THE HISTORY OF PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL IN READING

The first official baseball organization in the city of Reading was the Reading Athletic Club, which was formed in November of 1858 "for the purpose of taking a game of ball once or twice a week." For the next decade and a half various teams would play other local nines for unofficial titles and bragging rights. Leagues provided little in terms of consistent scheduling or reliable umpiring.

In 1883, the National Agreement was drawn up to provide guidelines for player contracts and define league territories. It also set up an arbitration committee to handle player disputes. The leagues that entered into the agreement were divided, based on salary limits, into major and minor leagues.

The Reading Actives were a member of the Interstate Association, which had agreed to abide by the National Agreement and was one of the two original minor leagues. The Actives played a 68 game schedule in 1883, squaring off against clubs from Brooklyn, Harrisburg, Trenton, Wilmington, Pottsville and Camden (which disbanded in July). Baseballtown's first minor league team finished 33-35 and in third place, but the league would disband after the season.

Various reincarnations of the Actives appeared sporadically throughout the next 12 years as teams would often fold or move midway through the season. Only one other Actives team, the 1894 Pennsylvania State League squad, started and finished a campaign in Reading. Those Actives tallied a 61-50 mark, good enough for another third place finish.

In 1897, the Reading Coal Heavers began a four year run in the Atlantic League by becoming the first city team to reach the dubious 100 loss plateau, finishing 40-100 and 52.5 games out in eighth place. The following season Reading rebounded to post a 72-56 record (3rd place) and finished 46-40 (4th) the year after that. In 1900, the Coal Heavers were 16-16 in mid-June when the league disbanded. The most noteworthy event of Reading's stay in the Atlantic League came on July 5, 1898, when the world's first professional female baseball player signed and played in one game for the Coal Heavers. Lizzie Arlington pitched the final inning of a 5-0 Reading victory over Allentown that day, giving up two hits and a walk but no runs.

It would be another seven years until a minor league franchise returned to Baseballtown. In 1907, the York White Roses of the Class-B Tri-State League relocated their bottom dwelling squad to Reading and became the Pretzels. Four seasons later, Reading would capture its very first title, outdistancing Trenton by 10 games for the 1911 league crown. Unfortunately, Trenton bested the home nine, four games to three, in a best-of-seven post-season series. The highlight of the year was unquestionably the perfect game tossed by George "Jake" Northrop on June 14. It remains the only nine inning perfect game in Baseballtown history.

After spending two of the next three seasons in the Tri-State League, which folded after the 1914 season, a new Pretzels team was born when the Albany Senators of the New York State League moved to Baseballtown in August of 1916. These Pretzels lasted only until the end of 1917, after which the league folded due to the first World War.

After another year's hiatus, the Class-AA International League would call on Reading to assume the reins of the Syracuse franchise. For the next 13 and a half years, teams named the Coal Barons (1919), Marines (1920), Aces (1921-22) and Keystones (1923-1932) would call Baseballtown home. Mostly remembered for their futility, the Reading IL clubs finished above .500 only twice, with their best record coming in 1923 (85-79, 3rd place). The 1926 assemblage scratched out just 31 wins against 129 losses and had drifted 75 games out of first by the end of the year. The 1927 team was slightly better, going 43-123. Yet they still managed to set an International League record for consecutive losses with 31.

Despite the franchise's struggles, there were several bright spots from the International League era. The Keys, owned by the Chicago Cubs from May 1927 until the end of 1930, produced several Major League players in those three and a half seasons. Most notable were shortstop Bill Jurges and pitcher Lon Warneke, who both had fine big league careers. Warneke even threw a 7-inning rain shortened no-hitter for the Keys in 1930. The top individual accomplishment, though, came during the 1929 season, when a Reading outfielder produced one of the greatest hitting displays of all time. In mid-August of that year, George Quellich collected 15 hits in 15 consecutive at-bats over a four game span, setting a record for organized baseball that stands to this day.

After the Keystones were uprooted from Baseballtown in August 1932, Reading ventured into the Class-A New York-Penn League (known today as the Eastern League) as a Boston Red Sox affiliate. In 1933, the Sox finished the season with an 80-56 mark and had the most wins in the league. But Binghamton (79-55) had a winning percentage just .002 points better than Reading and was awarded the championship. Following a third place finish in 1934, the affiliation with Boston ended and the Brooklyn Dodgers moved in for 1935 season. It was a short-lived stay for the Reading Brooks, though, as the club moved to Allentown in July.

