MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

On behalf of the Board of Directors of U SPORTS, I am pleased to present our Annual Report for 2019. I am honoured to serve as Board Chair after Mike Mahon and with your help keep up the momentum on the changes that began in 2015-2016.

This past year, I learned just how significant and ambitious these changes are and find it helpful to reflect back on the reasons for change. The need for change that resonates most for me as a University President is the need to enhance the visibility and relevancy of university sport in Canada. As Universities are expected to do more with less, we need our communities, partners and funders to understand what you already know and love about university sports. I also have a better understanding of some of the tensions that are inevitable when you have 56 diverse member Universities that are part of four Conferences. We are not the first and will not be the last organization debating the nuances of "Competitive Balance." I understand from one of our Classics professors that even the ancient Greeks pondered about "equality" and "equal opportunity" in athletics.

U SPORTS is a complex organization that will continue to evolve and adapt as we plan, do, evaluate and adjust in response to the needs of our members. I am often reminded of my early days in the public service where I learned a catch phrase about team development, specifically that for teams to perform, they first had to form, storm and norm¹. The forming has occurred, and I think it is fair to say the collective will is there to navigate the storming and norming and accelerate the performing.

I look forward to concluding the review of the implementation of our new governance model, the approval of our new Strategic Plan and seeing the new Sport Model used.

Our Board and very talented staff remain committed to the consultation and engagement required to ensure our initiatives serve our members and are aligned with our Strategic Plan. We are enthusiastic about the year ahead and confident that together we can achieve the Vision we aspire to. I want to close by thanking staff, fellow Board members, athletic directors, and the entire U SPORTS community for participating in this team sport. I look forward to storming, norming and performing with you.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT & CEO

Dear members,

Welcome to the 42nd Annual U SPORTS Conference and Annual Meeting. As we gather together once again, I'm reminded of all the success university sport in Canada has had over the past year.

Today, U SPORTS is working more collaboratively than ever before with the entire membership as well as external stakeholders. As a result, the power and impact of the U SPORTS brand is truly beginning to be felt in the Canadian sport system. Over the last 12 months, we have worked on a number of new and important projects across the entire organization. Some initiatives are allowing us to evaluate the progress of the changes that began in 2015, while others are aimed at continuing our mission to build university sport in Canada.

Among the key highlights, a new four-year Strategic Plan to guide the organization into the future has been approved, and a comprehensive Governance Review has been completed, with recommendations for improvements made for implementation. We have also continued to enhance U SPORTS Central – moving the critical Letter of Intent Registry system online.

In striving for the best possible experience on and off the field of play, a full Sport Review of current and potential new offerings has been conducted, new hosting and financial models for individual championships are being explored, and the sport of football in particular has been carefully examined to identify ways to enhance the game nationwide. In addition, significant new partnerships with the Canadian Premier League (CPL) and the Canadian Elite Basketball League (CEBL) have been established – allowing our men's soccer and basketball student-athletes for the first time to be drafted and signed to player development contracts in the offseason without losing their remaining eligibility. Furthermore, U SPORTS established a ground-breaking transgender policy this past year, one that is among the most progressive and inclusive transgender policies in high-level sport.

None of these advancements happen without the dedication of our hard-working staff, the cooperation and trust of our Board and membership, and the faith of our volunteers and partners. I would especially like to thank Dr. Annette Trimbee, for her tremendous leadership over the past year as our new Chair of the Board. Your commitment to guiding our organization has enabled us to continue to shape university sport in Canada, and elevate it to new heights for the next generation.

GRAHAM BROWN, BHK, MHK
President and Chief Executive Officer

Governance

U SPORTS is a collective entity comprised of 56 member institutions from across Canada, four conferences, and a national office located in Richmond Hill, Ont. The U SPORTS national office consists of 14 full-time staff, and is guided by a Board of Directors made up of four university presidents (one from each conference), four athletic directors (one from each conference), and a member-at-large. The active involvement of university presidents in the governance of sport is a relatively new phenomenon, and has helped U SPORTS build a strong relationship with Universities Canada, a membership organization providing university presidents with a unified voice for higher education, research, and innovation. The increased involvement of university presidents has helped U SPORTS view its programs from an entirely different perspective, and has enabled U SPORTS leadership to present to Universities Canada and advocate for the role sports plays on university campuses across the country.

INAUGURAL DRAFT

U SPORTS and the Canadian Premier League kick off ground breaking partnership with inaugural draft

By Jonathan Yue

Canadian talent in professional soccer is quietly gaining momentum not just domestically, but at the international level. With a gaining popularity, athletes are beginning to find that their dreams of playing professional soccer can become reality. It has become even more so now, with the announcement that U SPORTS has partnered with the Canadian Premier League (CPL).

Prior to the start of its inaugural season in late April, the CPL conducted a U SPORTS draft, selecting men's soccer student-athletes from across the country to join one of their seven teams. For David Clanachan, commissioner of the CPL, this is a unique partnership for both U SPORTS and the CPL.

"It's the best of both worlds," Clanachan explains. "It works really well for the athlete, for the university, and also for the CPL teams to be able to participate in the development of an athlete."

That ability for successfully-drafted athletes to go from competing for their respective U SPORTS university teams during the fall, to the CPL during the spring and summer on development contracts, allows U SPORTS, the CPL and the athletes to have groundbreaking development paths to continue to add to the growing Canadian pool of talent.

The CPL-U SPORTS Draft was held following the conclusion of the U SPORTS Men's Soccer Championship in Vancouver. U SPORTS student-athletes who are in their first to even fifth year of eligibility were allowed to enter the draft. If successfully drafted, the CPL team has the ability to offer the player a contract to train, develop, and eventually play for the team.

And Clanachan emphasizes that the partnership doesn't just end after athletes graduate out of university either. The CPL will remain an option for athletes who want to become eligible to the league on a full-time basis, as athletes or more.

