NBA DRAFT 2010 NOTES

- 103 players applied for early entry in NBA Draft 2010, including 80 players from U.S. colleges and institutions and 23 international players. Up until last year, domestic early entry candidates had until 10 days prior to the draft to withdraw their names, provided they had not hired an agent. This year, a rule change by the NCAA required players to withdraw their names by May 8 in order to retain their eligibility. International early entry candidates still have until 10 days prior to the draft to withdraw.
- Of the 60 players that were drafted in 2009, eight spent time in the NBA D-League this past season, the fifth in which NBA teams were allowed to assign players. They ranged from the second overall pick (Hasheem Thabeet) to the 58th pick (Lester Hudson). Forty-nine players from the past three draft classes have seen time in the NBA D-League. In all, 24 players were assigned to the NBA D-League from NBA rosters during the 2009-10 season.
- There were six college seniors selected in the first round of the 2009 NBA Draft. Of the 30 players selected in the first round, 20 had at least two years experience at the college level. There were four college freshman selected, after a record 10 in 2008.
- Getting the No. 1 pick doesn't guarantee that you'll be making the playoffs right away. Only four No. 1 picks have won NBA Rookie of the Year and helped their teams into the playoffs that same season: David Robinson, Chris Webber, Tim Duncan and Derrick Rose. Only five No. 1 picks have ever led the team that drafted them to an NBA championship since the NBA/ABA merger in 1976: Magic Johnson, James Worthy, Hakeem Olajuwon, Robinson and Duncan.
- NBA teams continue to find quality players in the second round of the NBA Draft. Of the 30 players chosen in the second round of the 2009 draft, 17 played in the NBA this past season. Eleven other players have their rights held by NBA teams. Only two players – Goran Suton (50th) and Jack McClinton (51st) -- were cut in training camp. New Orleans' Marcus Thornton (43rd) averaged 14.5 points on his way to earning NBA All-Rookie Second Team honors. Detroit's Jonas Jerebko (39th) appeared in 80 games (73 starts) and averaged 9.3 points and 6.0 rebounds.
- The Road Less Traveled: Wesley Matthews and Garrett Temple were very good college players at Marquette and LSU, respectively, who were not invited to Chicago in May 2009. Temple didn't even garner an invite to Portsmouth. They both made NBA rosters and, particularly Matthews, contributed significantly to their teams this past season, proving once again that evaluating pro prospects is not an exact science. Matthews earned a starting position for the Utah Jazz, going from an undrafted free agent to guarding Kobe Bryant in the playoffs. Temple also went undrafted, but after call-ups from the D-League by the Houston Rockets and the Sacramento Kings, he finally stuck at the end of the season with the San Antonio Spurs.
- At least one son of a former NBA player has been selected in the last seven NBA drafts: Mike Dunleavy (2002), Luke Walton (2003), Jackson Vroman (2004), Sean May (2005), Ronnie Brewer (2006), Al Horford (2007), Patrick Ewing Jr. (2008), Stephen Curry, Gerald Henderson and Austin Daye (2009).
- • Though more common in the second round, teams are still not against taking international players in the first round and waiting a few years for some kind of return on the investment. Ricky Rubio (5th), Victor Claver (22nd) and Christian Eyenga (30th) were all selected in the first round in 2009, but didn't play in the NBA this past season. In the 2008 draft, Oklahoma City's Serge Ibaka (24th) was the only international player selected in the first round who didn't play in the NBA that season. In the 2007 draft, the Phoenix Suns (Rudy Fernandez, 24th), San Antonio Spurs (Tiago Splitter, 28th) and Philadelphia 76ers (Petteri Koponen, 30th) spent first-round picks on international players who didn't play in the NBA that season (Portland traded for the rights to Fernandez and Koponen on draft night).

