MATCH PREVIEW

Legion FC hits the road to take on Indy Eleven as the Three Sparks battle for a home playoff game in its race with 4th place Pittsburgh. This match will be the first time IND and BHM meet this season, with their second tie being the last game of the regular season on October 12th. In the head-to-head against each other, BHM has four wins over Indy's two, with Legion having won three games in a row. Legion come into the match as the favorite with a 49% likelihood to win according to FiveThirtyEight. Juan Agudelo (seven goals, four assists) leads the line and is up for USLC Player of the Month for August, while Enzo Martinez (11 goals, five assists) is an MVP candidate.

Indy have recently found great form. On August 27, the Indianapolis side earned an impressive win over league-wide point leaders San Antonio FC, and just four days later defeated Eastern Conference leaders Louisville City FC. Those two wins, and then a draw against Detroit in its last game, came after a twelve-game winless streak. Stéfano Pinho is the main attacking threat that the Three Sparks need to keep an eye on – the Brazilian has scored nine on the season and found the net twice in the Blues' victory against Louisville.
