Champions Tour

Welcome to the 2010 and 31st season of the Champions Tour. On behalf of our players, staff, tournaments and sponsors, we would like to thank the members of the media for the coverage you provide year in and year out. We look forward to working with you in the year ahead.

Thanks in part to our partnership with you, we're encouraged by how well our brand continues to perform and our Tour continues to grow. For 2010, the Champions Tour will feature 26 official Charles Schwab Cup events, an increase from 25 in 2009. The Champions Tour will play in 15 states and four countries, including a landmark event in South Korea, the New Songdo City Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Club Korea in Songdo International Business District.

Our television partners will broadcast all 26 events. Twenty tournaments will receive complete coverage on GOLF CHANNEL, and five events, including three of the five majors, will have weekend network coverage on NBC and CBS. Additionally the Senior British Open will be carried on ESPN and ESPN2.

Our solid 2010 schedule awaits another strong Champions Tour rookie class that includes Fred Couples, Paul Azinger, Corey Pavin, Mark Calcavecchia and Kenny Perry. Adding these names to the great list of Champions Tour players the likes of Loren Roberts, Fred Funk, Jay Haas, Jeff Sluman, Fuzzy Zoeller and World Golf Hall of Fame members Bernhard Langer, Ben Crenshaw, Nick Price, Tom Kite and Tom Watson, among others, bodes well for our product and our future success.

We're fortunate that Champions Tour players pride themselves on their accessibility and interaction with the media, sponsors and fans. They're committed to making the tournament week a rewarding and enjoyable experience for everyone.

That commitment extends off the course, as well, with so many of our players and their spouses involved with charitable initiatives of their own—in addition to those charitable endeavors for the communities served by our tournaments each week. Our collective charitable efforts will be a main focus for 2010. The PGA TOUR's "Together, anything's possible" charity platform will put an increased emphasis on the efforts of our players, tournaments, volunteers, sponsors, fans and charities, thus making our charitable mission an integral component of our event communications each week.

The extensive charitable mission of the PGA TOUR, Champions Tour and Nationwide Tour makes a significant impact in communities across the country. To that end we appreciate your efforts with your readers and viewers to convey how our tournaments continue to generate charitable contributions that touch the lives of so many people.

Our year-long competition, the Charles Schwab Cup, will be entering its 10th season in 2010. It's designed to recognize the Champions Tour's leading player, rewarding both top finishes and week-in/week-out consistency in all official events. In 2009 Loren Roberts captured his second Charles Schwab Cup in the last three years by 319 points over John Cook to collect the Cup's first-place annuity of $1 million. Players receive points for top-10 finishes and ties based on each week's money distribution, with $1,000 earned being the equivalent of one Charles Schwab Cup point. Double points will again be awarded at the five major championships, and double points will also be awarded to the entire 30-player field at the season-ending Charles Schwab Cup Championship, to be held in San Francisco at Harding Park, site of the 2009 Presidents Cup, November 1-7, 2010.

We appreciate your continued support of the Champions Tour. As always, the Communications department at headquarters in Ponte Vedra Beach, FL, as well as our media officials on site at each tournament, are ready to assist you with your interview and informational requests. Have a great year!

Sincerely,

Timothy W. Finchem

PGA TOUR Overview

The name of our organization is the PGA TOUR, a tax-exempt membership group of professional golfers that plays more than 100 official money tournaments on three Tours – the PGA TOUR, Champions Tour and Nationwide Tour. Our headquarters are located in Ponte Vedra Beach, FL, southeast of Jacksonville.

We should be referred to as the PGA TOUR or TOUR (on second reference), but not the PGA, as we are a different organization than the PGA of America.

The PGA is the Professional Golfers' Association of America, a membership organization for the nation's club professionals. The PGA runs the PGA Championship, Senior PGA Championship and Ryder Cup Matches, among other championships. The PGA headquarters are located in Palm Beach Gardens, FL.

The PGA TOUR and PGA of America were affiliated until 1968, when the tournament players, a small subset of the total PGA membership, broke away to form the Tournament Players Division and gain more control of their finances and tournament schedule. The Tournament Players Division was renamed the PGA TOUR in 1975.

