CAROLINA CORE FC

Fox Facts

CAROLINA CORE FC

Tight Eastern Conference Race

Carolina Core FC went toe-to-toe last week against Eastern Conference second-place New York Red Bulls II, securing a point away from home. Although The Foxes fell short in the penalty shootout, the point places CCFC in 12th place in the Eastern Conference with nine points. The Foxes are just one point away from an eighth-place playoff position. In fact, only three points separate 12th place from fifth place in the Eastern Conference, meaning a win against Huntsville City FC would prove to be crucial in order for CCFC to climb the table.

PLAYER TO WATCH

Facundo Canete – Finding a New Gear

Facundo Canete became Carolina Core FC's top goal scorer this season after his dominant performance last time out against New York Red Bulls II. The Argentinian midfielder ensured that The Foxes left New Jersey with a point, pulling CCFC level twice, including a dramatic last-minute goal that took the game to a penalty shootout. Canete's efforts have led to him scoring four goals in MLS NEXT Pro this season, placing him at the forefront of CCFC's leading goal-scorers this campaign. The 25-year-old seems to be finding a new gear at the perfect time, having scored three goals in his last two MLSNP appearances.

HUNTSVILLE CITY FC

The East's Top Scorers Visit The Point

Huntsville City FC is currently on a five-game unbeaten streak, with their most recent result being a 2-2 draw at home against Atlanta United 2. However, over the last three games, HCFC has outscored its opponents 11-2, earning clean sheets against Chicago Fire FC II (5-0 victory) and Inter Miami CF II (4-0 victory). These results have catapulted Huntsville into fourth place in the Eastern Conference and top of the conference in goals scored (18 goals). The visitors hope to extend their unbeaten streak to six games against Carolina Core FC, with their last defeat occurring in mid-March against Eastern leaders, Chattanooga FC.