The next minor league venture for Baseballtown didn't come until 1940, when the unaffiliated Reading Chicks made the most of their one year fling in the Class-B Interstate League. The Chicks captured the pennant by four games, then quickly disposed of Trenton, three games to none in the playoff semifinals. But the city's first postseason crown would prove elusive again as Lancaster took the best-of-seven title tilt, four games to one. The following year, Brooklyn returned to Reading and replaced the Chicks with their own team. These Brooks, which featured future Dodger outfielder Carl Furillo, at least finished the schedule in Reading, settling for third place and a first round exit in the playoffs. But they left town in the off-season, creating a void that went unfilled for ten long years.

In the spring of 1952, organized baseball returned to Reading as the Cleveland Indians moved their Eastern League franchise here from Wilkes-Barre. The Indians would call the new Municipal Memorial Stadium home for the next decade, producing two pennant winners and, at last, a postseason championship. In sharp contrast to the sub-par IL teams, this Reading franchise was a contender almost every season. They qualified for the playoffs in their first six seasons and finished above .500 each of the first eight years.

Leaguer Rocky Colavito, the Indians chalked up a 101-47 record, setting an EL standard for wins that remains to this day.

Two years later, the Indians were again atop the regular season standings. They were led by Don Minnick, Reading's last 20-game winner, and All-Star outfielder Roger Maris. Despite taking the pennant by 6.5 games, the Tribe failed to advance past the semifinal round of the second season.

Alas, after five straight years of postseason heartache, the Indians finally got to celebrate a playoff title in 1957. Despite a third place finish, Reading tore through the EL postseason by sweeping second place Schenectady and upending regular season champ Albany, three games to one.

Unfortunately, the glory days of Reading Indians baseball seemed to disappear after the title run of '57. The Tribe returned to the playoffs just once more in their final four seasons and were swept in the opening series the only time they qualified. A franchise that accumulated a tremendous .558 winning percentage over its first nine campaigns unceremoniously went out in 1961 as a last place ball club.

Once again the city was left without a minor league team. But this break would last only a year. In 1963 the Red Sox were lured back to Baseballtown for a two-year stint in the EL and the Indians returned for one final go-round in 1965, after which there was one more season without organized baseball.

Then came 1967, a landmark year for Reading. The Philadelphia Phillies decided to end their relationship with Macon of the Southern League and place their Class-AA affiliate in Baseballtown. Out of the 118 minor league teams affiliated with a Major League parent club that year, only Reading and three others have remained associated with the same organization through the 2004 season.

It didn't take long for the hometown fans to warm up to the little Phils and for the Phils to reward them with a championship. Like the Indians before them, the Phillies endeared the Reading faithful out of the gate by rattling off a string of winning seasons - nine to be exact. After a 70-69 inaugural year, Reading improved to 81-59 in its sophomore campaign and landed in the postseason. After downing Binghamton two games to none, the Phillies erased regular season king Pittsfield three games to one in the EL Championship Series.

Unfortunately, the Phils did not have a chance to defend their title the next season. Once again a second place effort was good enough for a postseason berth. However, the 1969 playoffs were cancelled due to rain after only one game was completed in each semifinal series.

1970 produced another fine season in Baseballtown, with the Phils assuming their third consecutive second place distinction. Tied with Waterbury at the end of the regular season, the two teams met in a winner-take-all one game playoff, which was won by the Pirates, 3-2. The center of attention all season was slugging first baseman Greg Luzinski, who led the league in batting average (.325), RBIs (120) and runs scored (94) while also smacking 33 home runs - second only to Richie Zisk's 34.

The next two seasons brought quality teams but no titles to Reading. The '71 edition was loaded with talent, including future Hall of Fame third baseman Mike Schmidt. Ironically, Schmidt played shortstop for the Phillies that season while the hot corner was manned by Bob Boone, one of the best MLB catchers of his era. Also a member of that R-Phils lineup was future big league slugger Andre Thornton.