"We support the fact that athletes should get a good education, hopefully (after their four to five years of eligibility), they want to return to the league, they are getting better with us and they want to look at a career in our sport," Clanachan explains. "Some athletes may want to get into administration or coaching or development, and we can guide them through a different path and still stay in sport. It opens their eyes to what could be, from a career perspective."

For U SPORTS, the partnership is a further example of promoting viable pathways for Canadian student-athletes after graduating through the university programs. With existing relationships with the Canadian Football League (CFL) and previously the Canadian Women's Hockey League (CWHL) – who have both drafted players that graduate from U SPORTS programs – it gives U SPORTS student-athletes more options to pursue a career in sports in Canada.

Graham Brown, President and CEO of U SPORTS, sees this partnership with the CPL and the work Canada Soccer is doing for the development of men's soccer in Canada as a stepping stone for U SPORTS men's soccer players and coaches, with them being the next in line to make the jump to professional leagues.

"A lot of our U SPORTS student-athletes are the ones that are closer to any other athlete to playing in those Canadian professional sports leagues," Brown says. "We have coaches that can come through and go up (to the CPL), and be in a better place if we get some of those coaches coming back from that experience into our system."

With the CPL-U SPORTS Draft, both Brown and Clanachan understand it will be a work in progress. There is still work to be done, but both strongly believe that in the end, it will benefit both sides.

"We want to work with the CPL and Canada Soccer to grow soccer in Canada," Brown adds.

"It's a meeting of the minds. It's the ability and the attitude and desire of the players, regardless of where they come from that will define success," Clanachan concludes. "Our ability, our disciplines, and coaching, it's our responsibility, U SPORTS and CPL together, to develop the athletes to their best of their ability and hopefully we end up with players who are coming through this channel to the professional game." ■

NEW DIRECTOR OF FOOTBALL

MacLean aiming to elevate the game as U SPORTS' new Director of Football

When it comes to enhancing the U SPORTS football experience, Richard MacLean, much like the national brand of university sports in Canada, won't be standing on the sidelines.

For Graham Brown, President and CEO of U SPORTS, the recent appointment of MacLean as the U SPORTS Director of Football goes hand-in-hand with the National Organization's continued commitment to heighten the scope and breadth of Canadian university football across the country.

"It's important to have someone who can be more focused, from a national office perspective, on U SPORTS football," says Brown. "We wanted to have someone who can represent the game nationally and who can assist in ensuring football related matters are communicated properly and consistently through the year. Our thought was to have a person who can create a focus and has that football expertise."

MacLean, a former student-athlete at Saint Mary's, who played five seasons of football with the Huskies, brings to the position a wealth of knowledge and experience in the game. The former President of Football Canada, who teaches business administration at the high school level in Halifax, was previously the President of Football Nova Scotia and currently serves as President of the International Federation of American Football (IFAF).

By Chris Lomon

The main areas of focus in his U SPORTS role will include:

- Football compliance within the eligibility and recruiting files with U SPORTS' Manager of Compliance, Eligibility and Discipline, Tara Hahto
- Building upon relationships with conference football conveners, the Canadian University Football Coaches' Association (CUFCA), the Football Sport Technical Sub-Committee, and other football stakeholders including officials, the CFL and Football Canada
- Investigating the harmonization of rules across U SPORTS and all four conferences
- Football leadership with respect to the U SPORTS Bowl Games and Vanier Cup
- Reviewing the East-West Bowl and playoff structure options
- Working with and supporting football stakeholders and the U SPORTS national office on identifying strategies to improve and elevate university football across Canada.

"Richard has a great portfolio, in terms of his experience with Football Canada and with the IFAF, and also having been a player and a coach," says Lisette Johnson-Stapley, Chief Sport Officer at U SPORTS. "He's got a great attitude, willing to step up and help to make the sport better. He's got a strong passion for it."

"We have to be (optimistic about the future). Our schools, football institutions, invest a lot. Football is a great sport and we really needed to step up and take the leadership and work with our conferences. Football is extremely important to our conferences as well."

"I really think there's a need for the role," adds MacLean. "There's an opportunity here to build the brand of U SPORTS football into something much bigger. I took this to dedicate my time to building the sport, to improving things, to listen to people's questions and concerns, and to be a conduit between the national office and all football stakeholders in Canada."

MacLean, a former U SPORTS First Team All-Canadian, is eager to tackle the challenges that lie ahead.

He'll rely on his vast and varied football background to help him establish new relationships and partnerships, while forging bonds with coaches and industry participants from coast-to-coast.

"I've been involved in the administration of football for over 20 years now, provincially, in Nova Scotia, nationally and now internationally," MacLean says. "I think having someone they know or recognize is important...I was part of the long-term athlete development plan years ago with many top-level coaches in U SPORTS – it brings some accountability and understanding that I have a lot of experience in football."

What's his first order of business?

"Right now, I'm really focused on the East-West Bowl," says MacLean of the CFL top prospects game held each May, for players heading into their draft year. "And building that property into something that's worthy of the best draft-eligible players in the country to be at – to build the excitement around that and how we can make that a very stable property for years to come."

He also has his eye on the future, namely, in ensuring U SPORTS football delivers a quality on-field and off-field experience.

"For a long-term goal, it's that we want to make sure the Bowl Games are stable," offers MacLean. "There are a lot of factors. But there are so many opportunities and opportunities for U SPORTS student-athletes. I think that's also part of my role, to expand on that."

It's also critical, notes MacLean, to be a team player.

"People around the sport of football know that they can call me," he says. "I'm going to return your call and I'm going to return your email...I'll talk to the people within U SPORTS, and who are a champion of U SPORTS, to come to that common ground."

"It's important to build on the recommendations and understand the different sides of the issues that we're facing, from championships, to playoff structure, harmonization of rules – issues that are important for the game," notes Brown. "It's about getting everyone working together, allowing for the flow of information between all the groups, and to further the quality work that is already taking place across the country and in the conferences."

Brown is encouraged by the possibilities that lie ahead for U SPORTS football, including MacLean's new position, as well as the work that continues to be done to solidify and enhance industry partnerships.

