in 12 games...Started the South Atlantic League All-Star game and then promoted to San Jose (A)... Held left handed hitters to a .205 batting average against...

2013

Spent his second pro season with Augusta (A-)... Tied for third in wins with seven...Started 12 games for Augusta... Had an ERA of 3.33 in 78.1 innings pitched.

2012

Began his professional career with the AZL Giants... Started seven games and threw in relief in 4 games.... Left handed hitters had a .086 average against him.... Did not give up an earned run in relief.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Played all four years at the University of San Francisco... Signed by San Francisco as an undrafted free agent.... Named 2008 West Coast Conference All-Freshman team....2008 Louisville Slugger Freshman All-American... 2011 West Coast Conference Honorable Mention... After a few twists and turns in the road for Marte, he finally made his way to Richmond as a member of the 2015 rotation. Throughout May and June Marte developed into the most consistent pitcher for the Squirrels and he was eventually rewarded with a trip to Triple-A Fresno to finish the season. The Giants signed Marte as a 19-year old out of his native Dominican Republic in 2007 and then watched as he made a dazzling pro debut in the Dominican Summer League. Sporadic injuries plagued him during his first three seasons in the U.S., and he failed to log more than 42.1 innings in a season between 2008 and 2010. He was finally able to stay healthy in 2011, and racked up 12 wins for San Jose (A+) while finishing 5th in the California League in ERA (3.57). Due to that performance, he was expected to be a member of the 2012 Flying Squirrels' starting rotation. However, he broke the hamate bone in his left hand during spring training, missed the first three months of the season, and never made it to Richmond. He appeared primed to join the Squirrels at the outset of 2013, but was once again slowed by a freak injury in spring training. Marte was finally able to prove he could succeed at Double-A but struggled during his six starts in Triple-A last year. He is a solid candidate to start back in the Richmond rotation.

2014

Began season in Richmond rotation and made Double-A debut on 4/8 vs. BOW...Pitched 7.0 innings or more in four (4) of his 15 starts...Won five (5) consecutive decisions from 5/21-6/22...Promoted to Fresno on 7/21 and made six (6) starts with the Grizzlies to finish the season.

2013

Spent entire season with San Jose (A+) ... Compiled 6-4-0 record over 15 starts and 10 relief appearances ... Had a 4.2:1 strikeout-to-walk ratio (80 SO, 19 BB) ... Opponents batted .258 against ... Picked up the win in game five of the California League Division Finals on 9/11 vs. Visalia (1 R, 4 H, 2 SO, 0 BB) for a spot in the Championship Series.

2012

Line drive in Spring Training broke hamate bone in left hand and missed most of the first three months ... Appeared in seven (7) games with AZL Giants starting 6/22 before heading to San Jose (A+) on 7/18 ... Made first three High-A appearances out of the bullpen before being bumped into starting rotation following trade of Seth Rosin to Philadelphia in Hunter Pence deal ... In seven (7) starts at the end of the season Marte flashed his All-Star past with a span of 16 consecutive scoreless innings ...

2011

Spent the entire season with Advanced-A San Jose ... Compiled a 12-6 mark with a 3.47 ERA in 25 starts with San Jose ... Finished t-2nd in the California League in wins (12) and ranked fifth in ERA (3.47) ... Named Cal League Pitcher-of-the-Week for the week of June 6-13 ... Was selected to Cal League's Mid-Season All-Star team ... Went 0-1 with a 9.00 ERA in one postseason start.

2010

Pitched for three Giants farm clubs, AZL Giants (R), Low-A Augusta and Advanced-A San Jose ... Posted a 1-0 mark with a 2.73 ERA in seven appearances, including four starts with Augusta ... Made one start with San Jose at the end of the season and allowed six earned runs in 3.2 IP.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Signed by the Giants as a non-drafted free agent on April 11th, 2007 ... Spent one year in the Dominican Summer League before making his domestic debut in 2008 with Salem-Keizer ... Dominated the DSL striking out 91 batters in 61 innings in 2007 ... Began his career as a reliever, but was converted to a starting role in 2008 ... For the first year or so of his career most publications and reference sites thought he was a right-handed pitcher, but he does indeed pitch left-handed.

McCormick has already worked his way into the Squirrels record books, having appeared in 108 games (3rd) during his first two seasons in Richmond. The side-winding lefty knows his path to the next level is by way of limiting left-handed hitters and he did just that for the Squirrels last year. Lefties hit just .212 off McCormick and whiffed 32 times in 85 at bats. Some of the struggles for McCormick over the past two years can be attributed to a shortage of options in the Richmond bullpen leading to usage for him outside of the specialist role. A 31st-round draft selection of the Giants in 2011, McCormick got off to a phenomenal start to his professional career. At his first post-Salem-Keizer (A-) - the lefty made 23 appearances and posted a razor-thin ERA of 1.19. The Giants were impressed enough that they jumped the 26 year-old a level and stationed him in San Jose (A+) to open the 2012 season. He responded by turning in a league-high 61 appearances out of Andy Skeels' bullpen. He held left-handed batters to an average of .177 and appeared for less than an inning in more than half of his outings. McCormick should advance to Sacramento (AAA) and return to his specialist duties to open 2015, but repeating the Eastern League is also not out of the question.

Spent his second full season with Richmond (AA)... Was second in the Eastern League in pitching appearances with 50...Pitched 65.1 innings with a 3.72 ERA... Did not give up more than one hit in his last 25 appearances in Richmond.

Did not allow an earned run in 42 of 58 games ... Stranded 38 of 52 inherited runners ... Was a mid-season Eastern League All-Star ... Finished season with a 3.97 ERA and 4-5-3 record ... Went 1-for-1 at the plate on 8/22 vs. Altoona.

Spent entire season in San Jose (A+) and appeared in a California League-leading 61 games ... Held lefties to a .177 average (14H/79AB, HR) compared to .288 for righties (32H/111AB, 0HR) ... Pitched less than one full inning in 32 of 61 outings ... Made two post-season appearances ... Was losing pitcher in game two vs. Modesto (0IP, BB, R) ... Pitched 1.1 scoreless innings in game three.

Sent to Salem-Keizer (A-) and made professional debut on 6/19 ... Made 23 appearances, all out of the bullpen ... Saved six (6) games in nine (9) opportunities ... Ranked 4th among relievers in the league, holding batters to a .178 average ... Did not allow a run in nine July outings (11.2 IP) ... A Dominican-native, signed for $350,000 by the Giants, Mejia has soared through the minor leagues and was challenged by the Giants to attack the Eastern League last year at the young age of 20. The lefty found some bumps along the way but finished strong for the Squirrels down the stretch with a 2.95 ERA in August. His stock still remains even though he will have to sit out the first 50 games of the year after testing positive for a banned stimulant from a weight loss drug. Mejia bolted up the prospect ladder in 2013 when he tackled the California League and was the circuit's youngest starting pitcher at the age of 19. He more than admirably handled himself, posting a 3.31 ERA and striking out 89 batters in 87 innings. Reports from San Francisco indicated that he had added 2-3 mph to his fastball as his body continued to mature. He has solid command of his arsenal at can fall into a trap of throwing too many strikes to advanced hitters. He checks in at #6 on Baseball America's list of Giants' top prospects. He is listed behind Tyler Beede, Kyle Crick, Clayton Blackburn and Keury Mella, and the possibility exists once again to have at least three of the Giants top pitching prospects in the rotation during 2015. The Giants will certainly push and monitor Mejia at the Spring Training complex until he is eligible to return from suspension and rejoin the Squirrels staff.

Spent entire season in Flying Squirrels rotation....Made Double-A debut on 4/5 @NB...Documented as making one relief appearance on 5/22 in the resumption of a suspended contest....Entered season as the #4 prospect in the Giants system...Held left-handed hitters to a .225 batting average...Allowed a team-high nine (9) home runs...Suspended 50 games following the season after testing positive for a banned substance (sibutramine).