- This year marks the 26th Draft Lottery in NBA history. With a record of 48-34 in 2007-08, the Golden State Warriors are the winningest team in NBA history to qualify for the Draft Lottery. The previous winningest team was the 2000-2001 Houston Rockets (45-37). The Rockets finished 13th in the drawing and wound up drafting Richard Jefferson (who was later traded to New Jersey). In 1986, both the Los Angeles Clippers and Phoenix Suns sported the two best lottery team records at 32-50. The Clippers won the top pick, which was automatically sent to Philadelphia as part of trade. The Sixers then traded the pick to Cleveland, which selected Brad Daugherty No. 1 overall. The odds were again defied in 1993 as the Orlando Magic (41-41) jumped over 10 teams to claim the top pick, which they used to select Chris Webber, who was later traded to Golden State in exchange for Penny Hardaway and three future number one picks.
- Last year, six players who played in the 2009 Portsmouth Invitational Tournament heard their names called on draft night: DeMarre Carroll (Memphis, 27th), Jermaine Taylor (Washington, 32nd – rights traded to Houston), Jon Brockman (Portland, 38th – rights traded to Sacramento), Taylor Griffin (Phoenix, 48th), Robert Vaden (Charlotte, 54th – rights traded to Oklahoma City) and Ahmad Nivins (Dallas, 56th). Six others – Alade Aminu, Tony Gaffney, Alonzo Gee, Kenny Hasbrouck, Marcus Landry and Wesley Matthews spent time in the NBA this season despite going undrafted.
- As the draft continues to get deeper each year, more ‘first-round talents’ get pushed into the second round. While the second round affords no guarantees, teams have taken to the idea of giving a three-year contract, at a reasonable price, to players they feel may have slipped through the cracks and have great potential. A three-year deal allows the team to secure the player’s ‘Bird rights,’ meaning they can exceed the salary cap in order to re-sign him. In 2001, the Golden State Warriors nabbed Gilbert Arenas in the second round, but only signed him to a two-year deal, and were unable to match the offer sheet he signed with Washington in 2003.
- In the early days, the draft used to last as long as teams desired, with the proceedings ending only when every team tired of calling out names. As of 1973, the draft lasted an amazing 20 rounds (at least it did for the fledgling Buffalo Braves, who needed all the players they could get after winning only 21 games the season before). In 1974, the league adopted a 10-round NBA Draft, a format that stayed in place until 1985, when it was scaled back to seven rounds. After three years of seven-round drafts, the draft was shaved to three rounds in 1988 and to its current length of two rounds in 1989.

Player Eligibility and NBA Draft

(Excerpted from the Collective Bargaining Agreement)

Section 1. Player Eligibility.

(a) No player may sign a Contract or play in the NBA unless he has been eligible for selection in at least one (1) NBA Draft. No player shall be eligible for selection in more than two (2) NBA Drafts.

(b) A player shall be eligible for selection in the first NBA Draft with respect to which he has satisfied all applicable requirements of Section 1(b)(i) below and one of the requirements of Section 1(b)(ii) below:

(i) The player (A) is or will be at least 19 years of age during the calendar year in which the Draft is held, and (B) with respect to a player who is not an international player (defined below), at least one (1) NBA Season has elapsed since the player's graduation from high school (or, if the player did not graduate from high school, since the graduation of the class with which the player would have graduated had he graduated from high school); and

(ii)

(A) The player has graduated from a four-year college or university in the United States (or is to graduate in the calendar year in which the Draft is held) and has no remaining intercollegiate basketball eligibility; or

(B) The player is attending or previously attended a four-year college or university in the United States, his original class in such college or university has graduated (or is to graduate in the calendar year in which the Draft is held), and he has no remaining intercollegiate basketball eligibility; or

(C) The player has graduated from high school in the United States, did not enroll in a four-year college or university in the United States, and four calendar years have elapsed since such player's high school graduation; or

(D) The player did not graduate from high school in the United States, and four calendar years have elapsed since the graduation of the class with which the player would have graduated had he graduated from high school; or

(E) The player has signed a player contract with a "professional basketball team not in the NBA" (defined below) that is located anywhere in the world, and has rendered services under such contract prior to the Draft; or

(F) The player has expressed his desire to be selected in the Draft in a writing received by the NBA at least sixty (60) days prior to such Draft (an "Early Entry" player); or

(G) If the player is an "International player" (defined below), and notwithstanding anything contained in subsections (A) through (F) above:

(1) The player is or will be twenty-two (22) years of age during the calendar year of the Draft; or

(2) The player has signed a player contract with a 'professional basketball team not in the NBA' (defined below) that is located in the United States, and has rendered services under such contract prior to the Draft; or

(3) The player has expressed his desire to be selected in the Draft in a writing received by the NBA at least sixty (60) days prior to such Draft (an 'Early Entry' player).