"We've always had – and it existed before I got here – a good relationship with the Canadian Football League office," he says. "There's a real commitment to align U SPORTS football with the CFL in a larger capacity than it has. Football in this country needs everybody to work together. There's so much transition and challenge at the moment... we all need to work close and work hard together."

"But there are a lot of things to be optimistic about. The schools are working harder to provide a very good game-day experience. We want to see that keep growing. But the bottom line is that the actual U SPORTS football is a great product and there is real energy around it." ■

NEW CEBL-U SPORTS PARTNERSHIP

A huge step in growth of Canadian basketball.

By Jonathan Yue

Cory Joseph had the opportunity to do it. Jamaal Magloire did it as well. Currently, Chris Boucher is doing it. Only a handful of Canadian basketball players have had the experience of playing at the next level at home. Many more can look to join them now.

The Canadian Elite Basketball League (CEBL) and U SPORTS announced an official partnership in February, allowing U SPORTS student-athletes to develop and showcase their skills while staying at home in Canada.

The CEBL will offer top U SPORTS student-athletes the experience to develop and grow their games on and off the court, beginning with the CEBL Draft, which was held on Mar.16 and the results were revealed on Mar. 23. Drafted athletes will be given the opportunity to compete for roster spots against other predominantly Canadian, players on their respective teams for a chance to play during the season, something that league commissioner Mike Morreale believes will benefit the teams and the incoming U SPORTS stars.

"We hope that there are U SPORTS players that come out to shine and showcase the talents alongside some of the best players that we have in this country," says Morreale, a two time OUA All-Star wide receiver for the McMaster Marauders and Grey Cup champion in the CFL. "We recognize that it won't be entirely easy from a competitive landscape, but what they'll learn off the court as well will be equally as important, living that pro lifestyle, travel, practice alongside players who may be older more experienced. These will all be building blocks to creating future basketball players or contributors to basketball at different levels."

With more talented Canadian basketball players making an impact at different levels, the Canadian international team will also see the benefits of the new partnership. Canada Basketball President and CEO Glen Grunwald believes it can lead to continued growth in Canadian talent at the professional and international levels.

"We'll have some of our players (on Team Canada) playing in the CEBL and they'll be supporting us when there's a need to release a player to compete for Canada at an international tournament," says Grunwald. "It shows that we're aligned, shows that we're pushing for what's best for our athletes and for the sport of basketball."

Following the past year's FIBA World Cup Qualifiers – which Canada qualified for on the strength of several U SPORTS alumni and coaches – Grunwald sees the impact the Canadian university basketball system is having on the current national team.

Roy Rana, who served as Team Canada head coach for several of the World Cup Qualifying windows, is also the bench boss of the Ryerson Rams, while assistant coach Patrick Tatham is at the helm of the McMaster Marauders. Almost half of the players on the most recent version of the squad attended U SPORTS schools in Canada, including brothers Phil and Thomas Scrubb (Carleton), Kaza Kajami-Keane (Carleton), Conor Morgan (UBC), Aaron Best (Ryerson) and Adika Peter-McNeilly (Ryerson).

"(The CEBL) is Canadian, and were actively seeking this relationship with us," says U SPORTS President and CEO Graham Brown, a former U SPORTS basketball player with the Windsor Lancers. "Our members have made changes to our rules around eligibility to accommodate the aligned partnership, but more importantly it's going to give our Canadian based student-athletes in basketball a real opportunity to continue to play at an elite level."

Now, with U SPORTS, Canada Basketball and the CEBL working together, it has created a new avenue for Canadian basketball players. The Scrubb brothers pursued their careers in Europe after their time with U SPORTS, but now have more options to play at the next level. With the CEBL-U SPORTS partnership and draft, graduating players will have the chance to stay home to grow and develop their game on-and-off the court and stay engaged in their communities.

"What I think that this will help do, is for the young basketball player not going to a power five conference program, I would tell this to any parent: You can have an equal or better opportunity to stay in Canada, play at our schools, have that alumni connection, the education, the quality of coaching, everything will be there for them," adds Brown. "Now with the CEBL, you can pursue both during the offseason and when your schooling is done, opportunities beyond U SPORTS basketball."

The new partnership will look to continue Canada's growth domestically and internationally. Morreale and Grunwald both see a bright future for Canadian basketball, something that Canadians can take pride in as they continue to perform.

"Canada has always been a pretty good basketball country," says Grunwald, the former general manager of the Toronto Raptors and McMaster Director of Athletics and Recreation. "(The CEBL-U SPORTS partnership) is a great development and it gives further opportunities for basketball players to develop and enjoy the sport they love, and we're trying to align basketball in this country."

The CEBL's inaugural season is underway this summer – with six teams in Abbotsford, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Guelph, Hamilton and St. Catharines – and with it, U SPORTS student-athletes will have a more direct path to get to where they want to be. With an education under their belts, they will have options for them whether it be continuing their playing careers or transition into front office roles. The CEBL-U SPORTS partnership and Draft has the potential to be a huge step for the growth of Canadian basketball.

"To have a player who works their way up the ranks from a U SPORTS developmental player or a graduating player that plays in the CEBL and moves overseas or gets a shot at the (NBA) G-League and potentially the NBA, I would love to lose all the players we have to those types of opportunities," Morreale says. "Because that means we've done our job in developing them further." ■

GAINING A COMPETITIVE EDGE

Sherrard Kuzz LLP values student-athlete success

By Damjan Peric

In January, the Top 8 Academic All-Canadians were announced for the 2017-18 season, honouring the top male and female of each U SPORTS conference who maintained an academic average of 80 per cent or higher, while playing one or more varsity sports.

Shortly after, U SPORTS and Sherrard Kuzz LLP announced a renewed partnership for the Canadian law firm to continue as the official supporter of the student-athletes selected to the Top 8, by supporting travel, accommodations, and hospitality leading up to the Governor General's Academic All-Canadian Commendation at Rideau Hall in Ottawa.