2013

Played most of the season with San Jose (A+), making one appearance with Triple-A Fresno ... Struck out 89 batters in 87.0 innings pitched in the California League ... Held lefties to a .191 average against, compared to .242 for right-handed batters ... Picked up win in game three of the CAL Division Finals @ Visalia (6.0 IP, 2 ER, 9 H, 5 SO) ... Took the loss in game three of the Championship Series vs. Inland Empire, allowing two (2) earned runs on six (6) hits over 6.1 innings pitched, striking out five (5).

2012

Spent entire season with Augusta (A) ... Pitched complete game on 8/3 vs. Charleston ... Named South Atlantic League Pitcher of the Week after six scoreless no-hit innings @ Savannah on 6/24 ... Received same honor for week ending 8/12 after an eight inning victory with no runs on five (5) hits, striking out six (6).

SO: 7, 8/24/13 @ HIC

A 26th round selection out of Florida International University, McVay has provided the Giants with a solid left-handed strikeout option out of the pen. The 6-7 southpaw punched out 83 batters in just 72 innings worked in his first season with San Jose Last year. He had similar numbers in his full season debut with Augusta in 2013 and has been able to throw multiple innings of relief to aid the bullpen. He had some difficulties adjusting to the California League in April but was able to rattle off a 19 inning scoreless streak in May and June. The Miami native played three seasons at FIU (2009-2012) but had to sit out the 2010 campaign while recovering from Tommy John Surgery. He was pushed into the rotation his final year as a Golden Panther but has really only been used as a reliever with the Giants. His ability to throw more than one inning per outing could be critical to his advancement to a Richmond bullpen that will feature single-frame workers. He will be an intriguing option for the Squirrels at some point in 2015.

2014

Spent the entire 2014 season in San Jose (A+)... Was 2nd on the team and 3rd in the league in holds... Led the team with lowest batting average against with .232... Third on the team in relief appearances with 47.

2013

Earned a promotion to Augusta (A)... Appeared in 51 games for Augusta, which led the South Atlantic League... Was third in the South Atlantic league with 10 holds... Left handed hitters went .226 against him

2012

Began his professional career in Salem Keizer (A-)... Threw 30.1 innings pitched in 18 games with a 1.19 ERA... Did not give up a hit in his last 8 games (8/7/12-9/1/12).

The Giants proved their belief in Miller last year when he was promoted to Richmond in August and immediately designated to hit towards the top of the order. The Western Oregon product hit .304 down the stretch for the Division Champion Squirrels and was named the San Jose Giants "Offensive Player of the Year." He was leaned on to lead the offense in the post season but the Squirrels struggled to score runs as a unit. Miller should be eager to return for a full season at the Double-A level and should open up the season as the number two or three hitter in Jose Alguacil's lineup. Since his high school days, Miller has studied under the tutelage of Giants Coordinator of Hitting Steve Decker and the Giants are a fan of his desire and work ethic. Miller spent two seasons at Sacramento State before transferring to WOU and was scooped up by the Giants in the 25th round of the 2013 draft. Since then he has moved quickly through the system and has produced at each level. His draft status and lack of a high ceiling have kept him off the prospect lists but he will have the opportunity to change that in 2015 with Richmond.

Began the season in San Jose (A+) and ended the season in Richmond (AA)... Had two four hit games with San Jose... Hit .348 in the Eastern League against left handed pitchers... Had seven extra base hits with Richmond... Played in all seven of Richmond's playoff games... Promoted to Richmond on 8/2 but appeared in the resumption of a suspended game dated 5/22 as official Squirrels debut...

Started his professional career with the AZL Giants... Went 8-38 (.211)... 10 Walks in 16 games, leading to a .412 on base percentage... Promoted to Salem-Keizer (A-)... Improved greatly in Salem-Keizer, hitting 109-364 (.309)... Hit .389 against left handed pitchers...

Mizenko provides the Giants with another polished collegiate bullpen arm that can deliver innings and results. Selected in the 28th round of the 2011 draft out of Winthrop University, Mizenko relies on his sinkerball for outs. He posted a sublime 2.45 ground out/fly out ration last year in San Jose while also closing out 14 games. He was even more impressive with the sinker in his first full season with Augusta in 2013, leading the Giants organization with a 3.63 ground out/fly out ratio. Mizenko will turn 25 on Opening Day and could slot into the Squirrels bullpen if things break the right way. Despite a history of closing out games, including two years as the stopper with Winthrop, the righty profiles more as a setup man and could settle into a middle innings role with the Squirrels. Reports are he can top out with his fastball at 95 MPH with a max effort but he primarily lives off the sinker/slider combo and throws in the low 90s. The ability to get groundballs at-will should allow him to enter high pressure situations with runners on base. Last year it appears he took a big step forward with his command (2.47BB/9IP) but as with most sinker/slider pitchers he did allow his fair share of contact. A solid defense behind him is key, ala former Squirrels pitcher Craig Westcott.

Spent the entire season with San Jose (A+) ... Led the California League in games at 59... 2nd in the California League in holds with 12... 2n on the team in saves with 14... Pitched 62.0 innings with a 3.48 ERA... Appeared in 16 straight games without giving up a hit (6/6/14-7/13/14).

2013

Spent first full professional season with Augusta (A) ... Led South Atlantic League with 25 saves and 44 games finished ... Involved in three combination shutouts (4/5 vs. Lexington; 4/11 @ Charleston; 4/21 vs. Kannapolis) ... Appeared in a staff-second 48 games, posting a 2.75 ERA ... Opponents batted .227 against ... Was a SAL Mid-Season All-Star.

2012

Appeared in 24 games with short-season Salem-Keizer ... Had the lowest BB/9 IP ratio (1.14) in the Northwest League ... Collected the most saves (13) and games finished (20) among Volcanoes staff ... Posted a 3-0-13 record with a 1.99 ERA ... Did not allow an earned run in 19.0 innings in June and August ... Struck out 29 batters, only walking five (5) ... Did not allow a home run ... Would have had 0.90 ERA if not for two worst outings on 7/5 and 7/17 (4 ER, 1.2 IP).

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected by Giants in the 28th round of the 2011 June Draft ... Graduated from Hamden Hall Country Day School ... Named All-Fairchester League MVP in 2008 ... Attended Winthrop University ... Set school record for saves in a season with 14 ... Entered 2010 season as a second-team pre-season All-American by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association ... There was not much more Okert could have done to earn his 2014 mid-season promotion last year from San Jose to Richmond. The hard-throwing lefty dominated the California league in his first go around by striking out 54 batters in 35.1 innings pitched. He discovered things were a little bit more difficult in the Eastern League but still finished with an impressive 2.73 ERA in 24 appearances for the Squirrels. Okert's most notable trait is his funky delivery that works its way across his body. The Giants have had success with unorthodox deliverers (Law, Lincecum) and believe they may have yet another of those types with Okert. He was sent to the prestigious Arizona Fall League after the Squirrels year came to a close and he continued to impress in his ten outings with Scottsdale. Some scouts referenced him as the most dominate reliever in the circuit. The Brewers tried to draft Okert twice in the later rounds during his time at Grayson County Community College but Okert opted transferred to OU and bumped his status to a fourth round pick. If he does wear a Squirrels uniform in 2015, it should not be for long.

2014

2014 saw his first season in the Eastern League with Richmond (AA)... Made 5 saves for the Squirrels... Left handed hitters hit .167 against him.

2012

Pitched 2.0 innings with the AZL Giants before being sent to Salem-Keizer (short-season) ... Compiled 2-0-0 record with a 2.36 ERA over 26.2 innings ... Struck out twice as many as were walked (22/11).