(c) For purposes of this Article X, an 'International player' is a player: (i) who has maintained a permanent residence outside of the United States for at least the three (3) years prior to the Draft, while participating in the game of basketball as an amateur or as a professional outside of the United States; (ii) who has never previously enrolled in a college or university in the United States; and (iii) who did not complete high school in the United States.

Section 6. Application to 'Early Entry' Players.

If a player who is eligible for the Draft pursuant to Section 1(b)(ii)(F) or (b)(ii)(G)(3) above (an 'Early Entry' player) is selected in such Draft by a Team, the following rules apply:

(a) Subject to Section 6(b) below, if the player does not thereafter play intercollegiate basketball, then the Team that drafted him shall, during the period from the date of such Draft to the date of the Draft in which the player would, absent his becoming an Early Entry player, first have been eligible to be selected, be the only Team with which the player may negotiate or sign a Player Contract, provided that such Team makes a Required Tender to the player each year by the date specified in Section 4(a) above. For purposes hereof, the Draft in which such player would, absent his becoming an Early Entry player, first have been eligible to be selected, will be deemed the 'Subsequent Draft' as to that player, and the rules applicable to a player who has been drafted in a Subsequent Draft will apply. If the player, having been selected in a Draft for which he was eligible as an Early Entry player, has not signed a Player Contract with the Team that drafted him in such Draft following a Required Tender by that Team and is not drafted in the Subsequent Draft (as defined in the previous sentence), he shall become a Rookie Free Agent.

(b) If the player does thereafter play intercollegiate basketball, then the Team that drafted him shall retain the exclusive NBA rights to negotiate with and sign the player for the period ending one (1) year from the date of the Draft in which the player would, absent his becoming an Early Entry player, first have been eligible to be selected, provided that such Team makes a Required Tender to the player each year by the date specified in Section 4(a) above. For purposes hereof, the Draft in which such player would, absent his becoming an Early Entry player, first have been eligible to be selected, will be deemed the 'Initial Draft' as to that player. The next NBA Draft shall be deemed the 'Subsequent Draft' as to that player, and the rules applicable to a player who has been drafted in a Subsequent Draft will apply.

Career Highlights: Won back-to-back Ivy League Defensive Player of the Year awards his junior and senior seasons. He won the award in the first two years it was given. Helped lead Cornell to Sweet 16 his senior season. Led the Ivy league in field goal percentage (.633) and rebounding (8.1 rpg) as a senior.

Senior (2009-10): Was a unanimous First-Team All-Ivy League pick and won the league's Defensive Player of the Year honor for the second straight year. The conference's leading field goal percentage shooter (.633) and rebounder (8.1 rpg) also ranked second in blocked shots (1.9 bpg). Averaged 12.4 points and 2.3 assists on the offensive end. Was especially good against high major opponents, recording 19 points, 11 rebounds and five blocks at St. John's; 17 points, seven rebounds and three blocks at Alabama; 12 points and 10 rebounds at Syracuse; and 12 points, six rebounds and three assists at Kansas. He posted 16 points and seven rebounds vs. Temple and another 12 points, seven rebounds and four assists against Wisconsin.

Junior (2008-09): Was a repeat selection on the All-Ivy League Second Team and captured the first Defensive Player of the Year honor in conference history. The Ivy League's leading rebounder (7.2 rpg) and shot-blocker (2.1 bpg), Foote was among the team leaders in scoring (third, 11.8 ppg) and assists (fourth, 2.3 apg) while starting 30 contests. His 64 blocked shots ranked second on the school's single-season list and 38th in Division I. He ranked in the top 10 in six statistical categories among Ivy League players. Had three double-doubles and was second on the team with 20 double-figure scoring efforts. Had a career-high 25 points in the win over La Salle, had 20 points, seven rebounds and five blocks against St. John's, and notched 19 points, eight rebounds and seven blocked shots vs. Loyola (Md).

Sophomore (2007-08): Averaged 7.9 points, 6.3 rebounds and 1.4 blocked shots per game while playing in 22 games off the bench. He shot 55 percent from the floor in 21.5 minutes per game. Ranked fifth in the Ivy League in rebounding and third in blocked shots overall, while ranking third in defensive rebounding (4.45) and fourth in offensive rebounding (1.82). He ended the season with 11 double-figure scoring and four double-figure rebounding games to go along with four double-doubles.