For Sherrard Kuzz LLP, supporting the Academic All-Canadians is a long term investment. The employment and labour law firm has a track record of hiring former student-athletes and Academic All-Canadians, including its founding partner, Michael Sherrard. Sherrard, a former member of and coach of the University of New Brunswick Reds varsity basketball program, recognizes how important sport can be.

"Sport provides an opportunity to succeed beyond one's expectation, to experience failure and to learn how to get back up and try again," Sherrard explains. "As well, playing team sports provides numerous opportunities to experience the team being more than the sum of its parts. All of these lessons are transferable to everyday life."

Throughout their university careers, student-athletes learn many lessons that gives them an edge in their professional lives.

For Ed Snetsinger, being a student-athlete developed his confidence and taught him about leadership and collaboration. Snetsinger competed for the University of Toronto Varsity Blues men's hockey team during his undergraduate studies, and the University of Windsor Lancers golf team during law school. He's now a lawyer with Sherrard Kuzz.

"I don't think being a student-athlete and being fully dedicated to academics are mutually exclusive concepts - you can do both," says Snetsinger. "You just have to work harder...sport has helped me be able to find common ground with any type of client, whether it's the CEO of a massive corporation or small construction employer."

Confidence and leadership are not the only benefits of hiring former student-athletes. Being able to juggle an intense schedule teaches student-athletes organization and dedication.

Haley Sherrard is a Toronto-born third-year student playing NCAA tennis for St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., and one of Michael Sherrard's twin daughters - the other daughter, Dana, a varsity swimmer for the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees. Haley Sherrard recognizes the impact of varsity sport on her ability to stay on top of her busy life and remain dedicated to whatever she does.

"Without sports I would not have learned to be as organized and on top of my work as I am, nor would I be at the institution I'm currently at and loving," she explains. "The No.1 thing sport has taught me is to be dedicated. To go far in this world you have to be dedicated to everything you do. No matter what it is you're doing, giving 100 per cent and putting your best foot forward is always the way to go. You never know the opportunities you can create for yourself."

Student-athletes are often more visible on campus and in their communities, becoming role models at a young age. They actively give back to their school, community, and those who have supported them.

After playing for the Queen's University Gaels women's basketball team, Emily Hazlett went on to work as an administrative assistant for Sherrard Kuzz. Today, she works for RBC Insurance as a Disability Claims Analyst. When asked about what she found was the most rewarding part of being a student-athlete, it was not an athletic accomplishment that came to mind.

"The most rewarding part of being a student-athlete is having the platform to be able to give back to the community that has allowed me to reach the goals that I set in place," says Hazlett. "It allows you to immerse yourself into the community around you, putting yourself in the shoes of others, while being a role model for various populations."

Confident, dedicated, organized, selfless leaders. For an employer, these are the characteristics you will find in student-athletes. As Sherrard Kuzz LLP continues to support the Top 8 Academic All-Canadians, Canada's student-athletes won't have to look far for inspiration.

"Perform every day," offers Michael Sherrard as advice to today's student-athletes. "Take many, many risks in order to succeed. Develop, sustain and continue to increase your network. Pay it forward whenever you can." ■

Lieutenant Governor Athletic Awards

Date: May 1-2, 2019

Location: Calgary, AB

Over 25 years ago, Doug and Lois Mitchell had the foresight to celebrate and elevate the top student-athletes in Canada by showcasing them on a national stage. Since 1993, the BLG Awards – formerly known as the Howard Mackie Awards - have been a staple celebration in the national sport community, recognizing Canada’s top athletes competing in university athletics within U SPORTS.

As the awards celebrate their 27th year in 2019, they have been relaunched as the U SPORTS Lieutenant Governor Athletic Awards, and championed once again by His Honour Doug Mitchell and Her Honour, the Honourable Lois Mitchell, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta.

Once again, eight finalists were chosen from 56 U SPORTS universities and four conferences from across the nation to vie for the top prize. This year, Mathieu Betts and Kiera Van Ryk were named the U SPORTS Athletes of the year.

LEADERS AMONG STARS

Revamped Athlete of the Year Awards highlight nation's best on and off the field

By Lucy Fox

2018 U SPORTS Athletes of the Year Kadre Gray and Marie-Alex Bélanger (Credit: Bob Frid / U SPORTS)

Each spring, two names are called at the annual U SPORTS Athlete of the Year Awards, representing the highest honour a Canadian student-athlete can take home.

Last June in Vancouver, B.C., it was Montreal Carabins volleyball player Marie-Alex Bélanger on the women's side. On the men's, it was Laurentian basketball player Kadre Gray.

Both are star athletes in their field. Bélanger led the country with 3.98 kills per set – her fourth time taking the record in her five years of play. Gray led the country in assists with 141 and was second in total points with 488, points per game at 24.4 and free throws made at 140.

But each student-athlete is more than just stats. Both are leaders amongst their teams and athletics programs, as are their predecessors in their respective titles, and more Canadian student-athletes across the country beyond the final eight nominated for the ceremony, too.

Event founders Doug Mitchell and Her Honour the Honourable Lois Mitchell, the Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, have seen a plethora of athletes like Gray and Bélanger take home the Athlete of the Year titles since establishing the event in 1993 – in what was then known as the Howard Mackie Awards and more recently as the Borden Ladner Gervais (BLG) Awards, after the Canadian law firm headquartered in Calgary. Both have also watched these athletes flourish into their own leadership roles both inside and outside of their sport.

For the Mitchells, the student-athletes represent some of a university's most forward-facing leaders. It's that understanding that has brought the awards ceremony into its newest chapter: the U SPORTS Lieutenant Governor Athletic Awards.

This year's 27th edition highlighted both the country's finest student-athletes with an official awards ceremony and supported their growth with newly-added leadership training. The leadership program was led by Dr. Cari Din, an Olympic silver medallist and leadership behaviour instructor in the Faculty of Kinesiology at the University of Calgary.