Up until 1973, there were four Reading teams that captured regular season flags and two other clubs that won postseason titles. The '73 R-Phils would be the first to secure both. A mere half game advantage gave the Phillies the National Division title over Sherbrooke and set them up for a best-of-five series against Pittsfield for the title. For the second time in six years the Phillies brought home the postseason spoils with a three games to one championship victory.

From 1974 to 1982 the Reading Phillies continued to be an above average team, posting six records of .500 or better. But with the exception of the division-winning 1975 squad, there wasn't much to celebrate. Four times in those nine years they made the playoffs and on each occasion they were bounced without winning a game.

Championship caliber baseball would return to Municipal Stadium in a big way in 1983. Voted by Baseball America as the 62nd best minor league team of all time, the '83 R-Phils dominated the Eastern League to the tune of 96 wins and 44 losses. Led by EL MVP Jeff Stone's 90 stolen bases and 109 runs, the flying Phils swiped 272 sacks - 100 more than any other team in franchise history - and scored 801 times. Along with Stone, catcher Darren Daulton and second baseman Juan Samuel would earn promotions to Philadelphia in September. Victims of the big club's own push to make the playoffs, Reading couldn't overcome the loss of its top players and fell to fourth place New Britain in the semifinals.

Failing to garner any momentum from the amazing 1983 season, the Phils reeled off two last place finishes in a row before reemerging as a force to be reckoned with during the 1986 campaign. A 77-59 effort in the regular season led the league and allowed Reading to open with sub-.500 Glens Falls in the opening round of the playoffs. The Phils ousted the Tigers in four games and met Vermont in the Championship Series. Tied at two games apiece, the fifth and deciding game was played in Reading. Despite a valiant rally in the final inning, the Phillies came up just short as the Reds held on for the title clinching victory.

The close-but-no-cigar '86 season would be the Phils' last legitimate run at the EL crown for the next decade. Only two Reading teams qualified for the playoffs in that stretch and neither made it to the finals. The 1987 club was the only one to claim a spot higher that fourth in the standings.

But the city's fortune would take a turn for the better in 1995. The Phillies finished the regular season tied with Trenton for the best record in the Southern Division at 73-69. In the first round of the Eastern League playoffs, the Phillies swept the Thunder 3-0. In the Championship Series Reading defeated New Haven, 3-2, taking the deciding game at home. Reading hit .299 as a team in eight playoff games. The team also hit 21 home runs during the 1995 playoffs after they drilled a then club-record 118 during the year.

for the playoffs. Little did the Reading faithful realize that Held would hit 26 more homers in 1996 and another 26 in 1997 to give him 53 for his career - at the time the most by one player in Reading's professional baseball history.

Reading fans were treated to a sneak preview of Philadelphia's nucleus for the new century in 1999. Pat Burrell and Jimmy Rollins highlighted a roster that fetured several future Major Leaguers. It was in Reading in 1999 that Burrell first played left field and where Rollins solidfied his claim as the Phillies shortstop of the future.

Baseballtown was treated to another title team in 2000. A revitalized Phillies minor league operation proved to be the recipe for success as the Phils cruised to the top position in the Southern Division, besting second place Harrisburg by 9.5 games. But the Senators were still the four-time defending league champions and the first game of the Southern Division Series looked like it would go Harrisburg's way. After surrendering four insurance runs to fall behind 9-4 in the top of the 9th, Reading staged one of the greatest comebacks in the city's history: a six-run uprising which was capped by pinch-hitter Carmine Cappuccio's opposite field walk-off grand slam. The miraculous 10-9 victory fueled a three game sweep by Reading. After taking Game One from New Haven in the Championship Series, the Phils ran out of steam and settled for league runner-up.

In 2001, the Phillies qualified for the playoffs with a 77-65 record and a second place finish in the Southern Division. Led by Eastern League MVP Marlon Byrd, Reading advanced to the EL Championship Series by defeating Erie three games to one. On the morning of September 11, however, the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington, D.C. shook the nation and brought everything in the sports world to a halt. Game One, slated for that night in New Britain, was postponed. Two days later, the series was cancelled and the Phillies and Rock Cats were declared co-champions of the league.