Height/Weight: 6-3/225
Bats/Throws: Left/Right
Born: December 15, 1989 in Rancho Cucamonga, CA
Resides: Rancho Cucamonga, CA
Acquired: Selected by the Giants in the 3rd Round
2011 MLB June Draft

A product of the University of Southern California, Oropesa was challenged by the Giants after they drafted him in the 3rd round of the 2011 draft. He spent his first professional season at San Jose (A+), bypassing the lower levels of the minor leagues. The 24-year old didn't disappoint from a power or production standpoint, belting 16 home runs and driving in 98 runs. There was some concern over his 150 strikeouts and unfortunately that power has not carried over during his two stints in the Eastern League. San Francisco continued to aggressively challenge the Trojan in 2013, opening him in Richmond at the beginning of the year. He never seemed to acclimate to the Eastern League, batting .207 in 66 games. As former top-prospect Angel Villalona rounded into form at the same position in San Jose (A+), the Giants made the decision to swap the two and sent Oropesa back to the California League. As he did in 2012, Oropesa enjoyed success in the hitter-friendly circuit, batting .295 the rest of the way. For now, it appears as though Oropesa has been passed on the depth chart, but his prodigious power potential will always keep him in the mix.

Osich slipped to the 6th round of the 2011 draft after having Tommy John surgery during his Junior year at Oregon State. San Francisco saw early-round potential in the left-hander however, and spent $450,000 on him to make sure he was a Giant. He didn't get on the mound in his first season after signing, and was treated delicately in his first professional season in 2012. He never pitched on back-to-back days, and logged just 32.1 innings for the season. His season was also shortened due to a pair of bouts of soreness in his arm. In 2013, the Beaver maintained his health throughout the year, and got off to a nice start to the season in San Jose (A+). The Giants saw enough to advance him to Richmond, where he had mixed success, but was also exposed for relying too heavily on his fastball. He returned to the Squirrels in 2014 and was limited to just 28 games and eventually shut down in July due to a should impingement. Osich has lost a little bit of his velocity and now profiles more as a middle innings reliever if he can stay healthy. He could get one more shot at Richmond to open 2015 if all goes well in Spring Training

Spent his third season in professional baseball in the Eastern League with Richmond (AA)... Pitched 33.1 innings with a 3.78 ERA... Left handed hitters hit .222 against him

2013

Opened the season with San Jose (A+), making 34 appearances for the Giants ... Posted a 3-1 record with 2.45 ERA, converting 12-of-14 save chances ... Did not allow an earned run in 13 consecutive outings (4/26-5/25), spanning 14 innings ... Struck out 48 in 40.1 IP with San Jose ... Was named to the California League Mid-season All-Star Team and participated in the Carolina/California League All-Star Game ... Promoted from San Jose to Richmond (AA) on July 2nd ... Made Double-A debut on July 2nd at Reading throwing a perfect inning ... Made 22 total appearances with Richmond, compiling a 4.85 ERA in 29.2 IP.

2012

Spent first full season in San Jose (A+) bullpen ... Made professional debut with scoreless inning of relief on 4/6 at Modesto ... Allowed just one (1) home run in 32.1 innings pitched ... Struck out the side twice 4/29 & 8/31 ... had two stints on the disabled list: April 30-June 1 (elbow) and July 26-August 17 (shoulder) ... Made two scoreless appearances in postseason. (2IP,2H, 3K) ... Rated #20 prospect following the year

2011

Did not pitch professionally after signing ... Rated #23 prospect following the season...

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Drafted and signed by the Giants in the 6th round of 2011 out of Oregon State University ... Was originally selected in the 7th round of 2010 by the Los Angeles Angels but did not sign ... Graduated 2007 from Bishop Kelly High School (ID) ... Missed entire 2010 season (Junior year) recovering from Tommy John Surgery ... Payne was lightly regarded coming out of Georgia Southern in 2011 and the Giants were able to grab him in the 35th round. He enjoyed tremendous success in his first two professional seasons, eclipsing .300 in each. That included batting .309 during his first full professional season, spent with Augusta (A). He also stole a whopping 53 bases that year and was caught just three times. Payne has had difficulties replicating hat success and has been stuck at San Jose the previous three seasons. Payne seems to have plateaued and with his contact rates while his stolen bases have diminished. His career .375 OBP suggests he can work the count but he strikes out too much to profile as a leadoff hitter. Better success last year would have probably set up Payne to make his Double-A debut this year. Even with his status quo 2014, the Giants may decide it's time to see what he can do in the Eastern League. He is one of several outfielders who could make his Double-A debut in 2015.

2014

Started the season in Augusta (A) and earned a promotion to San Jose (A+) after 18 games... Hit in 13 out of 18 games in Augusta before being promoted... Hit 23-74 (.311) against left handed pitching... Had 21 multi hit games in San Jose, including four three hit games... Hit .328 while batting second in San Jose

2013

Split season between San Jose (A+) and Augusta (A) ... Stole 21 bases while in San Jose, good for second on the team ... Had ten-game hitting streak from 4/10-4/19, scoring nine (9) runs ... Had a career high four (4) hits on 4/27 @ Modesto ... Played in 36 games after being sent to Augusta, batting .259 with 21 walks and 29 strikeouts ... Had a .966 fielding percentage on the season.

2012

Hit .309 in 116 games while with Augusta, 6th best in SAL ... Finished 2nd in stolen bases (53) and 4th in on-base percentage (.413) ... Led the GreenJackets in batting average (.309), runs (66), triples (6), RBIs (57) and stolen bases (53) ... Promoted to San Jose 9/2 and appeared in two regular season games ... Went 3-5 in first game with San Jose ... Placed on San Jose post-season roster, led off all three playoff games. (3-13)

2011

Played entire season with Salem-Keizer (A-) ... Led the league with a .410 on-base percentage ... Finished 4th in league with 21 stolen bases, was caught six (6) times ... Led team with 29 walks.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Selected by the Giants in the 35th round of the 2011 draft out of Georgia Southern University ... Was additionally selected in both 2009 (Dodgers, 29th round) and 2010 (Royals, 44th round), but did not sign ... Played two seasons at Middle Georgia College, transferred to GSU for junior year (2010).

Ragira, a fourth round selection out of Stanford, may have passed some of the other Giants first base prospects on the depth chart with a 20 home run season for San Jose during his first full year in 2014. His .260 average and 27% strikeout rate would indicate that his is more of an all-or-nothing power bat that needs to pick up some more discipline. With right-handed power so hard to come by these days the Giants will do what they can to develop Ragira into just that. The 23 year-old might be the son of Kenyan immigrants and was considered a top high school prospect in the State of Texas but was not drafted till the 30th round over in the 2010 draft due to his strong commitment to Stanford. He was the 2011 Pac-10 Freshman of the year and an honorable mention in 2012. Ragira played three seasons at Stanford and was given a nice bonus by the Giants, similar to first baseman Ricky Oropesa. As Oropesa's production has stalled at the Double-A level, San Francisco would hope that Ragira won't fall into that same category. Depending on what happens with wild card Angel Villalona out of Spring Training, Ragira could find himself on the Squirrels Opening Day roster. If not, he should be in Richmond by July.

Promoted in his first full season, spending the entire season with the San Jose Giants (A+)... 3rd on the team in games played... Hit .349 with runners in scoring position... Hit 99-355 against right handed hitters.

Rogers has known nothing but success since joining the Giants organization in 2013. A 10th round pick out of Austin Peay State, Rogers quickly moved last year after nine stellar appearances in Augusta (1.02ERA) to San Jose. He hogtied the offensive-happy California League with 72 strikeouts in 72 innings pitched. His extreme submarine delivery gives him deception and movement on his upper-80s sinker. He posted an astonishing 3.91 ground out/fly out ration and earned a promotion to Richmond for the playoffs. He should complement fellow ground ball artist Tyler Mizenko well out of the Squirrels bullpen and will help get the Squirrels prospect starting pitchers out of some tight spots. Reaching the Major Leagues as a submarine pitcher can be somewhat a novelty, but the 23 year-old has done nothing so far to suggest he will be just that. Rogers hails from good solid baseball pedigree as his brother Taylor has passed through here with New Britain as a member of the Twins organization. The Eastern League will provide a proving ground for Rogers and his sinker.