The event was also held in Calgary, back where it all began over a quarter century ago. Though this time, it holds new meaning.

For Lieutenant Governor Mitchell, the new phase of the award ceremony compliments a reality of student-athlete life: a forefronted leadership role on campus and a chance to readily reflect on your own purpose both within a university and beyond. Once understood and harnessed, that purpose can be beneficial to a person's path, wherever it takes them beyond their school jerseys.

"It doesn't matter what realm you're in. If you're interested in other people – you care about other people – you can do anything," Lieutenant Governor Mitchell says. "You can switch from being a star (athlete) to anything that you need to, because you are stopping thinking just about yourself."

For Dr. Din, that learning comes far beyond a textbook, and student-athletes have the unique opportunity to actively embrace and reflect on what it means to be a leader throughout their university careers.

"Sport provides this context in which student-athletes should be growing leadership skills," says Dr. Din. "But we also know if we're not intentional about it, and intentional about getting them to think about and reflect upon those opportunities. Because you only learn leadership through doing leadership, you don't learn leadership in the classroom."

And yet, though the event continues to grow and impact its award winners, its core values still hold true. For Doug Mitchell, BLG national co-chair, philanthropist and UBC Thunderbird football alumnus, the program is essential to highlighting the incredible people involved in university athletics in Canada – an athletic community that tends to survive outside of the limelight.

"I think the athletic programs are great. I think the quality of the athletics is great. But there's very little focus, mainly from the media, that athletics get in (Canadian) university athletics," he says. "And so this was a way that we could do two things: one, get attention on the quality of the programs and the quality of the athletes, and at the same time, bring a focus on university sports in Canada."

In all, the event is a chance to celebrate, highlight and promote not only sport, but the faces behind sport – and the future each student-athlete represents, be that wearing their school colours or more.

"It's a chance to prepare these amazing what we call leaders – on the court, on the ice, on the field – prepare them...to be amazing people, which is what they already are in life," Lois Mitchell says.

"That's the whole thing." ■

2018 U SPORTS Honours Awards

Decorated swimming coach Byron MacDonald, reporter Jason Hills, and long-time athletic director Dick White were honoured at the U SPORTS Athlete of the Year / Honours Awards Gala for their contributions to university sports in Canada as part of the 2018 U SPORTS Conference and Annual Meeting in Vancouver, B.C.

Byron MacDonald took home the Jean-Marie De Koninck Coaching Excellence Award, which honours since 2007 an individual who has made an outstanding contribution to university sport as demonstrated by long-term commitment and leadership as a coach at the local, provincial, national and/or international levels. The award is named for the former swimming coach and long-time math professor at Université Laval, who also served as a swimming commentator for Radio Canada at several Olympic Games.

A fitting winner of the award and its namesake, MacDonald has been the head coach of the Varsity Blues swimming program since 1978-79. He has earned multiple Coach of Year awards, both at the U SPORTS and OUA level, while coaching over 200 swimmers to all Canadian status and over 70 swimmers to international teams. He has guided his teams to 60 conference championships (32 men and 28 women) and 24 national championship titles (15 women and nine men). MacDonald is a two-time Gemini Award winner for his CBC swimming coverage at the 2004 and 2008 Olympics, and most recently covered the Rio 2016 Games.

Jason Hills received the Fred Sgambati Media Award, presented to a member of the media in recognition of major contributions to the development and growth of Canadian university sport.

Since joining the Edmonton Sun in 2007, and the Edmonton Journal following the Postmedia merger in 2016, Hills has provided consistent and excellent coverage of local university athletics, including the University of Alberta Golden Bears and Pandas and the MacEwan University Griffins. His passion for amateur sports in a market dominated by professional sports is evident in the stories he writes, which always showcase the tremendous accomplishments of student-athletes.

Dick White merited the Austin-Matthews Award, presented annually to an individual who has made an outstanding contribution to interuniversity sport, as demonstrated by long-term commitment and leadership as a coach, director, chairperson and/or executive committee member at the local, provincial and/or national levels.

Under his leadership, the University of Regina athletics department grew from six varsity teams to 16. White was instrumental in bringing U SPORTS football to the U of R with a community partnership model that saw the junior Regina Rams join Canada West prior to the 1999 season. The school also added men's and women's cross country, women's hockey, women's soccer, men's and women's swimming, men's and women's track and field, and women's wrestling during White's tenure at the U of R. In 2014, White retired as the University of Regina's director of athletics after dedicating 34 years of service to the university.

INTERNATIONAL

U SPORTS is proud to offer student-athletes with international competition opportunities at both Winter and Summer Universiades in odd-numbered years, as well as single-sport World University Championships in even-numbered years.

These opportunities – which provide Canadian student-athletes development on the world stage – take place through the International University Sports Federation (FISU), which is recognized by the International Olympic Committee and coordinates 170 National University Sport Federations (NUSFs). Athletes who compete in the U SPORTS International program go on to compete in the Olympic Games and other international multi-sport events or World Cup circuits.

Hockey fans are familiar with the players who make up Team Canada's World Junior Hockey Championship roster every holiday season. Several of these players go on to play in the NHL as prominent figures. But too many people forget that the professional route isn't the only path and many other great and sustainable opportunities come both on the ice and in the classroom through university hockey.

The National Junior Team has faced U SPORTS competition annually in its preparation for the IIHF Championship, with most of those contests coming against a single university team or a selection from two or three programs. Since 2015, the U SPORTS All-Stars - featuring the best players from across the country - compete in an exhibition series.

Over the last two years, the U SPORTS team is 4-0-1 against Team Canada.

For the third straight summer, Hockey Canada invited the U SPORTS All-Stars to take part in their annual Summer Showcase. The August event serves as an opportunity to evaluate prospective players for the national team program by fielding two development squads of players under 22 years of age.

In four games, U SPORTS finished with a 3-1 record, with their only loss coming against Team Japan in their first encounter and sweeping both of Canada's development squads in back-to-back games for the first time, by an identical 3-1 score.