Two other American golf organizations are involved in men's professional tournament play, independent of the TOUR but with their marquee events included on the TOUR schedule as non-TOUR co-sponsored tournaments. The United States Golf Association, with headquarters in Far Hills, NJ, oversees the national championships (U.S. Open, U.S. Senior Open, U.S. Amateur, U.S. Women's Amateur, etc.) and administers the Rules of Golf, among other duties. The Augusta (GA) National Golf Club plays host to the Masters Tournament. The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland oversees the British Open and administers the world's golf rules jointly with the USGA.

The PGA TOUR is the world's foremost golf Tour, with official money events from January through November. This year is the fourth in a new era for the PGA TOUR with the continuation of the FedExCup, a season-long points competition culminating with the PGA TOUR Playoffs for the FedExCup.

The Champions Tour continues to combine extremely competitive golf for champions of the game age 50 and older with a fan-friendly platform that promotes "inside the ropes" and game-improvement for its fans. The Charles Schwab Cup, a season-long, points-based competition, enters its 10th season.

About the Champions Tour

Collectively, the Champions Tour has the most-recognizable and accomplished players in the game, with 16 World Golf Hall of Fame Members actively competing in its events and numerous other major championship winners among its members. The Champions Tour is a tax-exempt membership organization of professional golfers age 50 and older. Conceived in 1980 as the Senior PGA Tour, it started with just four events and purses totaling $475,000. The Champions Tour will conduct 26 official Charles Schwab Cup events in 2010, offering $51.5 million in official prize money, with the average tournament purse measuring in at a record $1.98 million. The Champions Tour's primary purpose is to provide significant competitive and earnings opportunities for players age 50 and older, to protect the integrity of the game and to help grow the reach of the game in the U.S. and around the world.

History

1980 – 2009. The Tour enters its 31st season in 2010.

Charity

The Champions Tour and its tournaments generate significant sums of money for charity. In 2009, tournaments on all three Tours (PGA TOUR, Champions Tour and Nationwide Tour) donated more than $100 million to charitable and community organizations. The PGA TOUR surpassed the $1-billion mark in all-time charitable giving in 2005. While it took 67 years to reach that total, all three Tours are now on track to achieve the second billion in the next four to six years. "Together, anything's possible" is the PGA TOUR's and Champions Tour's charitable platform that focuses on the efforts of our players, tournaments, volunteers, sponsors, fans and charities. The Champions Tour's charitable mission is an integral component of its value proposition and charitable donations have a significant impact in the communities served by Champions Tour events.

2010 Schedule

The 2010 season will feature 26 official Charles Schwab Cup events, an increase from 25 in 2009. The Champions Tour will play in 15 states and four countries, including the Dominican Republic, Canada, Scotland and, for the first time, South Korea.

The official season kicks off on the Big Island of Hawaii at the Mitsubishi Electric Championship at Hualalai (January 18-24), with the first full-field event coming three weeks later at The ACE Group Classic, which will now be played at The Quarry in Naples, FL. The season will conclude with the Charles Schwab Cup Championship (Nov. 1-7), which relocates to San Francisco's Harding Park for 2010 and 2011. Harding Park was the site of the 2009 Presidents Cup.

Two new events have been added to the schedule for 2010. The Mississippi Gulf Resort Classic will be held April 26-May 2 in Biloxi at the Tom Fazio-designed Fallen Oak Golf Club. In September, the Champions Tour will host a landmark event in Asia, the New Songdo City Championship, at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Club Korea in Songdo International Business District, located 40 miles west of Seoul in South Korea's largest current economic-development project.

Ensure, part of the Abbott Laboratories Nutrition Group, will title sponsor the 2010 Champions Tour event in Hickory, NC. The event formerly known as the Greater Hickory Classic at Rock Barn will now become the Ensure Classic at Rock Barn and be played September 27-October 3.

The Westin Savannah Harbor Golf Resort & Spa in Savannah, GA, will once again serve as host to the Champions Tour's and PGA TOUR's longest-running event with a single sponsor, the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf, which enters its 33rd year. The Legends Division remains a two-man better ball event counting as an official win and for official prize money for each team member.

Major Championships (5)

The Champions Tour's lineup of major championships will feature four new top-rated venues: Colorado Golf Club, located just outside of Denver, will host the Senior PGA Championship (May 24-30); Carnoustie Golf Club in Scotland will host the Senior British Open (July 19-25); Sahalee Country Club near Seattle, WA, will host the U.S. Senior Open (July 26-August 1) and the Constellation Energy Senior Players Championship will move to TPC Potomac at Avenel Farms in Potomac, MD (October 4-10). Crosswater Club at Sunriver Resort outside Bend, OR will once again host the JELD-WEN Tradition for the fourth straight year (August 16-22).