Saw two promotions in 2014 as he started the year in Augusta (A) and earned a promotion to San Jose (A+) early in the year... Appeared in nine games with Augusta with a 1.02 ERA to earn the promotion... Continued success in San Jose with a 2.00 ERA. Right handed hitters hit 32-153 (.209) against him... Struck out three or more in relief in 13 games for San Jose

2013

Began his professional career with the AZL Giants... Appeared in six games with the AZL Giants and did not give up a run before being promoted to Salem-Keizer (A-)... Saw action in 14 games for the Volcanoes... Right handed hitters hit 5-32 (.156) off him.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Drafted in the 10th round out of Austin Peay... Made an APSU record 38 appearances for the Governors... Transferred from Garden City CC... Ranked third in the NJCAA in saves with 13... Parents are Scott and Amy Rogers... His brother, Scott pitched at Kentucky... His twin, Taylor, is part of the Minnesota Twins organization.

Myles Schroder is 27-years old, but has only been in professional baseball for four seasons. That anomaly stems from the fact that Schroder walked away from baseball after being drafted by the Giants in 2007 to attend to family matters. He was placed on the voluntary retired list but returned in 2011 and spent the summer playing himself back into shape in the Arizona Rookie League. In 2012, he adopted the role that he continues in - valuable utility man. He spent 2013 in San Jose (A+) and came on with increased playing time in the second half. He continued that role with the Squirrels in 2014 and provided manager Russ Morman with an option all around the Diamond. His cannon of a throwing arm gives him a distinct advantage behind the plate or at third base but it would be nice to see what he can do with a little more playing time. He hit .296 with 20 doubles in 2013 for San Jose and followed that up with 16 doubles and a .254 average in 110 games last year for the Squirrels. He also has the ability to catch and play in the outfield (15 games in 2014) but is more comfortable around the infield positions. Add to that the fact that he is a switch-hitter, and you can basically fill two roster spots with one player. He is not the only utility player on the list, but he certainly is the most valuable. Schroder could make up for lost developmental time in Richmond in 2015.

Spent entire season in Richmond (AA)...4th on the team in games played at 110... Hit 36-122 (.295) against left handed pitchers... Played every position except CF and Pitcher.

2013

Spent entire season with San Jose (A+) ...Went 3-for-6 with two runs scored and a career-high four (4) RBI on 8/21 in a 16-11 win @ Stockton ... Had a .951 fielding percentage ... Did not commit an error in 81 total chances at first base ... Hit .296 with 20 doubles, six (6) triples, six (6) home runs and 33 RBI ... Had a .826 OPS.

2012

Saw time at five positions with Augusta (catcher, first base, second base, third base, left field) ... Spent the month of June at extended spring training ... Hit .177 with a .513 OPS on the season.

2011

Played in 30 games for the AZL Giants ... Batted .282 with nine (9) doubles, three (3) triples and a home run.

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Graduated from Castro Valley High School (CA) ... Attended Diablo Valley College ... Named to the 2007 All-Northern-California Team ... Selected by the San Francisco Giants in the 27th round of the 2007 June Draft ... Was on the voluntarily retired list from 2007-2010.

The name Snodgrass has become synonymous with success as the ace of the Squirrels staff the past two seasons. Snodgrass followed up his All-Star Easter League debut in 2013 with another All-Star nomination in 2014. Despite his gobs of success, Snodgrass has been left out of the prospect conversation and was even relegated to bullpen duties at the start of last year due to the Squirrels all-prospect rotation. None of that has bothered the Bowling green native. He has provided leadership and stability to the Squirrels franchise and would hope to get a look at Triple-A in 2015. Relatively unheralded out of Austin Peay State in the 2011 draft, Snodgrass is a control-oriented left-hander with a feel for pitching. The 27-year old couldn't have made a much better first impression during his first start with Richmond in 2013 when he co-authored the first no-hitter in franchise history in his Double-A debut. He now ranks as the Squirrels franchise leader in wins (23) and would like to not add to that total going forward. Still, the Giants could decide they need someone on the staff who can work deep into games, especially early on in the season. Therefore Snodgrass could make his way back to the RVA, a place that he now calls home year round.

Spent his second full season with Richmond (AA)... Finished 9th in the Eastern League in ERA at 3.56... Did not record in his 14th start... Threw a complete game 5 hit shutout on 6/24/14... Left handed hitter hit .248 off him... Started one game in the Eastern League playoffs.

2013

Spent entire season with Richmond (AA) ... Was an Eastern League Mid- and Post-Season All Star ... Was tied for first in the league in wins (12) and had second best WHIP (1.17) and baserunners-per-9.0 innings pitched ratio (11.04) ... Threw 8.0 inning complete game on 6/11 @ Harrisburg ... Posted 12-4-0 record with a 3.70 ERA over 25 games ... Gave up five (5) earned runs in 23.1 innings of work in the month of May (1.93 ERA) ... Went 3-for-4 with a run scored and two (2) RBI on 5/25 @ Altoona ... Was part of three combination shutouts (4/5 vs. New Britain, no hitter; 4/15 @ Altoona; 5/19 vs. Altoona).

2012

Spent entire season in San Jose ... Was the lone San Jose Giants representative in the 2012 California League Mid-Season All-Star Game ... Had a 2.7 GO/AO ratio and led California league with 28 double plays induced ... Was not on postseason roster; transferred to Salem-Keizer on 9/2 but did not pitch.

2011

With Pablo Sandoval entrenched at third base and no immediate need for former Squirrel Conor Gillaspie, the Giants opted to ship him to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Soptic, a hard-throwing 23-year old right-hander. While Gillaspie developed into an MLB regular in 2014, Soptic returned to San Jose with better results than 2013. Soptic is the prototypical type pitcher that the Giants pride themselves on developing. An unpolished hurler with the stuff and make-up to eventually thrive at the big league level. Soptic's fastball had rated as the best in Chicago's system in each of the two seasons prior to the trade in the estimation of Baseball America but his control has been an issue. The Giants were hoping for more of a progression from the 6'6" Soptic in 2013, but he struggled with his mechanics and control in 33 appearances with San Jose (A+), walking 36 in 41.1 innings. San Francisco eventually sent him down to short-season Salem-Keizer for more polishing. His career 7.58 BB/9IP rate would suggest that he has a way to develop into an MLB reliever. He could easily head back to San Jose to start the year and if he can harness his big-time fastball, could aid the Richmond bullpen at some point during the season.

2014

Spent his second full season with San Jose (A+)... Finished 4th in the California League in walks with 62... Right Handed hitters hit .206 against him...

2013

Spent most of the season with San Jose (A+) with four appearances for Salem-Keizer ... Appeared in 32 games, all in relief, and posted a 3-2-0 record ... Opponents batted .255 against ... In 4.0 innings pitched with Salem-Keizer, allowed one run on two hits, walking one and striking out six.

2012

Spent first full year with Low-A Kannapolis ... Appeared in 27 games all in relief ... Began season at Extended Spring, assigned to Kannapolis on 5/25 and did not pitch until 5/30 ... Threw a team-high 16 wild pitches ... Allowed just one home run in 43.1 innings pitched ... Pitched two or more innings in 14-of-27 outings ... Allowed a season-high five runs in 1.1 Innings on 6/29 at Rome ... was rated as having the best fastball in the White Sox organization following the season ... Struck out career-high four batters over 2.0 scoreless innings in win, 7/19 vs. CSC.

Appeared in three games with short-season Bristol ... made professional debut on 7/30 ... was rated best fastball in organization following the season ... Did not allow an earned run in 2.2 innings pitched.

Was originally drafted in the 43rd round of the 2009 draft by Kansas City but did not sign ... Played two seasons with Johnson County Community College and reportedly turned down a scholarship offer to the University of Missouri to sign with the White Sox.