Following the success of the U SPORTS All-Stars at the Summer Showcase, Hockey Canada invited Alberta's Alex Poznikoff to join the Development Team roster for a three-game series against Team USA, along with six other players to its Fall Festival senior national team camp in early September. Three members of the team also went on to be selected in the 2018 CWHL Draft. Through this partnership with Hockey Canada, U SPORTS hopes to continue the development of women's hockey players at an elite level.

2019 U SPORTS East-West Bowl

Date: May 11, 2019

Host: Carleton University

Credit: Carleton Athletics

For the first time, the U SPORTS East-West Bowl was held in the nation's capital at Carleton's MNP Park. The 17th annual top prospects game showcases the next generation of CFL stars heading into their draft years.

The West team is mostly made up of U SPORTS football players from Canada West and OUA schools, except Carleton, Ottawa and Queen's, which play for the East squad. The rest of the East team features players from AUS and RSEQ schools.

The week-long event – including four days of practices, a combine for participating players, and a CFL free agent camp – serves as the first step to identifying future CFL talent. For the next year, players from both squads will vie for coveted spots on the CFL Scouting Bureau Top 20 Prospects List – published in August, December and April – before showcasing their skills at regional and national combines in advance of the draft next spring.

In this year's game, the West racked up 464 passing yards on their way to a 35-17 victory. It was the fourth straight victory for the West and improved their record to 11-6 since the event began in 2003.

U SPORTS SPORT: SPECIAL INITIATIVES

Shoot for the Cure

U SPORTS women's basketball programs raised $76,632.82 for the Canadian Cancer Society (CCS) in 2018-19, thanks to the 12th edition of the annual Shoot For The Cure initiative.

An additional $20,530.95 was amassed by schools that elected to donate their fundraised money to local or provincial organizations, bringing this season's Shoot For The Cure overall total to $97,163.77 and the 12-year total to $1,349,680.54 since the initiative was launched in 2007-08 to raise awareness and money to fight the deadly disease.

The impressive amount was unveiled at halftime of the championship final – between the McMaster Marauders and Laval Rouge et Or – of the U SPORTS Women's Basketball Final 8 Presented by COMDA.COM at Ryerson University's Mattamy Athletic Centre.

Jeff Speedy, head coach of the UNB Reds and Shoot for the Cure Project Manager, presented a cheque to Nancy Drynan, Regional Representative for the Ontario Advisory Board of the Canadian Cancer Society. For the eighth straight season, all 47 U SPORTS women's hoops programs participated by holding one or numerous fundraising games or activities over the course of the campaign.

Departmental Updates

Sport

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

In December, 10 U SPORTS national championship hosts were announced in women's rugby (Ottawa, Queen's), men's soccer (Montreal, Carleton), women's soccer (Victoria, Cape Breton), men's volleyball (Manitoba, Brandon) and women's volleyball (Calgary, UBC) for the 2019-20 and 2020-21 seasons.

Several high-quality bids were presented, demonstrating the innovative and collaborative approaches our members are now taking to enhance U SPORTS national events, since refining the bid process, last season. This includes interest from both institutions and their surrounding communities with a commitment to elevated standards. The bid process for the 2021 Men's and Women's Hockey championships is underway, with a bidding deadline of June 7, 2019.

HOST ORIENTATION WORKSHOP

For the second consecutive year, the national office held an Orientation Workshop for schools hosting national championships in the 2019-20 and 2020-21 seasons. A total of 30 members were in attendance from 15 different hosts at the Hilton Markham Hotel for two days of best practice sharing, learning about national office minimum standards and professional development. Each championship host also had the opportunity to present their vision for their respective event.

Guest speakers included representatives from IMG, T1 Agency, the Canadian Elite Basketball League, Tennis Canada, MLSE Launchpad and Wasserman.

SPORT REVIEW

In 2018, the framework of a new sport model was created, reviewed by the membership and approved by the Board of Directors. After a comprehensive process of review and consultation with Bob Copeland, recommendations were provided to introduce a new sport model to advance U SPORTS. In 2019, a second ad-hoc committee was assembled to operationalize the sport model in the report and includes a review of the criteria and key performance indicators. They will also create an NSO application process for the addition of new sports as well as identify the target sports to be added and/or reclassified in Years 1, 2 and 3 and future evaluation recommendation. U SPORTS will share the criteria and key performance indicators with the membership and after collection and review of feedback, the final model will go for approval to the Board of Directors in Fall 2019.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY PILOT PROJECT

U SPORTS collected and reviewed further data on the Women's Hockey Pilot Project this past year with the assistance of Bob Copeland with the McLaren Global Sport Solutions Inc. The principal objective of this past year's consultation was to assess the level of sentiment from athletic directors of women's hockey playing institutions given the considerable debate and various anecdotal reporting of the pilot program's success or lack thereof. Additional information from a representative sample of U SPORTS women's hockey student-athletes, as well as feedback from Hockey Canada's high-performance program provides important perspectives concerning both the opportunities and challenges for the sport. An ad-hoc committee was struck to flesh out recommendations, which will go to the Board of Directors for approval in September 2019.

INDIVIDUAL SPORTS NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

U SPORTS is developing a new hosting and financial models in collaboration with the respective institutions of the individual sports of Swimming, Wrestling, Track and Field and Women's Field Hockey. Cross Country currently has a functional model and is not part of these discussions.

U SPORTS & OHL PRESENTATIONS

For the third consecutive year, U SPORTS presented academic and athletic opportunities in Canadian university sport to players of the Ontario Hockey League (OHL) during OHL Professional Development Sessions in January and February. The sessions included information on U SPORTS high performance programming. A comprehensive U SPORTS Men's Hockey Guide Book, featuring information shared at the presentations and profiles of each of the 35 men's hockey programs has also been created.