Prize Money

$51.5 million – Official Charles Schwab Cup (26 events)
$1.98 million – Average Purse

Charles Schwab Cup

The Charles Schwab Cup, now in its 10th season, designed to recognize the Champions Tour's leading player, rewards both top finishes and week-in/week-out consistency in all official events. Players receive points for top-10 finishes and ties based on each week's money distribution, with $1,000 earned being the equivalent of one Charles Schwab Cup point. Double points will again be awarded at the five major championships and double points will also be awarded to the entire 30-player field at the season-ending Charles Schwab Cup Championship. The Season-long points competition kicks off in Hawaii with 26 official events. The Road to the Charles Schwab Cup culminates in San Francisco at Harding Park, with $2.1 million in payouts awarded to the season's top five leading performers. The winner receives $1 million.

Size of Field

In 2010, the field size for Champions Tour events will be 78 players, except at those tournaments that have specific eligibility criteria.

2009 Recap

The season-ending Charles Schwab Cup Championship in Sonoma, CA, brings the best of the Champions Tour together after they earned their way to the tournament by virtue of their top-30 finishes on the 2009 official money list.

The 25th event of the Champions Tour season, with its $2.5 million purse, is actually two tournaments in one. The Charles Schwab Cup Championship decides not only that week's tournament champion, but it's also the culmination of the season-long points race to determine the Charles Schwab Cup champion.

John Cook cruised to a five-stroke victory to win the tournament over Russ Cochran for his second Champions Tour title in three weeks and fourth overall since joining the Champions Tour in late 2007.

Loren Roberts, on the other hand, had no such cushion in his quest for his second Charles Schwab Cup in three years. Despite another three-win season, which included the Senior British Open, Roberts led the Charles Schwab Cup race by 165 points coming into the Charles Schwab Cup Championship. He said he struggled at the last two events in Texas before Sonoma. To make matters worse, he got off to a slow start the first two rounds of the season-ending tournament.

"All I can say about this week is, for me, there were two tournaments," said Roberts. "I played two totally different golf tournaments in one week. The first two days I really didn't hit it very well, and I really didn't putt well. You know, obviously I'm 1-under par for two days and just basically out of it."

"I just started a whole other tournament on Saturday," he continued, "and just tried to focus on what I needed to do just to change my rhythm and find a little swing, something that worked. I found a little something probably in the last 30 balls that I hit practicing late Friday night."

He found something all right. After opening rounds of 70-73, Roberts closed the deal with a pair of 66s on the weekend to tie Bernhard Langer and Tom Watson for sixth place. His 14th top-10 finish in 22 events overall was good enough to propel him to his second Charles Schwab Cup title after having won his first in 2007. His margin of victory was 319 points over John Cook for another $1-million annuity.

Catching Langer was key with Roberts' weekend charge. Langer, who led the points race for 15 weeks, finished as the leading money-winner on the Champions Tour, and was one of the three golfers who had a chance to pass Roberts at Sonoma. The others were Fred Funk and Jay Haas.

After trailing Langer, then Funk, in the Charles Schwab Cup points list for much of the 2009 season, Roberts took control of the race at the Constellation Energy Senior Players Championship in October and never relinquished his grip on his way to winning the bonus.

"The year that I won it in '07, I did the same thing," Roberts said Sunday at Sonoma Golf Club. "I took over the lead at Constellation. That's been a great golf tournament for me."

The season finale was a reflection of Roberts' season. He didn't start particularly well, but the finish was terrific.

Roberts opened the 2009 season with similarly detached play. Although he won early, at The ACE Group Classic, his golf was indifferent. Then he caught fire. Just like his weekend charge of 12-under for the final 36 holes at the season-ending event in Sonoma, Roberts put it in high gear beginning in April. In a 13-tournament stretch beginning with a third-place finish at the Outback Steakhouse Pro-Am in April, Roberts had 11 top-10 finishes in 13 starts. Included in the stretch was a major victory at the Senior British Open.

"This might be one of my best accomplishments, I think, in golf, just because I really wasn't playing very good the first part of the year," he said. "I won a tournament, but it was on a golf course that was tough and nobody else had seen it [at Sunningdale Golf Club outside of London]. I wasn't playing that well early in the year. To be able to come back and win the Schwab Cup essentially with two thirds of a season was remarkable for me."