Freshman (2005-06): He spent a year and a half at St. Bonaventure University, making the team as a walk-on during the fall of 2005-06. He redshirted his freshman season before leaving the program prior to the 2006-07 campaign.

Strengths: True seven-footer with excellent hands. Can score in the post on jump-hooks and short jumpers. Uses his length to be an effective rebounder and shotblocker, despite some athletic limitations.

Personal: His father, Don, played basketball at Niagara from 1976-1979. Was enrolled in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Career Highlights: Cornell's career scoring leader with 2,028 points. Was instrumental in leading Big Red to NCAA's Sweet 16 as a senior. Became the Ivy League's fifth 2,000 point scorer.

Senior (2009-10): Became the third Cornell player to earn Ivy League Player of the Year honors, doing so unanimously, and was picked to the first team by each of the Ivy coaches for the third straight season. Averaged 17.5 points, 4.0 rebounds and 1.8 assists while setting an Ivy League record with his 109 three-point field goals. He shot 47 percent from the field, 43 percent from beyond the arc and 83 percent from the line while chipping in career highs of 36 steals and 13 blocked shots. The school's career scoring leader (2,028 points) became the Ivy League's fifth 2,000 point scorer with his 24-point effort in the NCAA tournament win over Wisconsin. Has averaged 22.0 points and 4.0 rebounds while making 17-of-25 shots from the floor (68 percent) and 7-of-11 from beyond the arc (64 percent) in the first two rounds of the NCAA tournament.

Junior (2008-09): Unanimous selection to the All-Ivy First-Team. Led Cornell and ranked second in the Ivy League in scoring (18.5 ppg.), while chipping in 3.6 rebounds and 2.6 assists. Set the school's single-season scoring record with his 572 points, while his 97 three-pointers also broke his own record set in 2006-07. Matched the school's single-game three-point record with nine makes as part of a 33-point effort at Syracuse, part of his 30 double-figure scoring games in 2008-09. Had 12 games with at least 20 points during the season, including averaging 23.0 points in two contests against Penn. He had 24 points, five rebounds and three assists at Harvard.

Sophomore (2007-08): Was a unanimous First-Team All-Ivy pick. The team's leading scorer throughout the season, Wittman ranked fifth in the Ancient Eight (15.1 ppg.). Also ranked among the top 10 in several other categories, including three-point field goals made (second, 2.79), 3-point field goal percentage (third, .459) and field goal percentage (sixth, .465). Wittman hit for double figures in 24 of the team's 28 games and scored 20 or more points six times. Led the team in scoring in 10 contests and was the leading rebounder in five games.

Freshman (2006-07): Was named 2006-07 Ivy league Rookie of the Year and was picked as a Second-Team All-Ivy selection. Ranked fourth in the Ivy League in scoring (15.6 ppg.) and paced the circuit in three-point field goals with a school record 93, 21 more than any other player in the league and fourth all-time in conference history. That total ranked 12th nationally. He also placed sixth in three-point percentage (.431, 22nd in the country) and second in free throw percentage (.887). His 436 points set a freshman scoring record and was the 16th-highest total for any player in school history. Reached double figures in 25 of the team's 28 games.

Strengths: Terrific pure shooter with a quick release and outstanding range. Thrives in catch-and-shoot situations. Has an advanced feel for the game and plays within himself.

Personal: Father Randy was Big Ten Player of the Year at Indiana in 1981 and went on to play nine seasons in the NBA for Atlanta, Sacramento and Indiana before retiring in 1992 with a career average of 7.4 points per game (.501 FG%) in 543 games. EARLY ENTRY CANDIDATE HISTORY

Following a lawsuit filed by Spencer Haywood, the NBA was required by the courts to grant admission to underclassmen even though their college classes had not graduated. Accordingly, in 1971 the league held a separate draft for underclassmen wishing to enter the NBA who displayed financial hardship. Beginning in 1972, such players were included in the regular NBA draft. In 1976, the hardship requirement was eliminated and the current Early Entry procedure was adopted whereby any athlete with remaining college eligibility who desires to enter the NBA Draft may do so by renouncing his college eligibility in a letter to the Commissioner postmarked 45 days before the draft.