FOOTBALL VISIONING AND STRATEGY SESSIONS

As part of U SPORTS' effort to create a more competitive, balanced and sustainable football program across Canadian universities, U SPORTS will host a Football Strategy Session adjacent to the U SPORTS Conference and Annual Meeting in Markham, Ont. The purpose is to gather all Athletic Directors and Head Coaches of football institutions to review the top issues across the country that have been identified by a smaller group of conference representatives.

CPL AND CEBL PARTNERSHIPS

The Canadian Premier League (CPL) and the Canadian Elite Basketball League (CEBL) approached U SPORTS in February 2018, with the goal of partnering to provide opportunities to student-athletes and to further grow the sports of soccer and basketball, respectively. The partnership promotes viable pathways to pursue a career for Canadian student-athletes after graduating through their university programs. Both leagues conducted inaugural drafts for U SPORTS student-athletes.

Governance & Operations

LEADERSHIP BREAKFAST SERIES

This season, U SPORTS held monthly sessions where guest speakers from the field of sport management visited the national office and provided U SPORTS staff and intern teams with real world examples of senior leaders succeeding in their respective industries of sport and leadership. These individuals share their career paths, and reflect on the lessons learned throughout their journeys in fields of sport business and leadership.

STRATEGIC PLAN

After a thorough consultation and discussion process lasting almost two years, U SPORTS is thrilled to move forward with a new Strategic Plan to guide the organization's priorities and decisions from 2019 to 2024.

The approved Plan incorporates input from 56 member institutions, four conferences, national office staff, and various stakeholders throughout the Canadian sport system. The Plan outlines the Vision, Mission, and Values of the organization, the Operating Principles that inform its day-to-day work, and the Strategic Priorities and Key Initiatives that will help move Canadian university sports forward over the next five years. Next, national office staff will work with the Board to develop Key Performance Indicators and Timelines to ensure that the office is fully invested in, and accountable to, the ambitious new Strategic Plan.

GOVERNANCE REVIEW

In April 2015, the governance of university sport in Canada was substantially transformed. Membership-wide votes were substantially reduced, the Board of Directors was restructured to guide high-level, strategic decisions, and the Chief Executive Officer was empowered to manage the national office's day-to-day operations. It was a monumental change in the way national business was done, and after three years of working under the new model it was agreed that a Governance Review would be beneficial.

The objective of the review was to determine whether the goals of the 2015 transformation were still relevant, and to identify whether the implementation was effective, and how it could be improved. A detailed Report and Recommendations have been approved, the crux of which sets out that the membership continues to support a high-level, strategic Board supporting a CEO who's empowered to manage day-to-day operations. Various ideas for improving the implementation of that vision have been proposed, which will be put in place in the days, weeks, and months ahead.

U SPORTS CENTRAL

U SPORTS' online sport management portal continued to improve by leaps and bounds in 2018-19. Perhaps most significantly, the issuing, tracking, and publicizing of Letters of Intent has been transitioned from a paper-based system to U SPORTS Central. As a result, an LOI registry that had historically been months out of date, and thus of very limited value to coaches and athletic department staff, is now accurate to within 48 hours. In addition, whereas LOIs might previously have been improperly signed or otherwise incomplete or incorrect, and such deficiencies only noticed when an issue arose, U SPORTS Central ensures that LOIs are done properly, or are not registered as complete.

In addition, after a lengthy delay resulting from issues with the previously-used online platform, Athletic Financial Award submissions for 2015-16, 2016-17, and 2017-18 have now been completed on U SPORTS Central, and the results communicated to the membership. Staff look forward to further advancements on this important system in 2019-20!

TRANSGENDER POLICY

After more than 18 months of research and discussion, U SPORTS approved its first Transgender Policy in Fall 2018. The Policy permits student-athletes to participate in U SPORTS competition based on the gender as which they identify. Accordingly, it is among the most progressive and inclusive transgender policies in high-level sport, a position for which the organization has been lauded by the Canadian Centre for Ethics in Sport, the Canadian Association for the Advance of Women in Sport, and others. The development of the Policy was done by the Equity Committee, and ultimately approved unanimously by the Board.

More recently, the Equity Committee also developed and distributed a Transgender Guidance Document. Beyond simply outlining who could participate as which gender, the Guidance Document outlines anti-doping implications, recommends best practices, and responds to various Frequently Asked Questions.

FOOTBALL STATISTICS MANUAL

With the support of John Edwards and Paul Carson, the U SPORTS National office worked at delivering a National Football Statistics manual. The manual is designed to cover all situations that may arise during a football game to help the statistician avoid guessing. It is based on the manual originally produced by Paul Carson, from earlier work by Peter Barnsley and Paul Condon. The manual also aims to provide a standard for national statistics.

TOP 10 TUESDAY REVAMP

The U SPORTS Top 10 rankings underwent significant change this season. All fall team sports, which had previously determined the weekly Top 10 based on votes from coaches or media panels are now fully based on a statistical approach known as the ELO Rating system in soccer and rugby, and determined by combining that approach with an equally-weighted media panel in football as well as in men's hockey.

Modifications for different sports have been made by our partner RankR. Each system is modified and tailored for the specific sport in question, and it brings in historical data from past seasons to help compare teams that don't directly play each other, such as those in different conferences.

The national office is evaluating potential adjustments for next season, as well further implementation into additional sports in the coming years.

TUESDAY MORNING SKATE PODCAST

U SPORTS launched its official podcast channel during the 2018-19 season, with the debut of Tuesday Morning Skate, a new weekly show dedicated to U SPORTS hockey, hosted by Victor Findlay.

Findlay, a recent graduate of Ryerson's Radio & Television Arts (RTA): Sport Media program, provided the play-by-play for the 2018 and 2019 U SPORTS Cavendish Farms University Cup on Sportsnet and is known as the U SPORTS men's hockey insider.

Each week, Tuesday Morning Skate featured a weekly recap of key performances, analysis of top stories, and interviews with current players and coaches, as well as alumni finding success in their post-varsity careers.

U SPORTS SHOP

U SPORTS apparel and merchandise will no longer be limited to student-athletes and national champions with the launch of a new online store at shop.usports.ca.