By any measure, Roberts' five-year Champions Tour career has been exceptional. Where does the 54-year old go from here? What's his next goal? His response won't come as a surprise to those who appreciate the mindset of professional athletes.

"I feel like I can still always keep working at getting better," he said.

Not only will he keep working to get better, but he's also mindful of obligations that aren't necessarily top of mind with professional athletes in other sports. Roberts often thinks of giving back while embodying the PGA TOUR's charity platform of "Together, anything's possible."

Just ask one of the Sacramento-area school districts. After hearing the plight of high school golf programs in Sacramento from three junior players who were at the Charles Schwab Cup Championship, Roberts began a dialogue with one of the players' dads. Because of budget cuts, Roberts discovered there were nine high schools in the district that were cutting boys' and girls' golf—completely dropping the sport. That totaled 18 teams with 180 student-athletes. Upon learning that $35,000 covers nine schools' golf for the whole year, Roberts committed $35,000 per year for both the 2010-11 and 2011-12 school years donated to the Elk Grove Unified School District's athletic program to help keep the girls' and boys' golf programs going.

"That's what the Charles Schwab Cup allows us to do," said Roberts. "I think that's one of the great things about the Schwab Cup. It's fun to win it. It's an awesome challenge to play all year long. But it allows us to do some things in communities that maybe we wouldn't even know about."

Roberts once again proved that it's not how you start, but how you finish. He was first in the Charles Schwab Cup and first in the hearts of some Sacramento junior golfers. "Together, anything's possible." Indeed.

About the Commissioner

Tim Finchem
PGA TOUR Commissioner

Tim Finchem began his 16th year as commissioner of the PGA TOUR in June 2009. From the time Finchem joined the TOUR management team, he has played a key role in strengthening the PGA TOUR's position as one of the most successful, well-respected sports organizations in the world, and his leadership has helped foster the growth of the game, both domestically and internationally.

During his tenure, Finchem has greatly expanded the earnings opportunities for PGA TOUR players. The TOUR, through its tournaments and sponsors, has dramatically escalated tournament purses and grown total revenues at an unprecedented rate. Since Finchem became commissioner in 1994, the PGA TOUR and its tournaments have raised more than $1 billion for charitable organizations.

Under Finchem's leadership, The Presidents Cup was created in 1994, bringing together the world's best non-European players in team match-play competition against their American counterparts. After eight stagings, The Presidents Cup has grown to be one of the most highly anticipated events on golf's calendar, and the 2011 event is scheduled for Royal Melbourne in Australia.

Finchem has also been instrumental in the formation of the International Federation of PGA Tours and the World Golf Foundation. His personal dedication to the success of the World Golf Foundation's The First Tee initiative has meant that, in just more than 10 years, The First Tee has grown to include more than 200 chapters that reach more than 2.2 million young people.

An additional accomplishment during Finchem's tenure has been the development and introduction of the FedExCup, a season-long points competition that culminates with the PGA TOUR Playoffs for the FedExCup. From 2007-2009, the FedExCup brought an unparalleled level of late-season focus to and interest in the TOUR, as indicated by significant increases in television and online audiences, tournament attendance, sponsor activation and media coverage.

Born in Ottawa, IL, on April 19, 1947, Finchem graduated from Princess Anne High School in Virginia Beach, VA. He attended the University of Richmond on a debate scholarship, receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1969. He graduated from the University of Virginia Law School in 1973. After practicing law in Virginia Beach for three years, Finchem served in the White House as Deputy Advisor to the President in the Office of Economic Affairs in 1978 and 1979. In the early 1980s, Finchem co-founded the National Strategies and Marketing Group in Washington, D.C.

Finchem is the recipient of the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America's Old Tom Morris Award for 2001 and the PGA of America's Distinguished Service Award for 2002. He was awarded the Dick Schaap Lifetime Achievement in Sports Award in 2005.

Finchem is the third commissioner of the PGA TOUR, succeeding Deane Beman. Beman served for 20 years, replacing the late Joe Dey, who had been the TOUR's commissioner in its first five years, 1969-74.

Prior to becoming commissioner on June 1, 1994, Finchem was deputy commissioner and chief operating officer of the TOUR. He joined the TOUR as vice president of business affairs in 1987.

Finchem and his wife, the former Holly Bachand, have four children and live in Ponte Vedra Beach, FL.