Stratton, 24, has been an intriguing prospect in the San Francisco system since the Giants selected him out of Mississippi State with the 20th overall pick of the 2012 draft. For the first three seasons of his professional career, he has lagged a notch behind the highly-touted group of arms that includes Kyle Crick, Ty Blach, Clayton Blackburn and Adalberto Mejia. As that quartet opened the 2014 season in the Richmond rotation, Stratton headlined the rotation in San Jose (A+). The former Bulldog's velocity and overall repertoire doesn't overwhelm hitters the way many first round hurlers will, but nonetheless, Stratton racked up 102 strikeouts over 99.1 innings and 19 appearances. Despite an ERA of 5.07 in the California League, the Giants elected to push him to Richmond for the final month of the regular season. His results with the Squirrels were mixed, with Stratton nibbling around the strike zone to some degree after giving up significant contact in his first few Double-A starts. Ultimately, he made five regular season starts and conceded an opposition average of .315. However, he seemed more comfortable at the level in his last two regular season starts and turned in his finest outing as a Squirrel in the post-season. Baseball America rates Stratton as the 12th best prospect in the Giants' chain entering the 2014 season. He will start the year in the rotation for the Squirrels, as the Giants continue to hope his stuff reemerges to go along with his advanced feel for pitching. His future advancement will depend greatly on his success level in the Eastern League in what amounts to a crucial season for the Nashville, TN, resident.

– Tomlinson, 24, was a gold glove shortstop at Texas Tech, and had made a gradual progression through the Giants' system after San Francisco selected him in the 12th round of the 2011 draft. His 2013 season was marred by injury, as was his initial stint in Richmond, which occurred at the tail-end of that campaign. Unable to utilize his strongest tool – speed – he was limited to just three stolen bases and a .198 average in 33 games. With the arrival of Matt Duffy in the River City to open the 2014 season, the Giants opted to shift Tomlinson to second base. Fully healthy, he flourished in the new role, partnering with Duffy to form one of the top defensive middle infielders in the Eastern League. He was also able to utilize his speed and ability to hit to all fields, batting .268 in 124 games, and also shattering the Squirrels' single-season stolen base record (49). When Duffy was promoted directly to the big leagues, Tomlinson shifted back to his original shortstop position and also ably handled the leadoff spot in the order while Tyler Graham was sidelined with injury. The Giants took notice of his strong season and rewarded him with an invitation to big league spring training. His floor to open the season is playing shortstop everyday in Richmond. His ceiling, however, has risen significantly. A post in Sacramento at the outset of the season is expected, with the Red Raider more than capable of helping the big club at points during the year with his intangible tools and versatility.

2014

Kelby spent his entire season in Richmond (AA)... Led the Eastern League in stolen bases with 49... Hit 80-296 (.270) against right handed hitters..

2013

Played entire season with Augusta (A) ... Placed in a team-high 123 games ... Was second in runs (57) and walks (53) and third in hits (101) and stolen bases (36) ... Hit two (2) doubles on 4/11 @ Charleston.

Spent majority of the season with the AZL Giants (rookie) with two appearances in Augusta (A) ... Batted .357 with a .960 OPS in 37 Arizona League games ... Had a ten-game hitting streak from 8/6-8/22, scoring 12 runs on 15 hits ... Had 15 multi-hit games.

There are reclamation projects, and then there is the story of the 24-year old Villalona. In 2006 he was considered a can't miss phenom in his native Dominican Republic and was receiving a then club-record bonus of 2.1 million dollars from the Giants. In 2009, he was considered the top prospect in the San Francisco system and the best power prospect the organization had produced in a decade. However, following the 2009 season after returning to the Dominican, he was charged with murder. The charges were later dropped, but the legal issues and ensuing VISA problems kept him out of the United States for the next three years. He was added to the Giants 40 man roster following the 2011 season but was not permitted to return to the USA until 2013. He opened the year with San Jose (A+) and showed signs of rust, but also mashed 14 home runs and was named a California mid-season All-Star. Villalona made his Double-A debut later that year and began last year in Richmond. He did not advance as the Giants had hoped and hit a career-low .227 with 10 homers. He was finally removed from the 40 man roster during the off season and should stand to reason that Villalona will return to Richmond to open the year, with the hope that he can advance to Sacramento (AAA) at some point.

Started the year with the AZL Giants and quickly earned a promotion to Richmond (AA)... Was 4th on the team in home runs with 10... Went 57-240 (.238) vs right handed hitters... Started his season in Richmond with an eight game hit streak.

2013

Split season between San Jose (A+) (73 games) and Richmond (AA) (52 games) ... Batted .229 with 16 doubles and 14 home runs, collecting 42 RBI, before the All-Star Break ... Was a CAL Mid-Season All-Star ... Had a .235 average in Double-A ball ... Went 4-for-6 with two (2) runs scored, a home run and two (2) runs batted in in a doubleheader vs. Bowie on 7/19.

2009

Spent the entire season with San Jose (A+), primarily as a 19-year old ... Hit.267 in 74 games with 9 HR and 42 RBIs ... Rated as the #3 prospect in the Giants system entering the season ... Charged with murder in his native La Romana, Dominican Republic after leaving San Jose due to injury in September, 2009 (Charges were later dropped).

PERSONAL & MISCELLANEOUS

Received a then club-record bonus of 2.1 million dollars to sign with the Giants on August 16, 2006 ... Did not play professional from the end of 2009 season until appearing in the Dominican Summer League in 2012 ... Was denied an American Visa to return to United States prior to the 2012 season despite prevailing in a right-to-work lawsuit ... Invited to his first big league spring training in 2013.

Williamson, 24, was slated to be the Squirrels' opening day right fielder in 2014, and also was set to serve as the top position playing prospect on a team headlined by a much ballyhooed group of young hurlers. Unfortunately, he never arrived in the River City after dealing with lingering soreness in the elbow of his throwing arm during spring training. San Francisco allowed him to try to rehab the injury while getting some at-bats to tune up with San Jose (A+). Ultimately, the injury didn't heal, prompting the Wake Forest-product to undergo Tommy John surgery at the end of April. That made the 2014 season a lost one for Williamson, who had led the San Francisco system in home runs (25) the year prior in San Jose. His rehab from the surgery went according to plan however, and he was back in big league spring camp as a non-roster invitee. Despite the setback, the Giants continue to view the hulking slugger as one of their corner outfield anchors of the future. Many prospects have struggled to follow big offensive seasons in the California League with success in the more pitcher-friendly Eastern League. However, Giants' instructors rave about his makeup and feel that his tools project more favorably to success at The Diamond than any prospect that has come before him. He opens the season as the #11 prospect in the Giants' chain according to Baseball America, and should hold down right field in Richmond until his bat potentially puts him back on the fast track towards the bay.

Zambrano has been a familiar face in the Flying Squirrels' clubhouse over the last five seasons, although many fans probably don't know much about him. He has served as a third catcher on four different occasions, joining the Flying Squirrels from Augusta (A) in 2010, opening the season with them in 2011, spending the entire year in the River City in 2012 and joining the team late in 2013. An organizational catcher for most of his career serving primarily in a bullpen role, the Giants have given Zambrano more of an opportunity the previous three seasons, appearing in 60 games for the Squirrels last year due to injuries. Zambrano made the most of his active time and hit .268 while helping to develop the prospect-heavy pitching staff. He is the only players to have been a member of every Flying Squirrels team since their arrival in Richmond and he remains highly popular among pitchers for his knowledge during bullpen sessions. The Venezuelan native always has a smile on his face no matter his role at the ballpark. There is a good chance he could once again spend a portion of the season as a Squirrel in 2014.

RICHMOND FLYING SQUIRRELS

2014 Year In Review

2014: IN REVIEW

The Flying Squirrels 5th season celebration in 2014 could be considered the most successful year in franchise history. The team returned to the Eastern League Championship for the second time, led the Eastern League in overall attendance as well as average attendance and witnessed several players promoted directly from Richmond to help lead the Giants to another World Series title. Overall, it was another year of thrills, fun and laughter that produced lifelong memories on and off the field.