The 2002-2003 seasons failed to produce a playoff caliber team but there were still some fine individual efforts. In 2002, Ryan Madson earned the distinction of Eastern League Pitcher of the Year and in 2003 outfielder Jeff Inglin became the first Reading Phillie ever to lead the Eastern League in home runs (24) and RBIs (103) in the same season.

In 2004, despite another sub-.500 season, R-Phils fans were treated to a couple more outstanding individual performances. Outfielder John Castellano set an all-time R-Phils record by hitting .340 and just missed out on an Eastern League batting crown. Former #1 Draft pick Gavin Floyd put together a fine year on the mound, leading the league with a 2.57 ERA. He didn't allow a hit in his first outing (5.0 IP) and went the entire month of April (17.0 IP) without surrendering a run. Floyd's best performance came on May 19 when he threw eight no-hit, no-run innings before being replaced in what would become a 1-0 loss at New Hampshire.

But neither Castellano's nor Floyd's campaign could compare to the monster season firstbaseman Ryan Howard put together. Howard smashed Greg Luzinski's single-season Phillies HR record (33) on July 16 and passed Harold Jones' franchise HR mark of 34 two days later. By the time Howard was promoted to Scranton/Wilkes-Barre on July 30, he had raised the Reading record for home runs in a season to 37. Though he was eventually caught in the EL home run race, his .647 slugging percentage and 102 RBI were enough to lead the league and he was rewarded at season's end with the Eastern League MVP honors. Had he remained in Reading, he most certainly would have passed the all-time Eastern League mark of 41 round-trippers. In fact, Howard knocked nine more balls out of the park with the Triple-A Red Barons, giving him a total of 46 HR - most in all of Minor League Baseball. Along with Floyd, he would make his Major League debut in September and hit two more long balls with Philadelphia.

Another ancient record fell in 2005: the record for hits in a season. Outfielder Chris Roberson, one of the best pure athletes to ever put on a Reading uniform, amassed 172 to break former Reading Indian Billy Harrell's franchise record of 170 that stood since 1953. Roberson, the Paul Owens Award winner for best Minor League player in the Phillies system, was a multi-dimensional threat on offense. He could hit the ball out of the park (15 HR) and spray line drives anywhere - to the gaps, down the lines, over infielders' heads - bunt for hits and leg out a single on the slightest hesitation by a fielder. He also stole 34 bags and played tremendously in right or center. Roberson shared the outfield with another speedster in Michael Bourn, who skipped Clearwater to come to Reading. Bourn led the team with 38 steals out of the leadoff spot, where he caused fits for opposing pitchers. Defensively, he shared center and right with Roberson. He threw out 21 base runners from the outfield while earning the reputation as a windshield-wiper type outfielder for his ability to cover a lot of turf.

2006 will no doubt be remembered as a season of comebacks. The Phillies were 32-47 and in last place after a 13-0 drubbing by Erie on July 1, but won 25 of their next 35 games to climb back to .500 and into the playoff chase. Their improbable surge continued as they claimed victories in eight of their next nine to reach a season best 65-58 on August 19. Unfortunately, late season promotions and injuries finally started to take a toll and Reading stumbled a bit at the end of the season, finishing a respectable 71-69 and in third place. The team's never-say-die attitude was a reflection of their top two players, OF/1B Gary Burnham and pitcher Zack Segovia, both of whom could claim remarkable comeback stories of their own. Burnham, who hadn't played for Reading since 2001 and was mired in independent ball early in the season, returned to Baseballtown to hit .341 with 16 home runs and 60 RBI in 80 games, earning him team MVP honors. On August 19, he became the franchise's all-time home run king by belting his 54th long ball in an R-Phils uniform to pass Dan Held. Segovia, a 2nd round draft pick in 2002, was still rebounding from Tommy John surgery and a nightmarish 4-14 campaign in single-A the season before. He re-established himself as one of the organization's top prospects and became the staff ace by winning a team-high 11 games and posting a 3.11 ERA at Reading. Coupled with his 5-1 start at Clearwater, his 16 wins were tied for the most throughout the minors. He also became the first R-Phils pitcher in exactly four years to toss a 9-inning shut-out by blanking Altoona on July 4.

