PROMOTIONS

BlueClaws pitching coach Matt Hockenberry is clear and direct when it comes to the slider thrown by his 19-year old right-hander Francisco Morales. "I think it's the best slider in baseball," he says.

Morales has certainly flashed a top slider throughout the season. Through July 25th, he was averaging 12.4 strikeouts per nine innings. He struck out at least six hitters in five innings or less in seven of his first 19 appearances this year. "Between the spin efficiency, the way it rotates, and the tunnel shape, it looks like a fastball and drops off. It's an impressive pitch analytically," said Hockenberry. "If he doesn't have three pitches working and he relies on his slider, they'll look for it. But that is a pitch I think will play up all the way to the big league level."

Morales, who throws his fastball into the upper 90's, notes that his slider has improved over the last few seasons. "I feel more comfortable with it since I've been throwing it the last few years. I have a better feel for it and can command it a little bit better now," he said.

Hockenberry noted that Morales will go as far as to adjust the grip on his slider – one finger or two - depending on the specific feel of the specific baseball he has in his land. "A true slider has gyroscopic spin – it'll travel straight, straight, and then fall off the table. With his slider, the spin rate is fast and has so many RPMs, it doesn't give the hitter the chance to pick up the so-called red dot or spinning label," said Hockenberry. By the time the hitter realizes what pitch is flying at him, it's often too late.

Morales grew up in San Juan De Los Morros, a city in the north-central part of Venezuela most famous for a 62-foot high statue of John the Baptist. He was a well-sought after prospect – Baseball America ranked him as the top pitching prospect in the 2016 international class – and considered the Pirates, Blue Jays, and Cubs before choosing the Phillies.

"With his slider, the spin rate is fast and has so many RPMs, it doesn't give the hitter the chance to pick up the so-called red dot or spinning label," said Hockenberry.

He debuted in 2017 in the Gulf Coast League and moved up to Williamsport last year, where he struck out 68 hitters in 56 innings. This year, however, the strikeouts have come in even bigger bunches. In one 12-game stretch through June 21st, he fanned 67 hitters in 38.2 innings (or 67 hitters among 169 batters faced, a mouth-watering 39.6 K%).

He entered this season as a top 10 prospect in the Phillies system per both Baseball America and MLB.com and has done little to diminish the hype. "I think the season has gone pretty well," said Morales. "In the beginning I was trying to get acclimated but I know it's a long season and am trying to finish strong."

The next step? The development of a change-up.

"He's been developing a change-up that when it's on, he's got three plus pitches he can attack hitters with," said Hockenberry.

"He's done an outstanding job this season so far being a reliable starter that we know every time he goes out there he'll give it everything he's got. The next step is he'll have to have that change-up come along to pitch at the next level."

CNIC AREAS

The next wave of BlueClaws ballpark enhancements comes in the form of brand-new,revamped Investors Bank Picnic Areas will be available for BlueClaws fans throughout the season.

Included with the new picnic area is an extensive redesign that will incorporate comfortable mesh swivel seats, tables and food service. The area also comes with better views of the game for fans, and new food and beverage menus as well. The new picnic area on the third base side is perfect for business and networking opportunities.

Meanwhile, the picnic area that is located on the first base side of the stadium, near Mini Golf and Shore Town Soft Serve, is ideal for family outings and other parties.

The picnic re-design comes one year after the BlueClaws opened a brand-new Mini Golf Course in right field, the Toyota World of Lakewood Home Run Pavilion in centerfield, and the Biergarten down the line in left field.

Draft Picks Arrive in Lakewood

With the summer typically comes the arrival of some of the newer players in the organization and this year is no different. RHP Andrew Schultz, a 6th round pick from Tennessee, and IF McCarthy Tatum, a 10th round pick from Fresno State, joined the BlueClaws by mid-July.

Additionally, RHP Albertus Barber, who signed after the draft this year, made his BlueClaws debut on July 20th in Kannapolis.

Additional first-year Phillies figure to join the team over the remainder of the season. Last year, the BlueClaws had five players from the 2018 draft on their roster for the 2018 SAL Championship Series against Lexington including 5th round pick Matt Vierling and 10th round pick Madison Stokes.

Barber On Cloud Nine as He Joins BlueClaws

Albertus Barber's life changed with a broken arm. He fractured his arm while pitching for Oklahoma Baptist in 2018. After the season, he left school and went to Driveline Baseball outside of Seattle to train for a professional career.

"I needed to be in the best possible place and doing the best thing I could do," he said. "I found Driveline in 2016 and saw great results. I love it because they can give me indisputable, scientific evidence that what they do works and I can coach myself to be the best player I can be."

The Phillies have mined Driveline of late, bringing in, among others, hitting coordinator Jason Ochart and assistant pitching coordinator Eric Jagers from their analytically-based program.

"It's kind of one big family out there and it's one cool culture," said Barber.

"I've just always been a person that's very interested in science and we've used science in other sports.

To see baseball finally make the change of using analytics and biomechanics really attracted me to [Driveline]. I could take that data and craft myself to be what I needed to be," he said.

Barber was hoping to sign in November but because he was taking classes, he couldn't sign until after the draft. He put ink to paper in June and began his pro career.

"It's a dream come true."

Power Up

While the lights went out for many in Ocean and Monmouth Counties, Carlos De La Cruz was powering up. After hitting one home run over the first 89 games of the season, the 19 year old from New York hit four home runs between July 12th and 19th. He hit six in the Gulf Coast League last year.

Happy Birthday!

August is a busy birthday month for the BlueClaws, with players celebrating birthdays on the following August days: 6th (Jack Perkins), 17th (Jonathan Guzman), 18th (Tyler McKay), 19th (Malvin Matos), 22nd (Ben Pelletier), and 30th (Cole Stobbe).