U SPORTS fans, including friends and family of varsity athletes from coast to coast will now have the opportunity to buy their very own U SPORTS-branded clothing and accessories through the store.

The store currently features a selection of U SPORTS fan wear from shirts and hoodies to hats, jackets and bags, as well as flip-flops. In addition, the store introduces a range of Team Canada merchandise to support U SPORTS student-athletes who represent our country on the international stage.

WEBSITE IMPROVEMENTS

USPORTS.ca has evolved to accommodate feedback from users and fans and to better serve our members. After the launch of the new stats ticker at the beginning of the season, USPORTS.ca has activated a couple of new features such as shortcut buttons to HQ, USPORTS.Live and U SPORTS Shop, a customizable promo block on the home page and new partner banners offering more flexibility and visibility to our partners, including the four conferences. USPORTS.ca has also improved the look and feel of the statistics pages.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Members of U SPORTS

Opinion

We have audited the financial statements of U SPORTS (the "Entity"), which comprise:

- the statement of financial position as at March 31, 2019
- the statement of operations for the year then ended
- the statement of changes in net assets for the year then ended
- the statement of cash flows for the year then ended
- and notes to the financial statements, including a summary of significant accounting policies

(Hereinafter referred to as the "financial statements").

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements, present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Entity as at March 31, 2019, and its results of operations and its cash flows for the year then ended in accordance with Canadian Accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations.

Basis for Opinion

We conducted our audit in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards. Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the "Auditors' Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements" section of our auditors' report.

We are independent of the Entity in accordance with the ethical requirements that are relevant to our audit of the financial statements in Canada and we have fulfilled our other responsibilities in accordance with these requirements.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

KPMG LLP is a Canadian limited liability partnership and a member firm of the KPMG network of independent member firms affiliated with KPMG International Cooperative ("KPMG International"), a Swiss entity. KPMG Canada provides services to KPMG LLP.

Responsibilities of Management and Those Charged with Governance for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in accordance with Canadian accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations, and for such internal control as management determines is necessary to enable the preparation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the financial statements, management is responsible for assessing the Entity's ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing as applicable, matters related to going concern and using the going concern basis of accounting unless management either intends to liquidate the Entity or to cease operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

Those charged with governance are responsible for overseeing the Entity's financial reporting process.

Auditors' Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditors' report that includes our opinion.

Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards will always detect a material misstatement when it exists.

Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of the financial statements.

As part of an audit in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards, we exercise professional judgment and maintain professional skepticism throughout the audit.

We also:

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.

- Obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Entity's internal control.

- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates and related disclosures made by management.
- Conclude on the appropriateness of management's use of the going concern basis of accounting and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exists related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the Entity's ability to continue as a going concern. If we conclude that a material uncertainty exists, we are required to draw attention in our auditors' report to the related disclosures in the financial statements or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditors' report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Entity to cease to continue as a going concern.
- Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the financial statements, including the disclosures, and whether the financial statements represent the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.
- Communicate with those charged with governance regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that we identify during our audit.

Notes to Financial Statements

The mission of U SPORTS (the "Organization") is to enrich the educational experience of the athlete through a national sports program that fosters excellence through quality educational and athletic experience, unity of purpose, respect for autonomy, integrity and fair play, trust and mutual respect, equity and equality of experience.

The Organization is a Registered Canadian Amateur Athletic Association under the Income Tax Act (Canada), and is not subject to income taxes. Effective September 4, 2014, the Organization continued its articles of incorporation under the Canada Not-for-profit Corporations Act.

1. Significant accounting policies:

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with Canadian accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations and include the following significant accounting policies:

(a) Revenue recognition:

The Organization uses the deferral method of accounting for contributions for not-for-profit organizations.

Restricted revenue is recognized as revenue in the year in which the related expenditure is incurred.

Unrestricted revenue is recognized as revenue when it is received or becomes receivable.

Membership fees are recognized as revenue in the period in which they become receivable.

(b) Tangible capital assets:

Tangible capital assets are recorded at cost less accumulated amortization. Amortization of office furniture and equipment is provided on the straight line basis over five years, computers and computer software is provided on the same basis over three years and amortization of leasehold improvements is provided over the term of the lease.

(c) Sports Canada contributions:

Contributions received from Sport Canada are subject to specific terms and conditions regarding the expenditure of the funds. The Organization's accounting records are subject to audit by Sport Canada to identify instances, if any, in which amounts charged against contributions have not complied with the agreed terms and conditions and which therefore would be refundable to Sport Canada. Adjustments to prior years' contributions are recorded in the year in which Sport Canada requests the adjustment.

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

(d) Financial instruments:

Financial instruments are recorded at fair value on initial recognition. Equity instruments that are quoted in an active market are subsequently measured at fair value. All other financial instruments are subsequently recorded at cost or amortized cost, unless management has elected to carry the instruments at fair value. The Organization has elected to carry investments at fair value.

Transaction costs incurred on the acquisition of financial instruments measured subsequently at fair value are expensed as incurred. All other financial instruments are adjusted by transaction costs incurred on acquisition and financing costs, which are amortized using the effective interest rate method.

Financial assets are assessed for impairment on an annual basis at the end of the fiscal year if there are indicators of impairment. If there is an indicator of impairment, the Organization determines if there is a significant adverse change in the expected amount or timing of future cash flows from the financial asset. If there is a significant adverse change in the expected cash flows, the carrying value of the financial asset is reduced to the highest of the present value of the expected cash flows, the amount that could be realized from selling the financial asset or the amount the Organization expects to realize by exercising its right to any collateral. If events and circumstances reverse in a future period, an impairment loss will be reversed to the extent of the improvement, not exceeding the initial carrying value.

(e) Use of estimates:

The preparation of the financial statements requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the year. Actual results could differ from those estimates. These estimates are reviewed annually and as adjustments become necessary, they are recognized in the financial statements in the period they become known.