2007 looked like it might be a championship season out of the gate. Led by highly-touted prospects Mike Costanzo, who homered in his first Double-A at-bat, and Javon Moran, who doubled in each of his first five games, the R-Phils surged to the front of the Southern Division by winning eight of 11 to start the season. But the hot streak wouldn't last long and Reading was back to being a .500 club by early May. Despite finishing with a mediocre 71-72 mark overall, the Phils played solid ball at home (39-32) and found some of the most creative ways imaginable to win ballgames at FirstEnergy Stadium, including the first walk-off catcher's interference in professional baseball history on June 20 and a 21-4 drubbing of New Britain on July 2 in which Reading set a franchise record with 13 runs in one inning. The R-Phils also witnessed their first no-hitter in over six years when Carlos Carrasco turned in a six-inning, rain-shortened effort against visiting Altoona in late August.

By season's end, the Phillies had tallied some impressive offensive numbers, led by Costanzo's team-high 27 home runs (one off the league lead), 92 runs scored and 87 RBI and Greg Jacobs' franchise record-tying 39 doubles. While the pitching staff was middle of the pack as a whole, Kyle Kendrick and Mike Zagurski were both impressive enough to skip Triple-A and shoot straight up to Philadelphia in mid-season. Kendrick would be a key part of the starting rotation in the big Phils' NL East title run, going 10-4 with a 3.87 ERA.

Off the field, '07 would be a banner year for the R-Phils and FirstEnergy Stadium as the hallowed ballpark welcomed its 10 millionth fan of all-time. The team also broke its single game attendance record by drawing 9,880 on April 22 and by season's end had drawn more than 400,000 fans for the 10th consecutive year.

2008 was a bit of a paradox in Baseballtown. The club set dubious new franchise marks for lowest winning percentage (.373) and most losses (89) and finished further behind (31 games out of first place) than any team in Reading Phillies history. Yet individually several R-Phils had banner seasons. Lou Marson led the Eastern League with a .433 on-base percentage and was second in batting average (.314). Jason Donald was fifth in the league with a .307 batting average, and along with Marson represented the United States in the Summer Olympics in China. The pitching staff's 5.23 ERA was easily the highest in team history, but Josh Outman and Fabio Castro were both valuable enough to be dealt away in key trades that helped bring Philadelphia the World Series title. And perhaps most amazingly, through all the losses and frustration, the Reading Phillies faithful followers still came out to support their team as the organization led the E.L. in both average and total attendance for the fourth consecutive season.

The 2009 R-Phils were a solid all-around club -- one in which made it back to the postseason for the first time since being crowned cochampions of the league in 2001 (the championship between the R-Phils and the Rock Cats was cancelled due to the terrorist attacks on September 11). The team, which was led by first-year manager Steve Roadcap, went 75-67 and finished in second-place in the South
-- falling to Akron 3-0 in the semifinals. On the mound, Kyle Drabek, a first round pick of the Phillies in the 2006 Major League Baseball Draft, made a very successful transition to Double-A. After beginning the season with Clearwater (Advanced A), Drabek made a mark on the Eastern League as he posted an 8-2 record with a 3.64 ERA over 15 games. On September 15, 2009, the son of former Major League pitcher Doug Drabek, received the Paul Owens Award (the annual award is presented to the top pitcher and top position player in the Phillies' minor league system). Also receiving the Paul Owens Award, was Michael Taylor, who enjoyed a solid campaign with the R-Phils. A product of Stanford University, Taylor batted .333 with 15 home runs and 65 RBI in 86 games before a promotion to Lehigh Valley (AAA), where he continued his solid season. Other offensive stars for the team were Neil Sellers (.317-17-86), Kevin Mahar (.314-12-54), Quintin
Berry (137 hits, 89 runs, and 48 stolen bases) and the number-one prospect in the Philadelphia organization as rated by Baseball America
-- Domonic Brown (.266-3-20, 8 sbs in 37 games).