Richmond emerged as the focal point of Minor League Baseball once the team broke camp from Arizona. The Giants had been carefully cultivating the next wave of young pitchers by way of San Jose and August during the previous two seasons and it appeared it was now time to challenge the future in the Eastern League. The "All Prospect" rotation featured four of the Giants top 10 prospects as discerned by Baseball America with Ty Blach (#7), Clayton Blackburn(#5), Adalberto Mejia(#6), and Kyle Crick (#1). A significant chunk of the Giants future was scheduled to take the mound everyday for the Flying Squirrels. San Francisco doubled down on the seriousness of this staff and sent a second pitching coach (Jerry Cram) to help work with them on a daily basis. Catcher Jeff Arnold was scheduled to do most of the heavily lifting behind the plate to work with the staff as he had the previous years. Unfortunately, Arnold tore his ACL during the first game of the season in New Britain and was forced to watch the rest of the year from the sidelines.

Despite the ominous Arnold news to start, the Squirrels cobbled together a 14-10 month of April. Quickly, shortstop Matt Duffy emerged as a leader on the field and veteran leadoff man Tyler Graham set the table for some of the power bats behind him in the order. Graham swiped 12 bases in April alone while the troubled slugger Angel Villalona swatted three home runs to leads the offense. Still the focus, especially during the first month or two of the season was on the pitching staff. The hard-throwing 21 year-old Kyle Crick earned a win in his first outing with five solid innings of work. From there he struggled with his control and had difficulty going deeper into games. Teammates Ty Blach and Clayton Blackburn were able to navigate the Eastern League a little better, but were also limited due to early season pitch counts. Richmond was able to rely, as always, on the veteran presence of lefty Jack Snodgrass. The Bowling Green, KY native allowed just two earned runs during his first 20 innings pitched. He was also utilized out of the bullpen at times to piggyback off the younger arms outings. By season's end, Snodgrass would hold a variety of Squirrels team records, including the most wins by a pitcher.

As the season settled in, Matt Duffy became a household name despite never being considered a full blown prospect. The 18th round selection out of Long Beach State hit everything in sight – hard. Duffy batted an astonishing .375 in May and was soon leading the Eastern League in a variety of categories. Veteran third baseman Mario Lison also heated up to provide the power. Lison, signed by the Giants as an MLB free agent following a power surge during winter ball, scuffled to start the year. He broke out of the slide on May 4th at Arm & Hammer Park in Trenton, NJ with a pair of homers. Ty Blach cruised through six innings in that contest and it looked like things were beginning to gel. The next day leadoff man Tyler Graham returned from a groin injury but he never fully regained his explosive April form. Kyle Crick also turned in his best outing to date – a six inning shutout effort in Altoona on May 16th – leading many to believe he would continue to rise quickly in the organization. As the team flowed, they also ebbed. News was handed down that Clayton Blackburn would miss nearly two months with an oblique injury and soon thereafter closer Derek Law was removed from a game in Reading with forearm tightness. Law would eventually undergo Tommy John surgery and miss the rest of the year.

The loss of Law seemed like a large hurdle to overcome. The Squirrels closer was well on his way to becoming a factor in San Francisco. With Law heading into Tommy John surgery, the Squirrels received a man coming back from the same affliction. Hunter Strickland made his Richmond debut on May 29th and for a brief moment it seemed each contest would be limited to just seven innings. Strickland was on a strict appearances schedule upon his arrival, nevertheless, he immediately blew away the competition. The Squirrels also received an old friend when catcher Tyler Latorre was assigned to Richmond around the same time as Strickland. The Squirrels staff knew LaTorre was being called upon to work with the prospect pitchers as a more veteran presence behind the plate. With LaTorre entering the lineup, Manager Russ Mormon was free to move the versatile Myles Schroder all around the diamond. The Squirrels rattled off six straight wins to close out the month of May and pulled to within a few games of first place in the Western Division.

Richmond rolled into June by winning six of the first seven and eight of ten. To allow for an additional day of rest, the Giants opted for a quasi-six man rotation. Veteran Kelvin Marte found his stride after a rough first few months by winning five consecutive decisions. Marte posted a 2.36 ERA in June and after two starts in July he departed for Triple-A Fresno. The Squirrels momentum was halted a bit during a three-game trip to Binghamton. The B-Mets had cruised to the top of the Eastern Division with a run of stellar pitching. In a series of foreshadowing to the Eastern League Championship,

Binghamton held the Squirrels to just two runs in a three game sweep. Despite the subpar showing at NYSEG Stadium, Russ Mormon's crew finished the month of June in first place, a standing they would not relinquish for the rest of the year.

Celebrating July 4th at The Diamond has become a Richmond tradition and the Squirrels were thrilled to host a doubleheader to celebrate Independence Day. Adding to the festivities, in front of another sold out crowd; Clayton Blackburn made his return to the mound. He worked five shutout innings in game two of the twin bill to earn the win over Reading. Three days later it appeared that top prospect Kyle Crick had turned the corner for his development. Crick, the weaker link in the rotation due to his control issues, punched out ten batters in just five innings against Akron. Crick reached double-digit strikeouts three times throughout the year and dazzled at moments to justify his top billing status. The team's success allowed them to be well represented once again in the Eastern League All Star game. Pitchers Ty Blach and Jack Snodgrass, along with Mario Lissos and Matt Duffy earned the honors.

As the MLB trade deadline approached, rumors swirled around what the Giants might do and what minor league players could be involved in a potential trade to bolster the MLB roster. The Squirrels closed out a homestand on July 30th against Harrisburg and were about to depart for a trip to Altoona. San Francisco gave the order to keep Matt Duffy and Jarrett Parker in Richmond due to an impending roster move. Rumors filled the internet about what might happen, but the trade deadline of July 31st came and went without incident. San Francisco did nothing. The very next day the Giants pulled the trigger on a move, reaching down to Richmond to promote Duffy and Parker to meet the team in New York for a series against the Mets. Duffy made his MLB debut on August 1st and appeared in 34 games down the stretch for the eventual World Series Champions. Parker was up for a few days but did not appear in a game. He was reassigned to Fresno to finish out the year.

Life without Duffy and Parker was going to be difficult for the rest of the Squirrels trying to win a pennant in the Eastern League. Veteran utility man Sklyer Stromsmoe was a natural fit to fill in the gaps till additional help arrived from San Jose. During the first few days of August, the Giants sent the next wave of prospects to take the lead for the postseason bound Squirrels. Outfielders Elliot Blair and Blake Miller were promoted and jumped directly into the lineup. Miller was penciled into the three-hole to replace Duffy after hitting .299 in 96 games in the California League. San Francisco also sent along relievers Daniel Slania, Tyler Rogers and Carlos Alvarado. It was apparent a new team would need to adapt quickly in order to take home the Eastern League title. This squad had one month to prepare.

The drastic roster adjustments along with the August grind slowed the Squirrels. A three game sweep at Altoona and another sweep at the hands of the B-Mets shrunk the Squirrel Division lead to half a game. First baseman Angel Villalona struggled to accompany Lissos in the lineup and hit just .179 down the stretch. New additions Miller and (.311 in August) and Blair adjusted better than expected to help keep things afloat. On August 20th a 7-0 loss dropped the Squirrels into a tie for first with Akron. Fortunately, the RubberDucks lost the last 10 of 11 contests and Richmond clinched their first Division Title on August 29th with a 2-1 victory over Binghamton. A champagne soaked celebration commenced at The Diamond as Adalberto Mejia had one of his finest outings of the year. He pitched six innings and allowed just one run with three strikeouts.

On September 3, 2014 Richmond hosted its first playoff series since 2011. It was Mejia again getting the Squirrels off to a solid start by tossing 6.2 innings to open the series at Canal Park in Akron. The bullpen – now without star closer Hunter Strickland due to a Major League call up – was able to keep Akron at bay. Lefty Steven Okert, a recent acquisition from San Jose, along with Cody Hall and Jose Casilla secured game one in a best of five series. Akron was able to jump on the Squirrels most reliable starter Jack Snodgrass to even things up in game two with a 5-1 victory. The series shifted to The Diamond and a raucous crowd was on hand for game three of the series. Blach raised the bar in the third set during a thrilling 1-0 win. Blach tossed six scoreless innings as Kelly Tomlinson's base hit to score Daniel Carbonell in the third inning was all the offense of the night. The bats eventually prevailed for Richmond in a decisive 5-1 route in the series clinching contest. Devin Harris provided the muscle, a two run homer in the fourth off Akron's Shawn Mormindo. Another newcomer, former first round selection Chris Stratton, had his best Double-A outing with six shutout innings to secure the series and sent Richmond back to the Eastern League Championship Series.

