Cooter Jones

The R-Phils honored former R-Phil Paul "Cooter" Jones with an introduction into the Baseballtown Hall of Fame in 2004.

Jones was selected in 1952 by the Cleveland Indians. During his time in the pros, he secured the spot of career home run leader during his time, a record that stood for 40 years. Jones was also a two-time Easter League All-Star.

Upon his retirement from MiLB, Cooter settled down in Reading with his family and instantly became a cornerstone of the athletic community. He was a teacher and a coach in the Reading School District. And even took his 1983 Reading baseball team all the way to win the prestigious PIAA State Title. He also worked in the operations side of the sport, becoming a high school football and baseball PA announcer and the R-Phils official scorekeeper.

Paul "Cooter" Jones passed away this April, but his memory in Baseballtown will live on forever.

Baseballtours CHARITIES

Basebaltown Charities mission is to keep baseball alive in Reading so youngsters can benefit from the many life lessons the game teaches. It was created by Chuck Domino, President of Baseballtown Charities and established in 2002 when its flagship project was started, Gordon Hoodak Stadium at Lauer's Park. Baseballtown Charities raised more than $1 million to build Gordon Hoodak Stadium at Lauer's Park, a field of dreams in the heart of inner-city Reading, which has provided more than 1,000 boys and girls who otherwise might not have had the opportunity with a chance to participate in the game. It sits on the grounds of Lauer's Park Elementary School, named for the former stadium where Babe Ruth and Shoeless Joe Jackson both played.

Since then, the organization has evolved from focusing on one demographic in need to reaching throughout the community and touching many different types of people in order to reach anyone who could benefit from the game of baseball. Baseballtown Charities has made strides for both financially and physically/cognitive challenged individuals, not only who live within the city of Reading but throughout Berks County.