While the club finished under .500 (69-72) in 2010, it boasted two talented players (Domonic Brown and Vance Worley), who made their Major League debuts in 2010, and shined in the process. Brown, who started the season ranked as the Philadelphia Phillies numberone prospect, hit an impressive .318 with 15 home runs and 47 RBIs over 65 games with Reading. He was promoted to Triple-A Lehigh Valley, where he continued to hit (.346-5-21 over 28 games), and earned his first promotion to the Majors on July 28. The Florida native hit two home runs for Philadelphia and earned a spot on their postseason roster. Along with Brown, Worley started the 2010 season in Baseballtown, and finished as a member of the big Phils. Worley, 23, posted a 9-4 mark with a 3.20 ERA for the R-Phils, before earning a promotion to the Phillies on July 21. The California native appeared in five games for Philadelphia and posted a 1-1 mark with a 1.38 ERA. While both of those players made an impact in Reading, as well as in Philadelphia, there were other players who also excelled in Baseballtown. Tagg Bozied, who made his R-Phils debut in 2010, led the Eastern League with a solid .315 mark, as well as led the R-Phils in home runs (27) and RBIs (92). He was named as an Eastern League Mid-Season All-Star, he also won both an EL Player of the Month and EL Player of the Week award, and was named as the Best Double-A hitter in 2010 by MiLB. 1B Matt Rizzotti also made history in 2010, as he hit an astounding .361 with 16 home runs and 62 RBIs, before earning a promotion to Triple-A Lehigh Valley. Reading's team MVP in 2010 was Michael Spidale, who hit .303 with three home runs, 50 RBIs, 74 runs, and 31 stolen bases.

The 2011 regular season ended in a tight playoff race with the New Britain Rock Cats, with the R-Phils winning five straight and six of their final seven games to clinch second place in the Eastern Division and the final playoff spot in the Eastern League with a 74-68 record. Michael Spidale set the Reading Phillies career hits record with 554 total hits, breaking Aaron Royster's record of 439 hits. The outfielder finished second in the Eastern League in hits (161) and third in batting average (.326) in 133 games played. Rizzotti returned to the team in 2010, leading an offense that finished with a league-best .273 batting average and ranked second place in slugging percentage (.419) and home runs (136). The Eastern League All-Star designated hitter powered the offense by hitting .295 with 24 home runs, 34 doubles, 84 RBI, and 73 runs scored. He ranked second in the league in RBI and third in home runs. On the pitcher's mound, right-hander Austin Hyatt led the league in wins (12), strikeouts (171), and games started (28). He also finished with a 3.85 ERA while going 12-6. 2011 also saw two members of the R-Phils bullpen see time in Philadelphia, as both former first-round pick Joe Savery and Justin DeFratus both were called up in September. Savery actually started the season as a hitter before manager Mark Parent transitioned him to a pitcher, the orignal role Savery held with the team in 2009. At the end of 2011, Parent left the team to become the Chicago White Sox's bench coach under new manager Robin Ventura.

First baseman Darin Ruf led the team in 2012 after smashing 38 home runs - then a Reading record - and knocking in 104 while finishing with a .317 average in 139 games. The R-Phils finished 76-66 overall, second place in the East Division, before falling to the Trenton Thunder three games to one in the Eastern League semifinals. Trevor May led the league that season with 151 strikeouts in 28 starts.

The Phillies farm system saw a dropoff over the next two seasons, with Reading finishing 62-80 (6th place) in 2013 and 66-76 (T-5th) in 2014. Jim Murphy provided some thunder for the team now known as the Fightin Phils, contributing 23 home runs in 2013, and Jake Fox nearly matched him with 22 the following year, a season which also saw the Reading debut of Phillies first round draft pick and future NL All-Star Aaron Nola.

The Fightins rose to the top in 2015, combining for a league-best 101 home runs on the way to an 80-61 finish. Reading swept Binghamton in three games in the semifinals, but was edged out by Bowie in the finale of a best-of-five series for the championship. Andrew Knapp led the offense with a scorching .360 average following a midseason call-up from Clearwater, while Brock Stassi emerged with a .300 average and 90 RBIs. Steven Shacklesford recorded 30 saves on the season, enough to lead the record books.

Reading once again topped the Eastern League in 2016, going 89-52 with 51 wins at America's Classic Ballpark. The organization recorded the highest ever attendance at FirstEnergy Stadium when 9,976 fans entered the ballpark for MEGA Blast fireworks for the Fourth of July (but on the 3rd). They clinched a playoff spot after finishing first over Trenton. But, they only won one game in the playoff matchup, albeit 13-5, and fell in the first round after being shutout twice. This team was full of prospects including Roman Quinn, Rhys Hoskins, Scott Kingery, JP Crawford. Quinn stole 31 bases while Dylan Cozens hit a record 40 homeruns and Hoskins smashed 38. Cozens also knocked in 125 runs, also a R-Phils high. Hoskins 116 RBI put him second on the all-time list. Nick Pivetta was a standout pitcher that summer with 11 wins and 111 strikeouts.