Richmond was eagerly awaiting the winner of the Binghamton/Portland series in the Eastern Division. That series came down to the wire, with the B-Mets pulling out an exciting 8-5 victory in game five. The ELCS championship was set. The B-Mets had not won a championship in 20 years and were anxious to end that drought. In game one Clayton Blackburn pitched well but gave up a pair of runs in the 5th inning to give Binghamton a 3-1 lead. B-Mets ace Tyler Pill pitcher through six innings to earn the win and draw first blood. The Richmond offense was nullified again in game two. Binghamton starter Greg Peavey cruised through seven innings in a deflating 5-1 Squirrels loss. With a commanding 2-0 lead, the series shifted to NYSEG stadium in New York for what would become an instant Eastern League classic. Lefty Ty Blach squared off against Mets top lefty prospect Steven Matz. While both southpaws, the two stalwarts on the mound were completely different in their craft. Blach, more of a location and finesse pitcher, kept the B-Mets off balance all night. He allowed just one run, a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning, in seven innings of work. Matz, a pure power arm, struck out 11 batters and had not allowed a hit through seven innings. The Mets were in a tight spot with their young prized prospect. He was working on a no-hitter in the championship game but had missed nearly two full seasons due to arm injuries. As his pitch count mounted, the Mets opted to send him back out for the eighth frame. With one out Elliot Blair ignited the Squirrels with a base hit to right. Backup catcher Eliezer Zambrano followed with a base hit of his own to end the night for Matz. Daniel Carbonell drove home Blair to tie the game at 1-1 through eight innings. The Squirrels led the game much going in the 9th innings off All-Star closer Cody Satterwhite and it was up to reliever Steven Okert to send the get into extra innings. Okert punched out the first batter but then Mets catcher Xorge Carrillo singled to centerfield. Wilfredo Tovar then delivered the game-winning hit, a double to right centerfield to end the season for the Squirrels. It punctuated the end to a thrilling game, an exciting series and an even more exhilarating season for Richmond

2014 EL Playoff Results

The Squirrels returned to the postseason for the second time in franchise history after winning their first division title. They squared off against the newly minted Akron RubberDucks in the divisional round and took the series, 3-1. Richmond held Akron to a combined eight runs with stellar pitching performances from Adalberto Mejia, Ty Blach and Chris Stratton.

In the East, the Portland Sea Dogs won the Division but Binghamton had the momentum. The Sea Dogs were one of the best teams in MiLB during the first half of the season but began to fade as players were pulled to the higher levels. The B-Mets were hitting their stride at the right time and boasted three solid arms at the top of the rotation. In an hard fought five-game series, Binghamton prevailed. They swept the Squirrels in three games to win their first Eastern League Championship in 20 years.

#35 - Mike MacDonald

The right-hander, who started the Flying Squirrels' first franchise game on April 8th, 2010 against Bowie at Prince George's Stadium, also authored the only nine-inning complete game shutout of the 2010 season. MacDonald turned in arguably the finest single-game pitching performance for Richmond on August 5th, 2010 against the New Hampshire Fisher Cats at MerchantsAuto.com Stadium. Making the performance even more memorable was the fact that it came against the franchise for which he holds the all-time career wins record.

#28 Daryl Maday

(At Left) Flying Squirrels' right-hander Daryl Maday throws the first pitch in franchise history at The Diamond. Maday's first pitch was delivered on April 15th at 7:13 PM to Reading Phillies' leadoff hitter Tyson Gillies. Maday's first offering was a ball, but he went on to strike out Gillies looking. Maday turned in a strong outing in what turned into the first victory for Richmond at the renovated Diamond. He worked 5 2/3 scoreless innings, allowing just four hits, while walking two and striking out four. He earned the victory as the Flying Squirrels posted a 3-0 shutout of Reading. Richmond catcher Jackson Williams provided the first home run for the Squirrels at The Diamond, a solo-shot in the 5th inning off Reading's Mike Cisco. Conor Gillaspie also homered in the game, curious due to the fact that the Squirrels hit just 19 more home runs in their home park on the year.

2004	Eddy Martinez-Esteve	OF	2	70	R/R	6-2	215	07/14/83

BOLD - Copeland and Martinez-Esteve were the first selection of the Giants in their respective draft years. The Giants did not have a first round selection in 2004 and didn't have a selection until the fourth round in 2005. The three players featured below represent one of the greatest three-year stretches in MLB draft history. Zack Wheeler could have joined that list, but was dealt to the NY Mets, where he is now in the big league rotation. None of the last four first round selections have reached the big leagues as of Spring Training 2014.

2014 GIANTS' SYSTEM BREAKDOWN

COMPOSITE RECORD BREAKDOWN: The champagne flowed once again in San Francisco, in large part because of their ability to cultivate their young talent. Instead of trading away pieces at the deadline, the Giants looked to within to fill a need and win another World Series. The farm system does lack some of the more blue chip prospects, but the organization still believes the future is bright with a bevy of young arms in system. 2015 will be a big step for some of those prospects, especially the ones that arrive in Richmond.

GENERAL INFORMATION

THE DIAMOND - STADIUM FACTS

The Diamond serves as the home venue for Flying Squirrels baseball as they represent the San Francisco Giants in the Eastern League of Professional Baseball Clubs. The facility was previously the home of the Richmond Braves (Triple-A - International League) from 1985-2008. Following the 2008 season, the Richmond Braves relocated to Gwinnett, GA, becoming the Gwinnett Braves beginning in the 2009 season. Although Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU) continued to play their home games at The Diamond during the 2009 season, the ballpark was void of professional baseball for the first time since its construction. The ballpark continues to be operated by the Richmond Metropolitan Authority (RMA). Upon their inception, the Flying Squirrels and the RMA signed a two-year lease agreement (2010-2011) with three club option years. Prior to the 2010 season, The Flying Squirrels committed more than two million dollars to renovate The Diamond. Included in those renovations was the replacement of aluminum-bleachers in the lower bowl of the ballpark with 3,164 state-of-the-art fold-down seats (pictured below). The top 11 rows of the upper bowl were also eliminated to create room for banner signage that allows the overall look of the park to become more cohesive and lowers capacity to a more intimate 9,560. The Flying Squirrels continued to enhance and refurbish their home park prior to the 2011 season, investing another $250,000 into the park. Included in the upgrades were; converting the existing line-scoreboard to an LED display (Time Technologies), construction of a Speed of Pitch display in right-center field (Daktronics), converting existing clock in right field to an LED display, creation of party decks behind home plate and the "Cupid Section" down the right-field line, and the refurbishing of the "batter's eye" in center field. Although they continue to strive towards building a new facility, the Squirrels recognized the need to replace the playing surface at The Diamond to create a suitable competitive environment for Giants's and Eastern League prospects. To that aim, $100,000 was invested in installing a new drainage system and infield surface prior to the 2013 season.

At the center of a more than two-million dollar renovation of The Diamond, was the installation of 3,164 state-of-the-art fold-down seats that replaced aluminum-bench style seating in the lower-bowl that had been in place since the ballpark opened in 1985. The project to replace the entire lower-bowl of seats began in November, 2009 and was completed in February, 2010.

The Diamond - 2012 Renovations

Starting on November 15, 2012, King Construction started excavation of a $100,000 field renovation. Nine inches of soil was excavated on the infield grass and foul territories totaling 25,000 square feet. Flat panel drainage was installed under three inches of gravel and six inches of sand root zone - both gravel and sand were laser-graded to specific measurements with precision equipment. New sod was laid on December 5th and the project was completed on December 8th.

MEDICAL GLOSSARY

Abscess: an infection, which produces pus; can be result of blister, callus, penetrating wound or laceration.