In 2017, Reading cleared the .500 mark by recording 72 wins and 68 losses on the summer, finishing in third place in their division and missing the playoffs. Scott Kingery played half a season batting .313, while numerous other players finished with averages in the .300's. Tyler Viza earned 10 wins with 100 strikeouts. Drew Anderson had nine wins and a 3.59 ERA to help the team. Viza and Anderson, along with Cole Irvin, Garrett Cleavinger, and Brandon Leibrandt all starred in the season and currently pitch for different organizations now. FirstEnergy Stadium had two of its top 25 attendance nights, one on Harley Night and the other on Harry Potter Night, but both with fireworks.

Ranger Suarez had a standout out season as a starter in 2018, holding a 2.76 ERA in 12 starts. Josh Singer and Tyler Gilbert were stellar out of the bullpen. In Manager Greg Legg's last year, the R-Phils slipped to 64-73 for fourth in their division. Gilbert went on to make his Major League Debut in 2021 with the Arizona DiamondBacks, throwing a no-hitter in his first start. He walked three and struck out five in a complete game against the San Diego Padres. Reading had their 10th highest attendance of all-time this summer with 9,787 fans in FirstEnergy Stadium for Harley Night.

Reading bounced back in 2019 with Shawn Williams in his first season at the helm. They went 80-59, winning more than half their games at FirstEnergy Stadium to top the division in the second half. In the playoffs, the Fightins lost three straight to Trenton. Darick Hall led the way batting .333 while David Parkinson pitched seven shutout innings and Spencer Howard allowed one run in seven frames. Parkinson recorded 10 wins with 118 strikeouts and just 39 walks. Parkinson went on to win the Paul Owens award, given to the top Phillies pitching prospect. Addison Russ led the team with 22 saves holding a 2.54 ERA. Connor Brogdon, Bailey Falter, and JD Hammer, and Howard had limited appearances but were finding success. Adonis Medina ate up a lot of innings as a starter as well. The R-Phils had a number of first round picks including Alec Bohm, Mickey Moniak, CC Randolph, and Adam Haseley. Josh Stephen led with a .271 average, Luke Williams batted .233 this season. Hall and Moniak batted in the most runs with 67.

The 2020 Minor League Baseball season was cancelled due to the Coronavirus pandemic. Players were either sent to the Alternate Site in Lehigh Valley to prepare or had to train on their own. Baseballtown passed the time by hosting high school and travel tournaments and extra events from spring to fall.

The R-Phils staff, fans, and players alike were very excited for professional baseball to return to Reading in 2021. Since 1967, the R-Phils have continued their affiliation with the Philadelphia Phillies, even through the pandemic year. The organization, along with one other in Minor League Baseball, holds the title for the longest standing affiliation between a team and their parent club. The season began a month later than usual with Reading opening on May 4th at America's Classic Ballpark against the Erie SeaWolves. There were just 120 games on the schedule with six game series going from Tuesday-Sunday each week. Reading had 10 road trips and 9 home series, because New Hampshire's COVID cases and contract tracing forced an entire week of baseball in Reading to be cancelled- their final homestand of the season. The team played just 114 games. The R-Phils went 48-65 with 69 different players on their roster throughout the summer. They finished fourth in the newly created Double-A Northeast League in the NorthEast Division. Reading brought in Jorge Bonifacio and Brock Stassi to help bolster the squad. Both Bonifacio and rookie Matt Vierling spent time with Philadelphia. Vierling had a standout first season in the Majors. Highly touted prospect Bryson Stott led the team with a .301 average and 94 hits. Stott recieved the Paul Owens award for the Phillies Minor League Player of the Year. He also won the R-Phils team MVP. Brian Marconi, who was promoted from Jersey Shore, recorded a standout saves on the summer. Hans Crouse was received in the Spencer Howard trade from the Texas Rangers. He was stellar with Reading pitching six starts for a 2.73 ERA before getting a spot start in Philadelphia for their final home game of 2021. Mark Appel began the season at America's Classic Ballpark but was promoted to Lehigh Valley at the halfway point. Kyle Dohy had the lowest ERA 2.17 as he was an impressive back-end reliever for Reading.

READING BASEBALL HALL OF FAME

Candidates for the Reading Baseball Hall of Fame are nominated under six categories by the Reading Baseball Hall of Fame Committee. Each summer, prior to a Reading Phillies game, a new class is enshrined. Information on each Hall of Famer can be found on display at FirstEnergy Stadium during the season.

- 1. Former Reading Phillies who have gone on to have outstanding Major League careers.
- 2. Former Reading Phillies who had an outstanding season or seasons while playing in Reading.
- Non-players category which honors managers, coaches and other prominent individuals who have been instrumental in the success of the Reading franchise.
- 4. Players who played for the Reading Indians and Reading Red Sox.
- Outstanding professional baseball teams from Reading.
- 6. Reading Baseball Pioneers: Players from the late 1800s through 1950.

RETIRED NUMBERS

Accomplishments read as they do on each players plague at the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY.

Michael Jack Schmidt 1971 Reading Phillies, number retired June 20, 1991 Philadelphia, N.L., 1972-1989

Unprecedented combination of power and defense with unusual mixture of strength, coordination and speed made him one of the game's greatest third basemen. 7th on all-time list with 548 homers. His 8 home run titles (1 tie) bettered only by Babe Ruth. Belted 40 or more on 3 occasions and topped 30 ten other times. 48 home runs in 1980 most ever by third baseman. Hit 4 in one game in 1976. 3-Time MVP with 10 gold gloves for fielding excellence.

Jack Roosevelt Robinson Number retired April 15, 1997 to honor 50th anniversary of baseball's color barrier falling

Leading N.L. Batter in 1949. Holds fielding mark for second baseman playing in 150 or more games with .992. Led N.L. In stolen bases in 1947 and 1949. Most Valuable Player in 1949. Lifetime batting average .311. Joint record holder for most double plays by second baseman, 137 in 1951. Led second baseman in double plays 1949-50-51-52.

Ryne Dee Sandberg - "Ryno" 1980 Reading Phillies, number retired July 2, 2006

Brooklyn N.L. 1947 To 1956

A sure-handed second baseman with power and speed who dignified the game with his professionalism, quiet leadership and tireless preparation. Set career records among second Basemen for home runs (277 of 282 overall), fielding percentage (.989), Consecutive errorless games in a season (90), and over two seasons (123). Earned nine gold gloves. Led league in runs scored three times. Elected to 10 all-star teams, and named National League MVP in 1984. Helped the Cubs to two division titles, hitting .385 In 10 post-season games.

Robin Evans Roberts 1967 Reading Phillies, number retired 2011

Philadelphia, N.L., 1948-1961; Baltimore, A.L. 1962-1965; Houston, N.L. 1965-66; Chicago, N.L., 1966 He was the ace of the Phillies staff for most of his 14 years in a brilliant 19-season Major League career. The durable workhorse with a superior fastball and pinpoint control won 286 games and compiled six consecutive 20-victory seasons. In 1950, he paced the Phils to their first flag in 35 years with a 20-11 record. A tough competitor, he was a frequent league leader in victories, innings pitched, complete games, shutouts, and strikeouts, topping the National League in wins from 1952-55.

James Paul David Bunning 1972 Reading Phillies manager, number retired 2014

Detroit, A.L., 1955-1963; Philadelphia, N.L., 1964-1967, 1970-1971; Pittsburgh, N.L., 1968-1969; Los Angeles, N.L., 1969 Known for his illustrious 17-year MLB career, spent a season in Baseballtown a year after retired when he managed the Reading Phillies in 1972. A nine-time all-star selection, he was the seventh pitcher in MLB history to throw a perfect game on June 21, 1964, against the New York Mets. At the time, the historical game was the first perfect game thrown in the National League in 84 years. He is also one of just seven pitchers in MLB history to hold the distinction of throwing both a perfect game and no-hitter. Over his Hall of Fame career, Bunning went 224-184 with a 3.27 ERA in 591 games. He struck out 2,855 batters, ranking second all-time at the time of his retirement behind Walter Johnson.