Anterior Cruciate Ligament (ACL): a primary stabilizing ligament within the center of the knee joint that prevents hyperextension and excessive rotation of the joint. A complete tear of the ACL necessitating reconstruction could require up to 12 months of rehabilitation.

Anti-Inflammatory: any agent, which prevents inflammation, such as aspirin or ibuprofen.

Angiogram: a film demonstrating arteries after injection of dye.

Arthrogram: x-ray technique for joints using air and/or dye injected into the affected area; useful in diagnosing meniscus tears of the knee and rotator cuff.

Arthroscope: an instrument used to visualize the interior of a joint cavity.

Arthroscopy: a surgical examination of the internal structures of a joint, by means of viewing through an Arthroscope. An arthroscopic procedure can be used to remove or repair damaged tissue or as a diagnostic procedure in order to inspect the extent of any damage or confirm a diagnosis.

Atrophy: to shrivel or shrink from disuse, as in muscular atrophy.

Baker's Cyst: localized swelling of a bursa sac in the posterior knee as a result of fluid that has escaped from the knee capsule. A Baker's cyst indicates that there is trauma inside the knee joint that leads to excessive fluid production.

Bone Scan: an imaging procedure in which a radioactive-labeled substance is injected into the body to determine the status of a bone injury. If the bone at the injury site takes up the radioactive substance, the injury will show a "hot spot" on the scan image. The bone scan is particularly useful in the diagnosis of stress fractures.

Bursa: a fluid-filled sac that is located in areas where friction is likely to occur, then minimizes the friction; for example between a tendon and a bone.

Capsule: an enclosing structure, which surrounds the joint and contains ligaments, which stabilize that joint.

CAT Scan: use of a computer to produce a cross sectional view of the anatomical part being investigated from x-ray data.

Cellulitis: inflammation of cellular of connective tissue

Cervical Vertebrae: group of seven vertebrae located in the neck.

Collateral Ligament: on either side of and acting as a radius of movement, a hinge joint, as of the elbow, knee and wrist.

Concussion: jarring injury of the brain resulting in dysfunction. It can be graded as mild, moderate or severe depending on loss of consciousness, amnesia and loss of equilibrium.

Contusion: an injury to a muscle and tissues caused by a blow from a blunt object

Degenerative Joint Disease: changes in the joint surfaces as a result of repetitive trauma.

Deltoid Ligament: ligament that connects the tibia to bones of the medial aspect of the foot and is primarily responsible for stability of the ankle on the medial side. Is sprained less frequently than other ankle ligaments.

Deltoid Muscle: muscles at the top of the arm, just below the shoulder, responsible for shoulder motions to the front, side and back.

Disc, Intervertebral: a flat, rounded plate between each of vertebrae of the spine. The disc consists of a thick fiber ring, which surrounds a soft-gel like interior. It functions as a cushion and shock absorber for the spinal column.

Dislocation: complete displacement of joint surfaces

Ecchymosis: bleeding into the surface tissue below the skin, resulting in a "black and blue" effect.

Effusion: accumulation of fluid in various spaces in the body. Commonly, the knee has an effusion after an injury.

Electromyogram (EMG): test to determine nerve function

Epicondylitis: inflammation in the elbow due to overuse

Fracture: breach in continuity of bone. Types of fractures include simple, compound, comminuted, greenstick, incomplete, impacted, longitudinal, oblique, stress or transverse.

Grade One Injury: a mild injury in which ligament, tendon, or other musculoskeletal tissue may have been stretched or confused, but not torn or otherwise disrupted.

Grade Two Injury: a moderate injury in which musculoskeletal tissue has been partially, but not totally torn which causes appreciable limitation in function of the injured tissue.

Grade Three Injury: a severe injury in which tissue has been significantly, and in some cases totally, torn or otherwise disrupted causing a virtual total loss of function.

Hematoma: tumor-like mass produced by an accumulation of coagulated blood in a cavity.

Inflammation: the body's natural response to injury in which the injury site might display various degrees of pain, swelling, heat, redness and/or loss of function.

Labrum: an edge, rim or lip-shaped structure found in the shoulder joint.

Ligament: band of fibrous tissue that connects bone to bone or bone to cartilage and supports and strengthens joints.

Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI): imaging procedure in which a radio frequency pulse causes certain electrical elements of the injured tissue to react to this pulse and through this process a computer display and permanent film establish a visual image. MRI does not require radiation and is very useful in the diagnosis of soft tissue, disc and meniscus injuries.

Meniscus: crescent shaped cartilage, usually pertaining to the knee joint; also known as "cartilage." There are two menisci in the knee, medial and lateral. These work to absorb weight within the knee and provide stability.

Metacarpals: five long bones of the hand running from the wrist to the fingers.

Metatarsals: five long bones of the foot, running from the ankle to the toes.

Patella Tendinitis: inflammation of the patellar ligament; also known as "jumpers knee."

Patellofemoral Joint: articulation of the kneecap and femur. Inflammation of this joint can occur through: 1) acute injury to the patella, 2) overuse from excessive running particularly if there is an associated knee weakness, 3) chronic wear and tear of the knee, 4) as a result of poor foot mechanics. Patellofemoral irritation can lead to hondromalacia, which in its most chronic condition, could require surgery.

Plica: fold of tissue in the joint capsule and a common result of knee injury.

Posterior Cruciate Ligament (PCL): a primary stabilizing ligament of the knee that provides significant stability and prevents displacement of the tibia backward within the knee joint. A complete tear of this ligament necessitating reconstruction could require up to 12 months of rehabilitation.

Reconstruction: surgical rebuilding of a joint using natural, artificial or transplanted materials.

Rotator Cuff: comprised of four muscles in the shoulder area that can be irritated by overuse. The muscles are the supraspinatus (most commonly injured), infraspinatus, teres minor and subscapularis.

Rotator Cuff Impingement Syndrome: a microtrauma or overuse injury caused by stress, and the four stages are: 1) tendinitis with temporary thickening of the bursa and rotator cuff; 2) fiber dissociation in the tendon with permanent thickening of the bursa and scar formation; 3) a partial rotator cuff tear of less than one cm and 4) a complete tear of one cm or more.

Scapula: shoulder blade.

Sciatica: irritation of the sciatic nerve resulting in pain or tingling running down the inside of the leg.

Sciatic Nerve: major nerve that carries impulses for muscular action and sensations between the low back and thigh and lower leg; it is the longest nerve in the body.

Shin Splint: a catch-all syndrome describing pain in the shin that is not a fracture or tumor and cannot be defined otherwise.

Spondylolysis: forward displacement of one vertebrae over another below it due to a developmental defect in the vertebrae.

Sprain: injury resulting from a stretch or twist of the joint and causes various degrees of stretch or tear to the muscle or tendon tissue.

Strain: injury resulting from a pull or torsion to the muscle or tendon that causes various degrees of stretch or tear to the muscle or tendon tissue.

Stress Fracture: a hair-line type break in a bone caused by overuse.

Stress x-ray: a continual x-ray taken when a portion of the body is stressed to its maximum in order to determine joint stability. This is a test utilized in some ankle injuries.

Subluxation: partial dislocation of a joint. The term usually implies that the joint can return to its normal position without formal reduction.

Tarsals: a group of seven bones of the foot consisting of the calcaneus, talus, cuboid and three cuneiform bones.

Tendinitis: inflammation of the tendon and/or tendon sheath, caused by chronic overuse or sudden injury.

Tendon: tissue that connects muscle to bone.

Tomograph: a special type of x-ray apparatus that demonstrates an organ or tissue at a particular depth.

Transverse Process: small lateral projection off the right and left side of each vertebra that functions as an attachment site for muscles and ligaments of the spine.

Triangular Cartilage: a connective tissue characterized by its nonvascularity and firm consistency; located on the little finger side of the wrist.

Ulnar Nerve: nerve in the elbow commonly irritated by excessive throwing.

Wrist: the junction between the two forearm bones (radius and ulna) and the eight wrist bones (trapezium, capitate, hamate, pisiform, triquetrum, lunate and scaphoid).
